Presidential Campaign In Home Stretch

Adlai Declares Cutting Budget "Difficult" Job

Eisenhower Tours Pennsylvania Today

[By The Associated Press]

Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson said yesterday that it is going to be "terribly difficult" to make substantial cuts in the federal budget but that "we must press forward with religious fervor" toward a reduction of spending and taxes.

Stevenson, Democratic presidential nominee, made a day-long auto tour in Massachusetts and made several talks which he styled nonpolitical. His Republican opponent, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, spent the day secluded in his New York City residence, working on new campaign speeches.

Both candidates take up the campaign trail again today in renewed drives for votes in the big election just a week away from tomorrow. Both will concentrate on the populous northeastern states with their big block of electoral votes. Eisenhower, who will tour Pennsylvania today, also will visit Chicago and, an aide said, may even sandwich in another quick trip to California.

Truman To Tour Midwest

President Truman sets out once again today, too, making his fourth whistle-stop tour on behalf of Stevenson and his running mate, Sen. John J. Sparkman. Truman will stick this time to the Midwest, with major speeches in such cities as Cincinnati, Detroit, Chicago and St. Louis.

Stevenson was the target of a new attack from Sen. Richard M. Nixon, the Republican vice presidential candidate, who spoke to a breakfast audience of Chicago Jews.

Nixon declared that Stevenson's silence indicated approval of what the senator called "President Truman's injection of the race prejudice issue in the current political campaign."

That was a reference to Truman's statement that Eisenhower, by endorsing senators who voted for what Truman contends is undesirable immigration legislation, showed he is "willing to accept the very practices that identify the so-called 'master race.'" Truman has denied that his statement attributed anti-Jewish or anti-Catholic sentiment to Eisenhower.

GOP Victory Forecast

Gov. Sherman Adams of New Hampshire, Eisenhower's campaign manager, alluded to the same incident in a statement which predicted an "overwhelming victory" for the GOP ticket.

Another GOP victory prediction came from Rep. Joseph W. Martin Jr. of Massachusetts, the Republican leader in the House. He said if a maximum effort is put forth on election day, Eisenhower may carry 30 to 35 states, including several in the South.

Frank E. McKinney, the former chairman of the Democratic National Committee, predicted the Democrats will win the presidency with at least 294 electoral votes—28 more than the needed minimum.

Sen. McCarthy is to make his nationwide radio and television broadcast from Chicago at 9:30 p. m., EST tonight. It will be heard via Mutual radio and seen on ABC television.

McCarthy has said he intends in the speech to give Stevenson's "history and let the public decide whether we want him to lead the fight against communism."

Kidnap Suspect Eludes Officers

SCOTTSBORO, Ala., Oct. 26 (AP)—An accused mass kidnaper kept a jump ahead of officers tonight after spending two nights in Scottsboro hotels while a great manhunt swirled around him.

Highway Patrolman Preston Bryant said Charles Hopkins, 19, Florida ex-convict, tiptoed out of a hotel before dawn today and was last seen walking west toward Huntsville, Ala.

Hopkins is wanted in connection with the wild kidnaping of 20 persons in Georgia and Tennessee by quick-triggered toughs last week. All of the victims were released or escaped.

He is one of two suspects still at large in the wholesale kidnapings.

Patrolman Bryant said Hopkins went to a service station after leaving the hotel, changed clothes, and started walking along U. S. Highway 72 toward Huntsville.

The hunt widened as officers checked two reports of attempts to steal cars on highways south of Scottsboro.

For J. Glenn Beall

The Cumberland News had planned later this week to commend J. Glenn Beall to the voters of Allegany and Garrett counties for election to the United States Senate.

Beall's marvelous record of achievement in his 10 years as a congressman was to be pointed out, and we intended to recount how he was almost solely responsible for completion of the Savage River dam and for getting Cumberland's gigantic flood control project underway.

Both of these programs helped to alleviate the unemployment problem in this section at a time when help was needed most and their undertaking provided jobs when few were available at other places.

We planned to call attention, too, to the fact that some of his opponent's Democratic supporters have deserted Democratic ranks to give their backing to Mr. Beall, a native son of Frostburg.

The latest to desert Mr. Mahoney was J. Tyson Lee, secretary of the Democratic State Central Committee of Frederick County. Mr. Lee said he no longer could stomach Mr. Mahoney after his disgraceful conduct on a television program in Baltimore.

This television program, in which Mr. Beall also was a participant, evidently has turned out to be a fateful mistake for Mr. Mahoney and perhaps the turning point in the senatorial campaign in Baltimore City.

As we said, we intended to recommend Mr. Beall for election and we most heartily do so, using in this instance the help of the Baltimore Sun which has so succinctly pointed up just how fine a man Mr. Beall is. With thanks to The Sun, we reprint their following editorial and ask the voters to cast their ballots for J. Glenn Beall for the United States Senate on November 4. Here is what The Sun has to say:

"Up to this week, the campaign methods of Mr. Beall and Mr. Mahoney have thrown little light on their respective capacities and personalities. Hand-shaking is a useful political device but it hardly discloses the political philosophies of its practitioners.

"Recently, as everyone now knows, the campaign has taken another turn. On television, Mr. Mahoney asked his opponent some pointed questions but refused to allow the program to proceed so that they could be answered.

"But now Mr. Beall, having seized the opportunity thus presented by his perhaps too thoughtless opponent, has answered the questions. Moreover, his answers have been marked by candor and an apparent willingness to go into detail as far as demanded.

"He has thus presented himself as a rather engaging figure—no orator, certainly, and no profound thinker; but a good solid average American, playing the political game with a due regard for the proprieties and a complete freedom from cant and pretense.

"Because he is a Western Marylander, Mr. Beall has not been too well known in this part of the Free State. We begin to think the loss has been Baltimore's."

Deer Poachers Sought In Killing Of Two Hunters

TUXEDO PARK, N. Y., Oct. 26 (AP) — Two youths hiking through a wild mountain forest today found the shotgun-blasted bodies of two hunters lying in a tiny path, the carcass of a deer between them.

Police believed deer poachers had slain the two hunters because they knew too much.

Five empty shotgun shells lay nearby.

Death stalked Robert Nugent, 43, and Charles E. Simpson, 38, into the quiet woods as they sought squirrels in the Ramapo Mountains. They had left home yesterday afternoon.

Investigators believed Nugent's job as town clerk of Ramapo, N. Y., may have contributed to the death of him and Simpson, a banker from Saddle River, N. J.

They theorized that Nugent, who issues hunting licenses, may have recognized the illegal hunters.

As authorities constructed the shootings, the two were driving through the woods in a yellow jeep en route to their hunting area when they saw poachers dragging the deer.

The hunters accosted the poachers, they figured, and the shooting followed.

Today's Chuckle

Pastor Preaches No Sermon After Highway Tragedy

CANTON, O., Oct. 26 (AP)—Rev. Ivor A. Frick preached no sermon today.

"I just can't meet the congregation," he said, weeping.

Earlier the minister had told the parents of five boys that their sons had died in a train-auto wreck at nearby Louisville.

The boys' Sunday school teacher at Bethel Temple of Assemblies of God, Paul L. Rudy, 29, also was killed.

Six boys were in Rudy's car as he was returning them home last night from a wiener roast on a farm. The Chicago-to-New York Pennsylvania Railroad Manhattan Limited struck the car on the seventh track of a series of eight tracks. One boy survived.

Father, Three Young Daughters Die In Fire

WALLACE, N. Y., Oct. 26 (AP)—A father and three of his young daughters, one an infant, died today in a fire that swept their two-story frame home.

The mother helped three other children from the blazing house before she was grabbed by a minister who feared she, too, would be killed if she entered the home again.

The dead: Willard M. Fairbrother, 37, and his children, Victoria Lynn, 5, Joy Lou, 1, and Dianna Lynn, six months.

Arvey Doubts Stevenson Keeps Acheson If Elected

NEW YORK, Oct. 26 (AP)—Jacob Arvey, Democratic national committeeman from Illinois, said tonight he doubted that Gov. Adlai Stevenson would keep Secretary of State Dean Acheson in the Cabinet if he is elected president.

Arvey, who helped push Stevenson for the Democratic presidential nomination, said on the television program, "Meet the Press":

"In my opinion, I don't think he'll keep him (Acheson). I don't think there's a man that he'll reappoint just because he's there."

Earlier, Arvey had attempted to parry the question, saying:

"Only one man can answer that question-Gov. Stevenson.

"He has not discussed the Cabinet with me."

Then, he added:

"In my opinion, Gov. Stevenson will attempt to do in Washington what he did in Illinois and what he did in this campaign and that is to pick a new team."

Pressed for elaboration, he said he thought Acheson would go.

Arvey said his attention first was called to Gov. Stevenson by Gov. James Byrnes of South Carolina who now is opposing the Democratic presidential candidate. Byrnes formerly was secretary of state.

Arvey said he first met Stevenson in 1948. Arvey was instrumental in making Stevenson Democratic candidate for Illinois governor in that year.

U. N. Awaiting Russian Reply To Truce Plea

Vishinsky Speech Key To Deadlock

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Oct. 26 (AP) — Delegates to the United Nations Assembly, in recess today, are waiting nervously for the Russian reply on a 21-nation appeal for a Korean armistice.

The key to the truce talks deadlock, delegates conceded, lay in the tone of the answer by Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky.

Up to tonight, Vishinsky had given no indication when the reply will come. The Assembly Political Committee, engaged in the Korean debate, was scheduled to meet again at 3 p.m. (EST) Monday, and the hope is that Vishinsky will speak then.

Acheson Indicted Russia

Other delegates indicated there was little they could add now to the long statement of U. S. Secretary of State Dean Acheson, who last Friday presented the appeal to the 60-nation committee for action by it and the General Assembly.

In his statement, Acheson indicated Russia as the guide and controller of all North Korean action which resulted in the invasion of South Korea and the war now being fought in its 29th month by U. N. forces.

Yesterday's Soviet party paper Pravda gave only a hint of the course Vishinsky may take. It called refusal of the Political Committee to invite North Korea representatives to the debate "cowardly" and "scared."

Meeting May Be Postponed

But Pravda and the Soviet government had not then had the time to digest Acheson's citation of 17 Soviet treaties which had guaranteed the right of war prisoners to refuse being sent back to their own countries if they feared to return.

Forcible repatriation of Chinese and North Korean war prisoners, demanded by the Communists, has been the chief sticking point of the deadlocked talks at Panmunjom.

Some U. N. officials talked of possible postponement of the Monday committee meeting if Vishinsky does not come up tomorrow morning with a notification he is ready to talk.

42 On Comet Jet Airliner Have Narrow Escape

ROME, Oct. 26 (AP) — Britain's record-smashing Comet jet airliner roared down the runway at Ciampino Airport tonight, lifted a foot or two off the ground and then crunched back to earth in a 120-mile-an-hour belly landing.

All 42 persons aboard escaped injury. All filed from the plane without excitement or panic.

A drizzle pelting the field made it difficult to estimate how seriously the Comet was damaged. An airport official said "damage appears to be serious."

The plane was badly damaged. Its four jets dug into the ground and held the craft back, averting a possible disaster. A drizzle was pelting the field at the time, and the airliner, plowing through mud, stopped less than 10 yards from a heavy fence.

C. H. G. Kent, an official of British Overseas Airways, which operates the jet, said the cause of the mishap has not yet been determined. The end of the runway at Ciampino, just outside Rome, was said to have been foggy at the time.

It was the first accident reported for the Comet, the four-engined jet craft whose record-shattering passenger flights have won her acclaim as queen of the air.

Arab Refugees Balk

JERUSALEM (Jordan Section), Oct. 26 (AP)—Ten thousand Arab refugees cabled U. N. officials in New York today, rejecting a plan to settle them in Arab countries. They demanded that they be allowed to return to their homes in Israel.

Quake Rocks Japan

Married 64 Years

George Sarrasin, 88, listens as his wife, Melina, 81, plays a French-Canadian folk song on their 64th wedding anniversary in Los Angeles. They said their life together seemed as though it had started only yesterday because "we have shared our troubles and our good fortune." Married in Alberta, Canada, they moved to Los Angeles in 1904 and have reared nine children.

Several Allied Outposts Seized By Chinese Reds

SEOUL, Korea, Monday, Oct. 27 (AP) — Nearly 1,000 Chinese Reds overran several U. N. outposts Sunday night in fierce fighting on a three-mile front northeast of Panmunjom, site of the stalled Korean armistice negotiations.

A U. S. Eighth Army briefing officer said hand-to-hand fighting for hills in the Western Front area continued through noon Monday.

On the Central Front, Chinese continued pressure on Allies defending bitterly-won Triangle Hill and Sniper Ridge. Associated Press Correspondent John Randolph said the Reds made probes and attacks in groups of about 75 to 120 men.

Reds Attack On Eastern Front

About 50 North Koreans attacked in the Heartbreak Ridge sector on the Eastern Front early today. They hit the spot where [illegible] Reds attacked Sunday morning and were thrown back.

A report from the Western Front said the Chinese attacked seven Allied-held hills northeast of Panmunjom behind an artillery and mortar barrage of more than 17,000 rounds.

It could not be determined early Monday afternoon how many U. N. outposts the Red attack had overrun.

The main fighting centered on a mile-long ridge called "The Hook" by Allied troops who had been posted there.

B-29s Bomb Supply Center

The Chinese attacked at dusk Sunday, slackened their fire for a few hours after midnight, then began fighting bitterly again at dawn Monday.

Allied fighter-bombers plastered the Chinese after daylight, and Allied artillery and mortars also gave the Chinese back many thousands of rounds.

Far East Air Forces said B-29 Superforts Sunday night dropped 60 tons of explosives on a supply center near the North Korean Red capital of Pyongyang and 50 tons on a high North Korean headquarters near Yangdok in Central North Korea.

Reds Report Western Conflicts Sharpening

MOSCOW, Oct. 26 (AP) — The Soviet press said today there is mounting evidence of sharpening conflicts within the capitalist world that are driving a wedge between the United States and her allies — just as Stalin predicted.

The press said its findings backed up Prime Minister Stalin's statement in his latest work, "The Economic Problems of Socialism in the USSR," that war is inevitable among the capitalist countries.

The Communist Party organ, Pravda, in a major editorial, found that the scramble for markets had become more intense due to the resurrection of the German and Japanese export trade with American assistance.

'Miss U.S.A.', Singer Wed

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 26 (AP)—Red-haired Jackie Loughery of Brooklyn gave up the "Miss" in her title of "Miss U.S.A." today and became the bride of Singer Guy Mitchell.

The 21-year-old Brooklyn-born beauty won her title of "Miss U.S.A." at the Miss Universe contest in Long Beach, Calif., last June.

Amos And Andy May Retire After Current Season

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 26 (AP) — Amos and Andy of radio, now in their 25th year of broadcasting, are giving some consideration to retiring after this season but a final decision has not yet been reached.

A spokesman for CBS said he asked veteran blackface actors, Freeman F. Gosden and Charles J. Correll, about a published report that they are definitely quitting radio.

Guy Della-Cioppa, CBS vice president in charge of radio network programming, Hollywood, said he talked with Gosden this morning and the actor told him: "We have not made a final decision but might decide to leave radio and show business after this season."

Yugoslav Pillbox Reported Under Bulgarian Fire

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, Oct. 26 (AP) — Belgrade radio reported three new Bulgarian violations of Yugoslavia's air space today and said Bulgarian ground troops had opened fire across the border on a Yugoslav pillbox.

On the basis of meagre reports, the frontier incidents—all of which occurred early today — seemed the most serious of a series which have occurred in recent months along the border dividing Yugoslavia from its Russian-led Cominform neighbor.

As reported by Radio Belgrade, which quoted the foreign office, the first incident occurred at 8 a. m., when a single Bulgarian plane, apparently on an observation mission, flew about nine miles into Yugoslavia near the town of Dimitrovgrad.

Ninety minutes later, the account continued, Bulgarian troops opened fire on the Yugoslav pillbox south of that village, on the Nisava river in Serbia. Simultaneously, a half dozen Bulgarian planes flew into Yugoslavia near the border town of Pirot.

A little while later a Bulgarian MIG-15 flew about 15 miles into Yugoslavia in the same area.

Belgian Aid Pledged

NEW YORK, Oct. 26 (AP)—Paul van Zeeland, Belgium's foreign minister, said today his nation is prepared to do "her full share" in any collective action on Korea.

Belgium has a battalion fighting in Korea.

Actress Hattie McDaniel, 'Beulah' Of Radio-TV, Dies

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 26 (AP)—Hattie McDaniel, the "Beulah" of radio and television and the movies' outstanding Negro actress and an Academy Award winner, died today after being ill with cancer for more than a year.

Miss McDaniel, who was 57, succumbed at the Motion Picture Country House in San Fernando Valley.

Miss McDaniel, who appeared in some 300 films, was known to millions as "Beulah" on the radio and TV. Illness forced her retirement from the "Beulah" show more than a year ago.

Friends said that during her illness, she continued to be cheerful and looked forward to the time when she might resume her career.

Miss McDaniel won her Academy Award for playing the role of Scarlett O'Hara's mammy in "Gone With the Wind."

The actress was born in Wichita, Kan. She attended elementary and high school in Denver, where she decided to become an entertainer. Her first jobs were as a singer, then as an actress with road shows.

Republicans Plan Another 'Truth Squad'

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26 (AP)—The Republican National Committee announced today it will again send a "truth squad" out along the campaign route on which President Truman will set forth early tomorrow.

The name is one the GOP committee has given to groups of congressmen who reply promptly to the President's campaign speeches on behalf of the Democratic national ticket. In a statement, the committee said his "increasing misrepresentations, distortion and Alice in wonderland treatment of facts must be immediately corrected."

The "truth squad" will sometimes precede and some times follow Truman on this last of his whistle-stop tours, which will carry him through the Midwest to St. Louis.

Charge Truman Once Belonged To Klan Denied

NEW YORK, Oct. 26 (INS) — Walter Winchell produced for a television audience tonight copies of statements by seven witnesses which he said proved that President Truman once belonged to the Ku Klux Klan.

The charge was immediately denied at the White House, where a press officer, speaking on the President's authority, declared that Truman had been invited to join the hooded order in the '20s, but had refused to do so because of its bigotry.

Winchell said that according to the sworn statement, copies of which he showed to the TV audience, Truman applied for membership in the Klan and was accepted in 1922.

Camera Picks Up Statements

After the telecast, Winchell told a reporter: "I have lots more statements. I didn't have time to put them all on."

The witnesses' statements were picked up by the TV camera as the columnist-commentator spoke. Viewers were able to get only a quick look at the documents.

The witnesses named by Winchell included Harry Hoffman. Winchell identified him as the Klan's political organizer and said Hoffman declared he was one of five men who officiated when the Klan oath "was administered to Harry S. Truman at the Baltimore Hotel, Kansas City, in a room on the mezzanine floor in June, 1922."

Another Witness Quoted

Another witness, Harry E. Hukill, was quoted by Winchell as swearing that he saw "Harry S. Truman put on his KKK robe" at a Klan meeting "and by the light of three fiery crosses deliver a speech urging others to join the Klan."

The White House denial was released as Winchell repeated his charge of last Sunday, that President Truman once belonged to the Klan—a charge Winchell said he made "in answer to the ridiculous statement, later withdrawn, that Gen. Eisenhower had stooped to Nazi tactics and that the general was guilty of racial prejudice."

Seven Point 4 Students Are Given Up For Lost

TECOLUTLA, Mexico, Oct. 26 (AP)—Seven Latin American Point Four students in Mexico missing since they went for a moonlight boat ride a week ago and failed to return, were given up for lost last night.

Three planes, a Coast Guard cutter and scores of small boats participated in the futile search for two doctors from Mexico and Dominican Republic and five nurses from Mexico, Puerto Rico, Ecuador and El Salvador. They were studying in Mexico on U. S. Point Four grants.

UMW Chieftain Gives Promise Of Cooperation

Question Of Miners' Return Is Up In Air

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26 (AP)—President Truman tonight made a personal appeal to Union Leader John L. Lewis to end the week-long soft coal strike. Later Truman said Lewis "has assured me of his cooperation."

Lewis was not reached immediately to determine if this meant he would instruct the idle miners to return to work, but apparently this was what was expected.

The President's announcement of his request and Lewis' reply was made after a suddenly-arranged White House meeting — in the President's private study. It was attended by Truman, Lewis, Harry M. Moses, president of the Bituminous Coal Operators Association; the President's assistant, John R. Steelman; Economic Stabilization Director Roger Putnam and Federal Mediation Chief David L. Cole.

Lewis Makes No Statement

On leaving, Lewis told reporters he had no statement but added:

"Obviously, whatever the President said is right."

This still left up in the air the question whether Lewis would order the United Mine Workers back to work as Truman's words, that he had been "assured of cooperation" by Lewis, seemed to indicate.

Virtually the entire soft coal mining industry has been struck since the Wage Stabilization Board barred payment of 40 cents of the $1.90 daily wage increase that Lewis had negotiated with the industry.

Lewis and a major portion of the industry are appealing the wage board's decision.

Putnam had been reported planning an early decision on the appeal.

Lewis Confident Of Victory

The President's action in calling a special meeting at the White House came a few hours before he was due to leave on another whistle stopping campaign tour.

Lewis in a political speech last night at Morgantown, W. Va., expressed confidence the miners soon will get the full raise they won from the operators.

That would end the present strike.

But even if the government adheres to the $1.50 figure, which the WSB said is all that is allowed under its inflation control rules, the way has been pointed to possible new pay raises for other unions.

Under the WSB's rules wages originally were limited to a 10 per cent increase over the level of pay rates in effect in January, 1950.

Then, under pressure of rising living costs, the WSB allowed further leeway. It rules that on top of the 10 per cent raise employers could give workers a further raise equal to the percentage of the change in living costs since January 1951.

Church Closed By Italian Police

MILAN, Italy, Monday, Oct. 27 (AP) — A preacher of the American-led Church of Christ said today police had forcibly prevented members of the congregation from attending services yesterday in nearby Alessandria.

Melvin J. Pownall of Coatsville, Pa., said that after he had entered the church with his family and four Italian members, the police barred other members from entering. Pownall said he also was threatened with arrest.

The preacher, 31, lives in Como with his wife and two children.

The police action was the first difficulty encountered by the Italian Church of Christ since Oct. 3, when the Italian government agreed to allow services in the 22 churches of the denomination pending consideration of an application for formal permission to function.

Activities of the church had been banned by the government on grounds it did not have official permission to operate here. A wave of protests in the U. S., especially in Texas and the Southwest, followed the police ban, and the government gave its permission to operate temporarily.

Italian Red On Trial

NAPLES, Italy, Olt. 26 (AP)—A pretty, 32-year-old Italian Communist woman legislator goes on trial here tomorrow for leading a riot in which somebody bit off a policeman's ear.

She is dark-haired Luciana Viviani, whose immunity as a member of the Chamber of Deputies was lifted by the Legislature so she could be tried for "leading a disorder and abusing police."

Weather Forecast

Generally fair and warmer today; tomorrow some cloudiness and cooler.

Earlier the minister had told the parents of five boys that their sons had died in a train-auto wreck at nearby Louisville.

The boys' Sunday school teacher at Bethel Temple of Assemblies of God, Paul L. Rudy, 29, also was killed.

Six boys were in Rudy's car as he was returning them home last night from a wiener roast on a farm. The Chicago-to-New York Pennsylvania Railroad Manhattan Limited struck the car on the seventh track of a series of eight tracks. One boy survived.

Father, Three Young Daughters Die In Fire

WALLACE, N. Y., Oct. 26 (AP)—A father and three of his young daughters, one an infant, died today in a fire that swept their two-story frame home.

The mother helped three other children from the blazing house before she was grabbed by a minister who feared she, too, would be killed if she entered the home again.

The dead: Willard M. Fairbrother, 37, and his children, Victoria Lynn, 5, Joy Lou, 1, and Dianna Lynn, six months.

Arvey Doubts Stevenson Keeps Acheson If Elected

NEW YORK, Oct. 26 (AP)—Jacob Arvey, Democratic national committeeman from Illinois, said tonight he doubted that Gov. Adlai Stevenson would keep Secretary of State Dean Acheson in the Cabinet if he is elected president.

Arvey, who helped push Stevenson for the Democratic presidential nomination, said on the television program, "Meet the Press":

"In my opinion, I don't think he'll keep him (Acheson). I don't think there's a man that he'll reappoint just because he's there."

Earlier, Arvey had attempted to parry the question, saying:

"Only one man can answer that question-Gov. Stevenson.

"He has not discussed the Cabinet with me."

Then, he added:

"In my opinion, Gov. Stevenson will attempt to do in Washington what he did in Illinois and what he did in this campaign and that is to pick a new team."

Pressed for elaboration, he said he thought Acheson would go.

Arvey said his attention first was called to Gov. Stevenson by Gov. James Byrnes of South Carolina who now is opposing the Democratic presidential candidate. Byrnes formerly was secretary of state.

Arvey said he first met Stevenson in 1948. Arvey was instrumental in making Stevenson Democratic candidate for Illinois governor in that year.

U. N. Awaiting Russian Reply To Truce Plea

Vishinsky Speech Key To Deadlock

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Oct. 26 (AP) — Delegates to the United Nations Assembly, in recess today, are waiting nervously for the Russian reply on a 21-nation appeal for a Korean armistice.

The key to the truce talks deadlock, delegates conceded, lay in the tone of the answer by Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky.

Up to tonight, Vishinsky had given no indication when the reply will come. The Assembly Political Committee, engaged in the Korean debate, was scheduled to meet again at 3 p.m. (EST) Monday, and the hope is that Vishinsky will speak then.

Acheson Indicted Russia

Other delegates indicated there was little they could add now to the long statement of U. S. Secretary of State Dean Acheson, who last Friday presented the appeal to the 60-nation committee for action by it and the General Assembly.

In his statement, Acheson indicated Russia as the guide and controller of all North Korean action which resulted in the invasion of South Korea and the war now being fought in its 29th month by U. N. forces.

Yesterday's Soviet party paper Pravda gave only a hint of the course Vishinsky may take. It called refusal of the Political Committee to invite North Korea representatives to the debate "cowardly" and "scared."

Meeting May Be Postponed

But Pravda and the Soviet government had not then had the time to digest Acheson's citation of 17 Soviet treaties which had guaranteed the right of war prisoners to refuse being sent back to their own countries if they feared to return.

Forcible repatriation of Chinese and North Korean war prisoners, demanded by the Communists, has been the chief sticking point of the deadlocked talks at Panmunjom.

Some U. N. officials talked of possible postponement of the Monday committee meeting if Vishinsky does not come up tomorrow morning with a notification he is ready to talk.

42 On Comet Jet Airliner Have Narrow Escape

ROME, Oct. 26 (AP) — Britain's record-smashing Comet jet airliner roared down the runway at Ciampino Airport tonight, lifted a foot or two off the ground and then crunched back to earth in a 120-mile-an-hour belly landing.

All 42 persons aboard escaped injury. All filed from the plane without excitement or panic.

A drizzle pelting the field made it difficult to estimate how seriously the Comet was damaged. An airport official said "damage appears to be serious."

The plane was badly damaged. Its four jets dug into the ground and held the craft back, averting a possible disaster. A drizzle was pelting the field at the time, and the airliner, plowing through mud, stopped less than 10 yards from a heavy fence.

C. H. G. Kent, an official of British Overseas Airways, which operates the jet, said the cause of the mishap has not yet been determined. The end of the runway at Ciampino, just outside Rome, was said to have been foggy at the time.

It was the first accident reported for the Comet, the four-engined jet craft whose record-shattering passenger flights have won her acclaim as queen of the air.

Arab Refugees Balk

JERUSALEM (Jordan Section), Oct. 26 (AP)—Ten thousand Arab refugees cabled U. N. officials in New York today, rejecting a plan to settle them in Arab countries. They demanded that they be allowed to return to their homes in Israel.

Quake Rocks Japan

Married 64 Years

George Sarrasin, 88, listens as his wife, Melina, 81, plays a French-Canadian folk song on their 64th wedding anniversary in Los Angeles. They said their life together seemed as though it had started only yesterday because "we have shared our troubles and our good fortune." Married in Alberta, Canada, they moved to Los Angeles in 1904 and have reared nine children.

Several Allied Outposts Seized By Chinese Reds

SEOUL, Korea, Monday, Oct. 27 (AP) — Nearly 1,000 Chinese Reds overran several U. N. outposts Sunday night in fierce fighting on a three-mile front northeast of Panmunjom, site of the stalled Korean armistice negotiations.

A U. S. Eighth Army briefing officer said hand-to-hand fighting for hills in the Western Front area continued through noon Monday.

On the Central Front, Chinese continued pressure on Allies defending bitterly-won Triangle Hill and Sniper Ridge. Associated Press Correspondent John Randolph said the Reds made probes and attacks in groups of about 75 to 120 men.

Reds Attack On Eastern Front

About 50 North Koreans attacked in the Heartbreak Ridge sector on the Eastern Front early today. They hit the spot where [illegible] Reds attacked Sunday morning and were thrown back.

A report from the Western Front said the Chinese attacked seven Allied-held hills northeast of Panmunjom behind an artillery and mortar barrage of more than 17,000 rounds.

It could not be determined early Monday afternoon how many U. N. outposts the Red attack had overrun.

The main fighting centered on a mile-long ridge called "The Hook" by Allied troops who had been posted there.

B-29s Bomb Supply Center

The Chinese attacked at dusk Sunday, slackened their fire for a few hours after midnight, then began fighting bitterly again at dawn Monday.

Allied fighter-bombers plastered the Chinese after daylight, and Allied artillery and mortars also gave the Chinese back many thousands of rounds.

Far East Air Forces said B-29 Superforts Sunday night dropped 60 tons of explosives on a supply center near the North Korean Red capital of Pyongyang and 50 tons on a high North Korean headquarters near Yangdok in Central North Korea.

Reds Report Western Conflicts Sharpening

MOSCOW, Oct. 26 (AP) — The Soviet press said today there is mounting evidence of sharpening conflicts within the capitalist world that are driving a wedge between the United States and her allies — just as Stalin predicted.

The press said its findings backed up Prime Minister Stalin's statement in his latest work, "The Economic Problems of Socialism in the USSR," that war is inevitable among the capitalist countries.

The Communist Party organ, Pravda, in a major editorial, found that the scramble for markets had become more intense due to the resurrection of the German and Japanese export trade with American assistance.

'Miss U.S.A.', Singer Wed

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 26 (AP)—Red-haired Jackie Loughery of Brooklyn gave up the "Miss" in her title of "Miss U.S.A." today and became the bride of Singer Guy Mitchell.

The 21-year-old Brooklyn-born beauty won her title of "Miss U.S.A." at the Miss Universe contest in Long Beach, Calif., last June.

Amos And Andy May Retire After Current Season

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 26 (AP) — Amos and Andy of radio, now in their 25th year of broadcasting, are giving some consideration to retiring after this season but a final decision has not yet been reached.

A spokesman for CBS said he asked veteran blackface actors, Freeman F. Gosden and Charles J. Correll, about a published report that they are definitely quitting radio.

Guy Della-Cioppa, CBS vice president in charge of radio network programming, Hollywood, said he talked with Gosden this morning and the actor told him: "We have not made a final decision but might decide to leave radio and show business after this season."

Yugoslav Pillbox Reported Under Bulgarian Fire

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, Oct. 26 (AP) — Belgrade radio reported three new Bulgarian violations of Yugoslavia's air space today and said Bulgarian ground troops had opened fire across the border on a Yugoslav pillbox.

On the basis of meagre reports, the frontier incidents—all of which occurred early today — seemed the most serious of a series which have occurred in recent months along the border dividing Yugoslavia from its Russian-led Cominform neighbor.

As reported by Radio Belgrade, which quoted the foreign office, the first incident occurred at 8 a. m., when a single Bulgarian plane, apparently on an observation mission, flew about nine miles into Yugoslavia near the town of Dimitrovgrad.

Ninety minutes later, the account continued, Bulgarian troops opened fire on the Yugoslav pillbox south of that village, on the Nisava river in Serbia. Simultaneously, a half dozen Bulgarian planes flew into Yugoslavia near the border town of Pirot.

A little while later a Bulgarian MIG-15 flew about 15 miles into Yugoslavia in the same area.

Belgian Aid Pledged

NEW YORK, Oct. 26 (AP)—Paul van Zeeland, Belgium's foreign minister, said today his nation is prepared to do "her full share" in any collective action on Korea.

Belgium has a battalion fighting in Korea.

Actress Hattie McDaniel, 'Beulah' Of Radio-TV, Dies

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 26 (AP)—Hattie McDaniel, the "Beulah" of radio and television and the movies' outstanding Negro actress and an Academy Award winner, died today after being ill with cancer for more than a year.

Miss McDaniel, who was 57, succumbed at the Motion Picture Country House in San Fernando Valley.

Miss McDaniel, who appeared in some 300 films, was known to millions as "Beulah" on the radio and TV. Illness forced her retirement from the "Beulah" show more than a year ago.

Friends said that during her illness, she continued to be cheerful and looked forward to the time when she might resume her career.

Miss McDaniel won her Academy Award for playing the role of Scarlett O'Hara's mammy in "Gone With the Wind."

The actress was born in Wichita, Kan. She attended elementary and high school in Denver, where she decided to become an entertainer. Her first jobs were as a singer, then as an actress with road shows.

Republicans Plan Another 'Truth Squad'

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26 (AP)—The Republican National Committee announced today it will again send a "truth squad" out along the campaign route on which President Truman will set forth early tomorrow.

The name is one the GOP committee has given to groups of congressmen who reply promptly to the President's campaign speeches on behalf of the Democratic national ticket. In a statement, the committee said his "increasing misrepresentations, distortion and Alice in wonderland treatment of facts must be immediately corrected."

The "truth squad" will sometimes precede and some times follow Truman on this last of his whistle-stop tours, which will carry him through the Midwest to St. Louis.

Charge Truman Once Belonged To Klan Denied

NEW YORK, Oct. 26 (INS) — Walter Winchell produced for a television audience tonight copies of statements by seven witnesses which he said proved that President Truman once belonged to the Ku Klux Klan.

The charge was immediately denied at the White House, where a press officer, speaking on the President's authority, declared that Truman had been invited to join the hooded order in the '20s, but had refused to do so because of its bigotry.

Winchell said that according to the sworn statement, copies of which he showed to the TV audience, Truman applied for membership in the Klan and was accepted in 1922.

Camera Picks Up Statements

After the telecast, Winchell told a reporter: "I have lots more statements. I didn't have time to put them all on."

The witnesses' statements were picked up by the TV camera as the columnist-commentator spoke. Viewers were able to get only a quick look at the documents.

The witnesses named by Winchell included Harry Hoffman. Winchell identified him as the Klan's political organizer and said Hoffman declared he was one of five men who officiated when the Klan oath "was administered to Harry S. Truman at the Baltimore Hotel, Kansas City, in a room on the mezzanine floor in June, 1922."

Another Witness Quoted

Another witness, Harry E. Hukill, was quoted by Winchell as swearing that he saw "Harry S. Truman put on his KKK robe" at a Klan meeting "and by the light of three fiery crosses deliver a speech urging others to join the Klan."

The White House denial was released as Winchell repeated his charge of last Sunday, that President Truman once belonged to the Klan—a charge Winchell said he made "in answer to the ridiculous statement, later withdrawn, that Gen. Eisenhower had stooped to Nazi tactics and that the general was guilty of racial prejudice."

Seven Point 4 Students Are Given Up For Lost

TECOLUTLA, Mexico, Oct. 26 (AP)—Seven Latin American Point Four students in Mexico missing since they went for a moonlight boat ride a week ago and failed to return, were given up for lost last night.

Three planes, a Coast Guard cutter and scores of small boats participated in the futile search for two doctors from Mexico and Dominican Republic and five nurses from Mexico, Puerto Rico, Ecuador and El Salvador. They were studying in Mexico on U. S. Point Four grants.

UMW Chieftain Gives Promise Of Cooperation

Question Of Miners' Return Is Up In Air

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26 (AP)—President Truman tonight made a personal appeal to Union Leader John L. Lewis to end the week-long soft coal strike. Later Truman said Lewis "has assured me of his cooperation."

Lewis was not reached immediately to determine if this meant he would instruct the idle miners to return to work, but apparently this was what was expected.

The President's announcement of his request and Lewis' reply was made after a suddenly-arranged White House meeting — in the President's private study. It was attended by Truman, Lewis, Harry M. Moses, president of the Bituminous Coal Operators Association; the President's assistant, John R. Steelman; Economic Stabilization Director Roger Putnam and Federal Mediation Chief David L. Cole.

Lewis Makes No Statement

On leaving, Lewis told reporters he had no statement but added:

"Obviously, whatever the President said is right."

This still left up in the air the question whether Lewis would order the United Mine Workers back to work as Truman's words, that he had been "assured of cooperation" by Lewis, seemed to indicate.

Virtually the entire soft coal mining industry has been struck since the Wage Stabilization Board barred payment of 40 cents of the $1.90 daily wage increase that Lewis had negotiated with the industry.

Lewis and a major portion of the industry are appealing the wage board's decision.

Putnam had been reported planning an early decision on the appeal.

Lewis Confident Of Victory

The President's action in calling a special meeting at the White House came a few hours before he was due to leave on another whistle stopping campaign tour.

Lewis in a political speech last night at Morgantown, W. Va., expressed confidence the miners soon will get the full raise they won from the operators.

That would end the present strike.

But even if the government adheres to the $1.50 figure, which the WSB said is all that is allowed under its inflation control rules, the way has been pointed to possible new pay raises for other unions.

Under the WSB's rules wages originally were limited to a 10 per cent increase over the level of pay rates in effect in January, 1950.

Then, under pressure of rising living costs, the WSB allowed further leeway. It rules that on top of the 10 per cent raise employers could give workers a further raise equal to the percentage of the change in living costs since January 1951.

Church Closed By Italian Police

MILAN, Italy, Monday, Oct. 27 (AP) — A preacher of the American-led Church of Christ said today police had forcibly prevented members of the congregation from attending services yesterday in nearby Alessandria.

Melvin J. Pownall of Coatsville, Pa., said that after he had entered the church with his family and four Italian members, the police barred other members from entering. Pownall said he also was threatened with arrest.

The preacher, 31, lives in Como with his wife and two children.

The police action was the first difficulty encountered by the Italian Church of Christ since Oct. 3, when the Italian government agreed to allow services in the 22 churches of the denomination pending consideration of an application for formal permission to function.

Activities of the church had been banned by the government on grounds it did not have official permission to operate here. A wave of protests in the U. S., especially in Texas and the Southwest, followed the police ban, and the government gave its permission to operate temporarily.

Italian Red On Trial

NAPLES, Italy, Olt. 26 (AP)—A pretty, 32-year-old Italian Communist woman legislator goes on trial here tomorrow for leading a riot in which somebody bit off a policeman's ear.

She is dark-haired Luciana Viviani, whose immunity as a member of the Chamber of Deputies was lifted by the Legislature so she could be tried for "leading a disorder and abusing police."

Hollywood's Most Exciting Women

Never Dull Moment When Zsa Zsa Gabor Is Around

(This is the seventh article in famed Movie Columnist Louella O. Parsons' series selecting "Hollywood's Ten Most Exciting Women." See The Cumberland News for Miss Parsons' next nominee on this exclusive list.)

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Copyright 1952 by International News Service

HOLLYWOOD — (INS) — The excitement that Zsa Zsa Gabor exudes is like a firecracker with a delayed fuse; you never know when to expect the explosion or how big a bang it will make!

I'll say for Zsa Zsa, there's never a dull moment when she's around. Either she's had a bitter battle with her husband, George Sanders, or she's feuding with some other glamour girl and getting herself sued; or being torn to shreds by some femme fatale.

At this stage of the game, Zsa Zsa is just back from Paris, all sweetness and light with "Zgeorge." Moreover, her career has taken an upturn and she herself told me, "I now know how to act."

I'd say that Zsa Zsa has always known how to act—off the screen that is. But she was fortunate in having Constance Collier coach her for "Moulin Rouge" in Paris. Constance has trained such stars as Katharine Hepburn and is one of the best dramatic coaches in the business.

You might say that Zsa Zsa's beauty is the most startling of any actress in Hollywood. She has red gold hair, enormous black eyes, and a figure that would get the gents in any country looking in her direction.

Zsa Zsa belongs to the famed Gabor family, whose glamour has been so widely publicized. Her mother, Mrs. Jolie Gabor, and her two sisters, Magda and Eva, are noted for their beauty, sophistication and chic clothes. But not one of them can hold a candle to Zsa Zsa.

I might add that Zsa Zsa is not entirely unaware of her powers. Why should she be? When she was a school girl she attracted and married Belge Turhan, director of the Turkish government controlled press.

Of this early marriage and her life in Turkey she says very little, only that "he was very szeet, but I don't like to live in Turkey."

However, it is known that Zsa Zsa's anti-Nazi feelings displeased the minister of Turkey, and he thoroughly disapproved of the marriage and made it very uncomfortable for her to live there. She was too outspoken and caused no end of trouble.

The Gabor beauty next snagged Conrad Hilton, head of the vast chain of Hilton hotels and many times a millionaire.

Although their marriage did not last they have remained friends, and very often I have seen Zsa Zsa at the Hilton mansion in fashionable Bel Air, helping to receive the guests at Connie's parties which bring out both the social set and the motion picture celebrities.

"Connie, he is very zveet, but it is better we do not stay married," she said when they separated.

Zsa Zsa has a daughter by Hilton. The child was born after they parted. And to the little girl she gives the wild devotion she gives everyone whose life touches her. This girl never does anything in half measures.

She gave up a million dollars in alimony from Hilton when she married George Sanders, so it must have been love! Her life with her George has been rocky, to put it mildly, and when I talked to her a few days ago she said, "Last year was the worst year of my life. I had so many troubles."

She referred to when George lived in his own apartment and she admitted to all who cared to listen that she loved him and wished he would come back to her.

George came back to her alright, and moved into her house when she was in Paris making a picture. He calmed down considerably, and is now completely off the sarcastic, scornful role that made him so very attractive to the ladies.

In fact, it was that sarcasm that brought about the first break between Gabor and George. She was appearing with him on Tallulah Bankhead's radio show, and the script called for him to make some uncomplimentary crack about wives and home life. It was just a gag, but Zsa Zsa wouldn't stand still for it, even though George carefully explained it was all in fun.

She called me up the day she walked off the Bankhead show and said, "You are a woman with feelings, and you know I am not going to let Zgeorge talk to me the way he talks to other women. It's not dignified."

George was so infuriated with her for quitting the show that he announced that their parting would mean a divorce. But it eventually blew over, and they reconciled.

Now George has a whole new personality so that Zsa Zsa will no longer be unhappy. He plays a suave diplomat in "Call Me Madam" and finds he is just as attractive to the feminine sex without employing his famous bored detached air.

One thing sure, Zsa Zsa will never lack fortune, publicity nor excitement. She was born to it. She isn't exactly what you would call a favorite with women. Men like her better.

Another foreign born girl, Corinne Calvet, is at present suing Zsa Zsa because our glamour girl claimed that Corinne was born in England, that her French accent was "acquired," and that she never saw the light of day in France.

I can't say I know Zsa Zsa as well as some of the other girls about whom I have written. But I do know her well enough to always be amused when she comes to see me. I realize she is often putting on an act for my benefit, but it's one I wouldn't miss.

She did a television show recently called "Bachelor's Haven," and she was so sarcastic with the women guests on the show that the sponsor had trouble getting actresses to go on with her.

But I'll say for Zsa Zsa it was by no means a dull show when she was its star. She put spice into it, and when she returned from Europe, after having had to bow out of "Bachelor's Haven" to make a picture there, she said, "Isn't it too bad that my poor little show has all gone to pieces since I left? They need me, but I don't think I'll go back again."

As I say, this glamour girl puts great value on her personality, appearance and her talent. I wouldn't say that Zsa Zsa's talent is commensurate with her beauty, yet with her flair for clothes and her doll-like loveliness she may become one of our great stars.

Don't forget, Zsa Zsa herself, says: "I have now learned to act and I am good."

And when you have that much confidence in yourself you generally cannot lose, and you get what you go after.

To me, Zsa Zsa Gabor is one of the most exciting women I've ever met on the screen or in private life. She's hard to beat, this girl who can look like an angel while putting a dagger into another glamour girl's back.

Music Night Fete Slated By Church

A medley of songs and a hymn sing will conclude the program. Persons attending may leave requests of numbers they would like played at future recitals.

Prison Sentences Passed Out In Midway Inn Liquor Case

Four prison sentences were handed out in Allegany County Circuit Court Saturday, two of them in the Midway Inn liquor raid case.

Nicholas and Johanna Larro, operators of the McMullen Highway tavern, were found guilty along with three of their employes on charges of illegal sale and possession of alcoholic beverages.

Larro was sentenced to a year in the House of Correction and Mrs. Larro was sent to the Maryland Reformatory for Women, for a term not to exceed a year. These are maximum sentences under the law governing this charge. Larro was also fined $400.

However, Judge George Henderson let off the three employes, Ellsworth Kenealy, H. M. Smith Jr., and Mrs. Francis L. Blauch, on general parole.

The judge was highly critical in his judgment of Attorneys Henry Gassaway Shores of Keyser and Thomas Lohr Richards, this city, in defending these three.

Two prison sentences were meted out in the case of the breaking and entering case of the Pennsylvania Lumber and Post Company building at Narrows Park September 28.

Charles Edward Crawford and Samuel Stephen Crawford, LaVale brothers, and Douglas Lurte Smith of Harrisonburg, Va., pleaded guilty to breaking and entering and larceny.

Charles Crawford was given a one-year suspended term in the House of Correction and placed on parole for three years. He also was fined $100 and given six months in which to pay it.

Samuel Crawford was sentenced to a term of two years in the Maryland State Penitentiary while Smith was sent to the Maryland Reformatory for Males for a period not to exceed one year.

More than half of the states in the U. S. have cities or towns named Madison.

Spitzbergen is the most northerly inhabited place on earth.

HOLLYWOOD—(INS)—The excitement that Zsa Zsa Gabor exudes is like a firecracker with a delayed fuse; you never know when to expect the explosion or how big a bang it will make!

I'll say for Zsa Zsa, there's never a dull moment when she's around. Either she's had a bitter battle with her husband, George Sanders, or she's feuding with some other glamour girl and getting herself sued; or being torn to shreds by some femme fatale.

At this stage of the game, Zsa Zsa is just back from Paris, all sweetness and light with "Zgeorge." Moreover, her career has taken an upturn and she herself told me, "I now know how to act."

I'd say that Zsa Zsa has always known how to act—off the screen that is. But she was fortunate in having Constance Collier coach her for "Moulin Rouge" in Paris. Constance has trained such stars as Katharine Hepburn and is one of the best dramatic coaches in the business.

You might say that Zsa Zsa's beauty is the most startling of any actress in Hollywood. She has red gold hair, enormous black eyes, and a figure that would get the gents in any country looking in her direction.

Zsa Zsa belongs to the famed Gabor family, whose glamour has been so widely publicized. Her mother, Mrs. Jolie Gabor, and her two sisters, Magda and Eva, are noted for their beauty, sophistication and chic clothes. But not one of them can hold a candle to Zsa Zsa.

I might add that Zsa Zsa is not entirely unaware of her powers. Why should she be? When she was a school girl she attracted and married Belge Turhan, director of the Turkish government controlled press.

Of this early marriage and her life in Turkey she says very little, only that "he was very szeet, but I don't like to live in Turkey."

However, it is known that Zsa Zsa's anti-Nazi feelings displeased the minister of Turkey, and he thoroughly disapproved of the marriage and made it very uncomfortable for her to live there. She was too outspoken and caused no end of trouble.

The Gabor beauty next snagged Conrad Hilton, head of the vast chain of Hilton hotels and many times a millionaire.

Although their marriage did not last they have remained friends, and very often I have seen Zsa Zsa at the Hilton mansion in fashionable Bel Air, helping to receive the guests at Connie's parties which bring out both the social set and the motion picture celebrities.

"Connie, he is very zveet, but it is better we do not stay married," she said when they separated.

Zsa Zsa has a daughter by Hilton. The child was born after they parted. And to the little girl she gives the wild devotion she gives everyone whose life touches her. This girl never does anything in half measures.

She gave up a million dollars in alimony from Hilton when she married George Sanders, so it must have been love! Her life with her George has been rocky, to put it mildly, and when I talked to her a few days ago she said, "Last year was the worst year of my life. I had so many troubles."

She referred to when George lived in his own apartment and she admitted to all who cared to listen that she loved him and wished he would come back to her.

George came back to her alright, and moved into her house when she was in Paris making a picture. He calmed down considerably, and is now completely off the sarcastic, scornful role that made him so very attractive to the ladies.

In fact, it was that sarcasm that brought about the first break between Gabor and George. She was appearing with him on Tallulah Bankhead's radio show, and the script called for him to make some uncomplimentary crack about wives and home life. It was just a gag, but Zsa Zsa wouldn't stand still for it, even though George carefully explained it was all in fun.

She called me up the day she walked off the Bankhead show and said, "You are a woman with feelings, and you know I am not going to let Zgeorge talk to me the way he talks to other women. It's not dignified."

George was so infuriated with her for quitting the show that he announced that their parting would mean a divorce. But it eventually blew over, and they reconciled.

Now George has a whole new personality so that Zsa Zsa will no longer be unhappy. He plays a suave diplomat in "Call Me Madam" and finds he is just as attractive to the feminine sex without employing his famous bored detached air.

One thing sure, Zsa Zsa will never lack fortune, publicity nor excitement. She was born to it. She isn't exactly what you would call a favorite with women. Men like her better.

Another foreign born girl, Corinne Calvet, is at present suing Zsa Zsa because our glamour girl claimed that Corinne was born in England, that her French accent was "acquired," and that she never saw the light of day in France.

I can't say I know Zsa Zsa as well as some of the other girls about whom I have written. But I do know her well enough to always be amused when she comes to see me. I realize she is often putting on an act for my benefit, but it's one I wouldn't miss.

She did a television show recently called "Bachelor's Haven," and she was so sarcastic with the women guests on the show that the sponsor had trouble getting actresses to go on with her.

But I'll say for Zsa Zsa it was by no means a dull show when she was its star. She put spice into it, and when she returned from Europe, after having had to bow out of "Bachelor's Haven" to make a picture there, she said, "Isn't it too bad that my poor little show has all gone to pieces since I left? They need me, but I don't think I'll go back again."

As I say, this glamour girl puts great value on her personality, appearance and her talent. I wouldn't say that Zsa Zsa's talent is commensurate with her beauty, yet with her flair for clothes and her doll-like loveliness she may become one of our great stars.

Don't forget, Zsa Zsa herself, says: "I have now learned to act and I am good."

And when you have that much confidence in yourself you generally cannot lose, and you get what you go after.

To me, Zsa Zsa Gabor is one of the most exciting women I've ever met on the screen or in private life. She's hard to beat, this girl who can look like an angel while putting a dagger into another glamour girl's back.

Music Night Fete Slated By Church

The second in a series of events will be held tomorrow at 7:30 p. m. in Southminster Presbyterian Church when a "Night of Music" will be presented in the auditorium of the church.

Featured will be piano and organ duets and solos and vocal selections. The piano and organ numbers will be presented by Mrs. H. Vernon Adams and Miss Patty Davis, while Mrs. Raymond Campbell will present the vocal offerings, accompanied by Mrs. Adams.

The program will include "Pomp and Circumstance," Elgar; "The Swan," Saint-Saens; "By the Waters of Minnetonka," Lieurance; "Finlandia," Sibelius; "Ave Maria," Schubert; "In the Garden of Tomorrow," Deppen; "My Task to Do," Jewell; "Sunrise and You," Penn.

"Deep Purple," DeRosa; "Star Dust," Carmichael; "I Hear a Forest Praying," DeRosa; "The Green Cathedral," Hahn; "The Rosary," Nevin; "Bless This House," Taylor; "Andante Cantabile," Tschaikowsky; "Liebestraum," Liszt, and "The Lost Chord" Sullivan.

A medley of songs and a hymn sing will conclude the program. Persons attending may leave requests of numbers they would like played at future recitals.

Prison Sentences Passed Out In Midway Inn Liquor Case

Four prison sentences were handed out in Allegany County Circuit Court Saturday, two of them in the Midway Inn liquor raid case.

Nicholas and Johanna Larro, operators of the McMullen Highway tavern, were found guilty along with three of their employes on charges of illegal sale and possession of alcoholic beverages.

Larro was sentenced to a year in the House of Correction and Mrs. Larro was sent to the Maryland Reformatory for Women, for a term not to exceed a year. These are maximum sentences under the law governing this charge. Larro was also fined $400.

However, Judge George Henderson let off the three employes, Ellsworth Kenealy, H. M. Smith Jr., and Mrs. Francis L. Blauch, on general parole.

The judge was highly critical in his judgment of Attorneys Henry Gassaway Shores of Keyser and Thomas Lohr Richards, this city, in defending these three.

Two prison sentences were meted out in the case of the breaking and entering case of the Pennsylvania Lumber and Post Company building at Narrows Park September 28.

Charles Edward Crawford and Samuel Stephen Crawford, LaVale brothers, and Douglas Lurte Smith of Harrisonburg, Va., pleaded guilty to breaking and entering and larceny.

Charles Crawford was given a one-year suspended term in the House of Correction and placed on parole for three years. He also was fined $100 and given six months in which to pay it.

Samuel Crawford was sentenced to a term of two years in the Maryland State Penitentiary while Smith was sent to the Maryland Reformatory for Males for a period not to exceed one year.

Western Given Suspended Term In Manslaughter

Norman Lee Western, 51-year-old Martinsburg truck driver convicted of manslaughter in the traffic death of a young Fort Hill High School athlete, was given a six-month suspended jail sentence and ordered to pay the cost of the youth's funeral when sentenced by Judge George Henderson Saturday in Circuit Court.

Western was the driver of the tractor-trailer that collided with the car operated by George McGregor, 17, on Oldtown Road July 1. A passenger in the McGregor auto, James J. Turner, 16, of this city, was instantly killed.

In unusual action Judge Henderson said he was going to recommend that the accident be further investigated because of the speed of the McGregor auto.

The car would have to be going much more than 45 miles an hour as McGregor testified, the judge pointed out, to make skid marks for 212 feet as were measured at the wreck.

If he had been going 45 miles per hour, the judge declared, he could have had the auto under control before reaching the tractor-trailer.

In sentencing Western, the judge pointed to the recommendation for mercy for him by the jury that convicted him.

W. Earle Cobey, his attorney, also pointed out he had been a trucker since 1928 and had only one minor traffic violation against his record.

Workers Given Amcelle Awards

John F. Winters, 302 S. Allegany Street, and Earl E. Dawson, Route No. 1, Buffalo Mills, Pa. completed a quarter century of service Saturday at Amcelle. L. Leslie Helmer, plant manager, presented both with gold wrist watches engraved with names, dates and events.

Winters, who is foreman in the Central Auxiliary Department, was awarded the traditional gold 5-star Celanese service emblem and engraved certificate by W. J. Elvin, plant engineer.

He learned his trade with Simpson and Carscaden many years ago. After four years there, he worked with heavy construction companies all over the country. He has held a Maryland Master Plumbers license for the past 15 years. He is a veteran of the 29th Division, 115th Regiment, having served over 32 months, being discharged as a Sergeant. He is married and the father of two children. He is affiliated with the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Dawson is a chargehand in Department No. 6, Cellulose Acetate. Herman Rainalter, Superintendent of Cellulose Acetate, awarded the Celanese emblem and quarter century certificate.

Born in Rawlings, he now lives on a farm about 5 miles above Hyndman, Pa., which he farms in his time off from work at Celanese.

He is the father of six children and has six grand children.

Prior to employment at Amcelle, he worked for seven years as a Baltimore and Ohio brakeman.

Navy Promotes Fort Hill Ex-Principal

Wayne W. Hill, former vice principal of Fort Hill High School, has been promoted to lieutenant commander in the Navy.

Recalled to active duty last June, he is production officer in the Office of the Inspector of Naval Material, Pittsburgh. His duties include administration, progressing and expediting of materials required on Navy contracts let in Western Pennsylvania.

During World War II, Lt. Cmdr. Hill served 30 months aboard the USS Pennsylvania in the Pacific at Saipan, Guam, Gilbert and Marshall Islands, Okinawa and the Philippines.

Lt. Cmdr. Hill also taught science at Garfield Junior High School, Johnstown, and mathematics at the University of Pittsburgh. He is residing in Pittsburgh with his wife and three children.

Costume your personality and you are sure to enchant the black-tie set on any gala night!

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

You may chauffeur yourself hither and yon in an old jalopy, but on any gala night, dressed in the new formal fashions, you're sure to look and feel like the most pampered of the "carriage trade."

Fabrics of the new evening fashions are rich as Fort Knox; adornments are as glittering as Tiffany's Christmas windows and the lines of these lovelies are as luxurious as a millionaire's yacht.

Dressing the Part

But if slaying the stag line is your goal, you must choose your gown for more reason than its splendor. Fashion for fashion's sake is lost on the male but from eight to eighty, the cut-in beaux never miss a unique and captivating personality. If your evening dress captures and distills the special essence of the real you, you'll find yourself dancing 'till dawn with never a moment to rest on the wallflower's bench.

To attain this cachet, make sure you are well-acquainted with your own personality; study the fashions and then, pluck the dress that bespeaks your special charms.

Just such effects were emblazoned in a fashion show, I recently viewed, with sensational results. For your guidance, here are notes on a few of the loveliest gowns presented and the models were matched with them:

On a fragile damsel: A cover-up formal, gray lace over pink irridescent taffeta, with a cuffed-cowl neckline, long tight sleeves and a skirt so wide at the hem that it left a swish in its wake. The effect was as spell-casting as a porcelain princess come to life!

Costuming Ideas

On a sophisticate: A strapless decolletage with "polonnaise" draping swathed across the torso to accent curves and fluffed out into a train in the back the body in yellow, olive and topaz ombre silk and the train in layers of matching net. The effect — potent as champagne from a slipper!

On a dramatic type: A black satin harem skirt, joining a torso smoothed by lace over nude crepe at the hip The effect — sultry as a burning ember!

On a distinguished woman: A slim but fluid sapphire chiffon dinner gown with its strapped decolletage covered by a snug bejewelled jacket. The effect — super elegance!

Follow those ideas—that is what the black-tie set does!

YOUR BEAUTY DIET

No matter what your weight problem — whether you want to gain, lose or remain the same — YOUR BEAUTY DIET will provide you with a sae and sane pattern of laboratory-tested menus that can be followed by the entire family according to each individual's needs. YOUR BEAUTY DIET is a way of eating, not starving, and the tasteful, appetizing meals it contains require no extra planning or preparation! For the booklet, write to Secrets of Charm in care of this newspaper and enclose 10c in coin to help cover cost, plus stamped, self-addressed envelope.

If you leave to chance the grace of your walk, you run the risk of loss of charm.

An awkward walk is a doubly shocking fault—shockingly unfeminine to behold and shockingly destructive to a woman's nervous system.

However, it is not enough merely to learn the mechanics of a beautiful walk—how long a step to take, how to lead with the thigh, flex the knees, posture the body and swing the arms. You must also have control over muscles and joints to accomplish the motions with "free-wheeling" grace or else your knowledge is useless.

Model Walk

Such control is the product of exercise. You may be a terrific athlete, constantly active in sports yet not get the exercise that "oils" to smooth-running perfection the muscles and joints that must synchronize perfectly for a smooth, fluid, graceful walk.

The models who have mastered the art of walking perform one exercise faithfully to keep their prized ability at peak. It takes only minutes, and it's worth these minutes many times over in the beauty it adds to all of your motions every day that you do the exericse. Skip one day and you'll skip some beauty. That's just another way of saying that you gain by performing the exercise every day—right up to the last walk that you ever take! Here's how:

Stand on any hard surface without a rug. With your left side toward the back of a chair, hold onto the chair with your left hand. Place all your weight on the pads of your left foot.

Now, as in peddling a bicycle, move your right leg. Exaggerate to get your knee up level with your chest and as it goes down, to complete the circle, let your heel touch the floor—lightly with a kitten-like tuoch. Repeat five times, leisurely and rhythmically.

Free Wheeling

Then, . extend your right leg straight out, high as it will reach, and rotate your ankle very slowly five turns to the right and five to the left. Alternate both the bicycle and the ankle-turning operations until you've completed the bike routine three times and the ankle pivots twice. Then turn your right side to the chair and give the left leg its share of beauty work.

When you can abandon the chair as a support and perform the whole with absolute freedom, your walk will be free of any awkwardness. You'll have no hip wiggle, head jiggle, shoulder sway; there'll be no sound of clumping, clacking or scuffling in your step. There'll be no rigid nervousness or limp, fatigued look to your carriage.

If there is such a thing as a beauty bargain, this exercise is it. You can't possibly afford to pass it up!

Tomorrow: Balance—your beauty and accident insurance.

YOUR POSTURE

To achieve grace of the highest degree — to make yours the posture ideal — to improve stance, figure, health and the appearance of your clothes as well, read the informative, easy-to-follow booklet "YOUR POSTURE." For a copy write to Secrets of Charm in care of this paper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope and 10c in coin to help cover cost.

Combined Local Choruses To Present Concert Nov. 3

The combined mixed, girls and boys choruses of Fort Hill and Allegany High schools and the Cumberland Choral Society will present a program Monday, November 3, at 8:30 p. m. in Fort Hill High School Auditorium.

Saturday, Sunday and Monday a choral clinic will be conducted for these singers and others who are interested by Dr. Harry Wilson, director of choral music at Columbia University, New York City.

This will be a free public concert sponsored by the Allegany County Board of Education and the choral society. It will mark the first appearance of the society this fall and winter season.

The location and hours of the clinic will be announced later, according to Jack E. Platt, choral society director and supervisor of music for the Board of Education.

The concert program will be as follows:

Combined mixed chorus—"Faith for Today," "Agnus Dei" and "A-Rockin All Night."

Combined boys' high school chorus —"Goodbye Ol' Paint," "Res' My Shoes," "Cool Waters" and "At Parting."

Combined girls high school chorus —"Crawdad Song," "Those Hours With You" and "Music When Soft Voices Die."

Mixed chorus—"Cindy," "Jacob's Ladder," "Paw Paw Patch" and "Peace Must Come Like A Troubador."

There will also be a community sing after intermission.

All of the above numbers have been composed by Dr. Wilson or will be arranged by him for the concert.

Public Service Commissions To Meet On Gas Hike Talks

Both the Maryland and West Virginia Public Service Commissions have set dates to hear applications of the Cumberland & Allegheny Gas Company for a proposed temporary rate increase.

The State PSC will meet November 20 at 10:30 a.m. in its Baltimore offices, while the West Virginia group will convene December 8 in Charleston.

A rate boost, if approved in both states, will not become effective until the commissions agree on the time.

C. E. Nethken, chairman of the (W.Va.) PSC, met Friday night in Mineral County Court House at Keyser with several hundred citizens to discuss the proposed rate hike.

Pointing out that West Virginia has acted to prevent any boost in gas rates for October, he said action was taken as of August 22.

According to the chairman, the commission's engineering and accounting departments will make accurate checks of C&A's records before making a decision. Taken into consideration will be the company's income, costs and depreciation.

Protesting the proposed rate hike are the Mayor and City Council of Piedmont, the City of Keyser and other area municipalities. The commission also has acknowledged a protest from the Mayor and Commissioners of Westernport.

Several thousand residents of the Keyser area have signed petitions in protest to the price increase.

The Mayor and Council of Cumberland and the Allegany County Board of Commissioners have gone on record as opposing the hike.

Rubber Local Aids Luke Paper Union

A ton and a half of food, which had been collected Friday from Kelly-Springfield Tire Company employes, was delivered Saturday to the Union Hall in Westernport for use by members of Luke Local 676, United Paperworkers (CIO), who are on strike at the Luke plant of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company.

William G. Rice, president of Rubberworkers Local 26, said the food was collected from the three shifts Friday as they reported to work. Permission had been granted by the company for the location of a truck in the company's parking lot and the food was placed in the vehicle for transportation to Westernport.

Rice said Kelly employes also donated money, with which additional foodstuff was purchased from a local supermarket. He expressed thanks to his co-workers who donated the food and money and also to the supermarket proprietor, who, he said, also donated food and allowed the stock to be purchased at a discount.

Workers Given Amcelle Awards

John F. Winters, 302 S. Allegany Street, and Earl E. Dawson, Route No. 1, Buffalo Mills, Pa. completed a quarter century of service Saturday at Amcelle. L. Leslie Helmer, plant manager, presented both with gold wrist watches engraved with names, dates and events.

Winters, who is foreman in the Central Auxiliary Department, was awarded the traditional gold 5-star Celanese service emblem and engraved certificate by W. J. Elvin, plant engineer.

He learned his trade with Simpson and Carscaden many years ago. After four years there, he worked with heavy construction companies all over the country. He has held a Maryland Master Plumbers license for the past 15 years. He is a veteran of the 29th Division, 115th Regiment, having served over 32 months, being discharged as a Sergeant. He is married and the father of two children. He is affiliated with the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Dawson is a chargehand in Department No. 6, Cellulose Acetate. Herman Rainalter, Superintendent of Cellulose Acetate, awarded the Celanese emblem and quarter century certificate.

Born in Rawlings, he now lives on a farm about 5 miles above Hyndman, Pa., which he farms in his time off from work at Celanese.

He is the father of six children and has six grand children.

Prior to employment at Amcelle, he worked for seven years as a Baltimore and Ohio brakeman.

Navy Promotes Fort Hill Ex-Principal

Wayne W. Hill, former vice principal of Fort Hill High School, has been promoted to lieutenant commander in the Navy.

Recalled to active duty last June, he is production officer in the Office of the Inspector of Naval Material, Pittsburgh. His duties include administration, progressing and expediting of materials required on Navy contracts let in Western Pennsylvania.

During World War II, Lt. Cmdr. Hill served 30 months aboard the USS Pennsylvania in the Pacific at Saipan, Guam, Gilbert and Marshall Islands, Okinawa and the Philippines.

Lt. Cmdr. Hill also taught science at Garfield Junior High School, Johnstown, and mathematics at the University of Pittsburgh. He is residing in Pittsburgh with his wife and three children.

Costume your personality and you are sure to enchant the black-tie set on any gala night!

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

You may chauffeur yourself hither and yon in an old jalopy, but on any gala night, dressed in the new formal fashions, you're sure to look and feel like the most pampered of the "carriage trade."

Fabrics of the new evening fashions are rich as Fort Knox; adornments are as glittering as Tiffany's Christmas windows and the lines of these lovelies are as luxurious as a millionaire's yacht.

Dressing the Part

But if slaying the stag line is your goal, you must choose your gown for more reason than its splendor. Fashion for fashion's sake is lost on the male but from eight to eighty, the cut-in beaux never miss a unique and captivating personality. If your evening dress captures and distills the special essence of the real you, you'll find yourself dancing 'till dawn with never a moment to rest on the wall-flower's bench.

To attain this cachet, make sure you are well-acquainted with your own personality; study the fashions and then, pluck the dress that bespeaks your special charms.

Just such effects were emblazoned in a fashion show, I recently viewed, with sensational results. For your guidance, here are notes on a few of the loveliest gowns presented and the models were matched with them:

On a fragile damsel: A cover-up formal, gray lace over pink irridescent taffeta, with a cuffed-cowl neckline, long tight sleeves and a skirt so wide at the hem that it left a swish in its wake. The effect was as spell-casting as a porcelain princess come to life!

Costuming Ideas

On a sophisticate: A strapless decolletage with "polonnaise" draping swathed across the torso to accent curves and fluffed out into a train in the back the body in yellow, olive and topaz ombre silk and the train in layers of matching net. The effect — potent as champagne from a slipper!

On a dramatic type: A black satin harem skirt, joining a torso smoothed by lace over nude crepe at the hip The effect — sultry as a burning ember!

On a distinguished woman: A slim but fluid sapphire chiffon dinner gown with its strapped decolletage covered by a snug bejewelled jacket. The effect — super elegance!

Follow those ideas—that is what the black-tie set does!

YOUR BEAUTY DIET

No matter what your weight problem — whether you want to gain, lose or remain the same — YOUR BEAUTY DIET will provide you with a sae and sane pattern of laboratory-tested menus that can be followed by the entire family according to each individual's needs. YOUR BEAUTY DIET is a way of eating, not starving, and the tasteful, appetizing meals it contains require no extra planning or preparation! For the booklet, write to Secrets of Charm in care of this newspaper and enclose 10c in coin to help cover cost, plus stamped, self-addressed envelope.

If you leave to chance the grace of your walk, you run the risk of loss of charm.

An awkward walk is a doubly shocking fault—shockingly unfeminine to behold and shockingly destructive to a woman's nervous system.

However, it is not enough merely to learn the mechanics of a beautiful walk—how long a step to take, how to lead with the thigh, flex the knees, posture the body and swing the arms. You must also have control over muscles and joints to accomplish the motions with "free-wheeling" grace or else your knowledge is useless.

Model Walk

Such control is the product of exercise. You may be a terrific athlete, constantly active in sports yet not get the exercise that "oils" to smooth-running perfection the muscles and joints that must synchronize perfectly for a smooth, fluid, graceful walk.

The models who have mastered the art of walking perform one exercise faithfully to keep their prized ability at peak. It takes only minutes, and it's worth these minutes many times over in the beauty it adds to all of your motions every day that you do the exericse. Skip one day and you'll skip some beauty. That's just another way of saying that you gain by performing the exercise every day—right up to the last walk that you ever take! Here's how:

Stand on any hard surface without a rug. With your left side toward the back of a chair, hold onto the chair with your left hand. Place all your weight on the pads of your left foot.

Now, as in peddling a bicycle, move your right leg. Exaggerate to get your knee up level with your chest and as it goes down, to complete the circle, let your heel touch the floor—lightly with a kitten-like tuoch. Repeat five times, leisurely and rhythmically.

Free Wheeling

Then, . extend your right leg straight out, high as it will reach, and rotate your ankle very slowly five turns to the right and five to the left. Alternate both the bicycle and the ankle-turning operations until you've completed the bike routine three times and the ankle pivots twice. Then turn your right side to the chair and give the left leg its share of beauty work.

When you can abandon the chair as a support and perform the whole with absolute freedom, your walk will be free of any awkwardness. You'll have no hip wiggle, head jiggle, shoulder sway; there'll be no sound of clumping, clacking or scuffling in your step. There'll be no rigid nervousness or limp, fatigued look to your carriage.

If there is such a thing as a beauty bargain, this exercise is it. You can't possibly afford to pass it up!

Tomorrow: Balance—your beauty and accident insurance.

YOUR POSTURE

To achieve grace of the highest degree — to make yours the posture ideal — to improve stance, figure, health and the appearance of your clothes as well, read the informative, easy-to-follow booklet "YOUR POSTURE." For a copy write to Secrets of Charm in care of this paper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope and 10c in coin to help cover cost.

Combined Local Choruses To Present Concert Nov. 3

The combined mixed, girls and boys choruses of Fort Hill and Allegany High schools and the Cumberland Choral Society will present a program Monday, November 3, at 8:30 p. m. in Fort Hill High School Auditorium.

Saturday, Sunday and Monday a choral clinic will be conducted for these singers and others who are interested by Dr. Harry Wilson, director of choral music at Columbia University, New York City.

This will be a free public concert sponsored by the Allegany County Board of Education and the choral society. It will mark the first appearance of the society this fall and winter season.

The location and hours of the clinic will be announced later, according to Jack E. Platt, choral society director and supervisor of music for the Board of Education.

The concert program will be as follows:

Combined boys' high school chorus —"Goodbye Ol' Paint," "Res' My Shoes," "Cool Waters" and "At Parting."

Combined girls high school chorus —"Crawdad Song," "Those Hours With You" and "Music When Soft Voices Die."

Mixed chorus—"Cindy," "Jacob's Ladder," "Paw Paw Patch" and "Peace Must Come Like A Troubador."

There will also be a community sing after intermission.

All of the above numbers have been composed by Dr. Wilson or will be arranged by him for the concert.

Public Service Commissions To Meet On Gas Hike Talks

Both the Maryland and West Virginia Public Service Commissions have set dates to hear applications of the Cumberland & Allegheny Gas Company for a proposed temporary rate increase.

The State PSC will meet November 20 at 10:30 a.m. in its Baltimore offices, while the West Virginia group will convene December 8 in Charleston.

A rate boost, if approved in both states, will not become effective until the commissions agree on the time.

C. E. Nethken, chairman of the (W.Va.) PSC, met Friday night in Mineral County Court House at Keyser with several hundred citizens to discuss the proposed rate hike.

Pointing out that West Virginia has acted to prevent any boost in gas rates for October, he said action was taken as of August 22.

According to the chairman, the commission's engineering and accounting departments will make accurate checks of C&A's records before making a decision. Taken into consideration will be the company's income, costs and depreciation.

Protesting the proposed rate hike are the Mayor and City Council of Piedmont, the City of Keyser and other area municipalities. The commission also has acknowledged a protest from the Mayor and Commissioners of Westernport.

Several thousand residents of the Keyser area have signed petitions in protest to the price increase.

The Mayor and Council of Cumberland and the Allegany County Board of Commissioners have gone on record as opposing the hike.

Rubber Local Aids Luke Paper Union

A ton and a half of food, which had been collected Friday from Kelly-Springfield Tire Company employes, was delivered Saturday to the Union Hall in Westernport for use by members of Luke Local 676, United Paperworkers (CIO), who are on strike at the Luke plant of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company.

William G. Rice, president of Rubberworkers Local 26, said the food was collected from the three shifts Friday as they reported to work. Permission had been granted by the company for the location of a truck in the company's parking lot and the food was placed in the vehicle for transportation to Westernport.

Rice said Kelly employes also donated money, with which additional foodstuff was purchased from a local supermarket. He expressed thanks to his co-workers who donated the food and money and also to the supermarket proprietor, who, he said, also donated food and allowed the stock to be purchased at a discount.

A New Fall Hat

In summertime a man may do with or without a hat—which can keep the sun off the pate or out of the eyes but cannot hold out the heat for long. But when the weather turns cool it is a different matter. On a brisk October morning the owner of a thinning thatch feels the need of a head covering. So he gets out the hat he put away last spring.

This is indubitably a hat, or at least what once passed as such. But it's dusty—and, to be frank about it, dirty. The crown recalls a battered accordion, while the brim goes down too far forward, up too far aft, and is wavy amidships. Fact is, it looks like all its predecessors. To a man who has been hatless all summer it's too distinctive.

So a new hat is in order. It is necessary now to stop in at the haberdasher's and see his stock. Once he knows the size and the color wanted, he can bring out the various styles and weights and grades. All the buyer had to do is look at himself in all these headpieces, make sure that he has the best he can afford, and walk out with the new covering on his head.

Only it's not as simple as it sounds. The hat that is just the right shape is not to be had in the favorite shade. Another meets all the specifications but is a little too hard on the pocketbook. Still another is slightly extreme for a man of years—and that one's too old, dosen't the salesman think?

But eventually the quest ends in success and proudly he wears the new hat home, to be greeted with with acclaim. But it is a sad thought that this glory must soon pass—that before the winter is over the new hat will look exactly like the old one leering at him from the shelf.

Mechanical Heart

Three months after the mechanical heart pinch-hit for a living man's heart, the Journal of the American Medical Association felt justified in printing the story. The 41-year-old is "alive and well" today.

It was back in early July that for nearly an hour the motor-driven device perfected by General Motors engineers took over the work of one side of the natural heart, detouring blood from lungs to arteries. For 14 minutes the surgeons of Harpers Hospital, Detroit, had the patient's heart open, while they repaired a valve left enlarged and leaky after rheumatic fever.

They sewed up the heart, disconnected the machine, sewed up the chest. Change-overs were gradual, not sudden. The man's heart kept beating through it all, whether pumping or not.

Dramatic heart surgery is, of course, nothing new. Heart surgery has been making big strides recently. Mechanical hearts have kept dogs alive with the dogs' own hearts completely removed. But the Detroit achievement with a human being is called a "milestone in medicine."

The possibilities for the extension of human life by use of the invention seem great. For one thing, henceforth it will often be practical to give the heart a rest when it needs a rest.

Conservative in their predictions, the surgeons say it is not yet fully known how much the patient benefited by the operation. It's certain that the science of heart surgery has leaped ahead. At hand is a new tool for the battle against that leading killer — heart disease. Years of research, of teamwork between doctors and engineers, have paid a big dividend.

Draining The Marshes

None of the news from the 19th congress of the Russian Communist party is good. But at least there is nothing to strike fear in free hearts in the disclosure that the Pripet marshes are to be drained and converted into productive farmland.

In fact, it's reassuring to know that some of Russia's energies will go into long-range undertakings to increase the nation's productive resources. Those energies will not be applied to immediate military projects, in any event. And this is a big job.

The plan is to drain an area equal to the combined area of Massachusetts, Connecticut and Delaware. About 8,600 acres of fertile land will be put into cultivation as a result.

The fact that the Russian government has started this project should be of some value to U. S. propagandists in the war of words. The Pripet marshes have been a defense barrier—a vast moat—down the years of Russia history. If the Russians are filling them up and draining them now, they can hardly expect an invasion from that direction.

Is it too much to expect that Russia may discover this is as good a way as there is for a country to satisfy its ambition for better things?

Tank For Tank

While the fighting in Korea recalls all too vividly at times the static trench warfare of World War I, U. S. military strategy is predicated on a "war of movement." Developments which have made practically every piece of military equipment self-propelling, plus the use of the plane as "flying artillery," have made this inevitable.

Terrain, of course, still calls the tune, as it is doing in Korea. But to meet the constant threat of enemy tanks and planes new types of guns have been developed, which have great mobility and range, and new types of ammunition to go along with them. For that reason the United States is not going to be lured into a race to see who can produce the most tanks.

Speaking at Pittsburgh, Gen. "Lightning Joe" Collins, Army chief of staff, said that while the Russians have an enormous pool of 40,000 tanks, the U. S. does not necessarily have to match them. The U. S. has counter-weapons—the 3.5 inch bazooka and recoilless rifle, plus anti-tank ammunition such as shaped charges. The last named is probably the most lethal anti-tank weapon to date.

Don't Shoot A Hunter

Hunting is a hazardous sport and during the oncoming season we can anticipate a terrific slaughter, not only of animals and birds but of man. In this respect the sport is not as one-sided as our animal lovers believe.

Most of the adverse publicity on the perils of hunting is concerned with those shot accidentally or hit by stray bullets. Mention rarely is made of the number who die in the field from heart attacks. The physical condition of the majority does not warrant overexertion; many are middle aged men who lead a sedentary life for 51 weeks of the year and then overtax their body with one week of sudden strain. They would not walk a block in the city but think nothing of going 10 miles while stalking thru thick underbrush or climbing steep hills. These chaps have a porter carry their baggage to and from the train but in the wilderness will drag a 200 pound deer a half mile or more to the road. It is little wonder that deaths from heart disease outnumber accidental killings.

Statistics do not include those who develop trouble on the way home or two days after the hunting expedition is over. The old ticker suffers because hunting is exciting and most men are not aware that under this type of strain and suspense the rate increases. The organ pumps as hard as it does while going thru a business crisis and continues at this pace periodically thruout the day when hunting becomes intense.

This does not mean that the sport is taboo or fit only for those who are accustomed to vigorous living. By using good judgment, it is possible for the business or professional to have his cake and eat it too. There is no sense in disregarding breathlessness, dizziness, chest pain, or irregular heart beat. The same can be said if vague digestive disturbances appear or the ankles swell. This is no time to be heedless, brave, or martyr-like about such symptoms. These warning signals should be interpreted as signs to slow down or quit entirely. Furthermore, it is not advisable to add insult to injury by proceeding when utterly exhausted. The average hunter is in no physical condition to stand such strain.

In deer or antelope hunting, the life of the most seasoned hunter is endangered because he never knows what the other fellow is likely to do. Much of the trouble stems from the fact that the average person is careless when handling a gun. He may be familiar with all the rules and regulations but a slight slip may prove fatal to someone. The importance of removing shells from a gun when riding in a car, walking along the road, or crawling under a fence has been stressed so often it should become a reflex movement of every hunter. Yet we read every year of mishaps resulting from this misdemeanor. Wearing a red hat and coat affords some protection but all too many hunters still shoot at anything that moves regardless of color. We no longer need to hunt to live so let us relax and enjoy the sport to live longer.

WEIGHT AND THE ARTERIES

P. L. writes: Can a thin person develop hardening of the arteries?

REPLY

Yes. But overweight is thought to encourage the process. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on arteriosclerosis.

HEAD SHAKING

M. W. writes: Ever since I had the grippe my head shakes and I can't sleep at night. What could be the cause?

REPLY

There are a number of possibilities, including Parkinsonism. A disturbance of this nature should be taken to your family physician.

PRESSURE AND WEIGHT

G. T. writes: Does low blood pressure cause overweight?

REPLY

No, there is no relationship between the two conditions. In contrast, high blood pressure often is associated with obesity; one is thought to aggravate the other.

MIDDLE EAR

B. W. writes: What is meant by inner ear trouble?

REPLY

The inner ear lies just beyond the drum and is connected to the back of the throat via the Eustachian tube. It is through this passageway that bacteria enter, to produce abscesses and other inflammatory conditions. Unless such disorders are treated promptly, ruptured ear drum or mastoiditis may result.

FLABBY FLESH

Mrs. T. writes: What can be done about flabby flesh after reducing?

REPLY

Shrinkage usually occurs unless the condition is extreme. In these circumstances, monstrous folds hanging from the upper arms, stomach, back, and legs must be removed surgically.

FOOT BATH

W. N. writes: Is soaking the feet in Epsom salts good for a day old sprain?

REPLY

Yes, if the water is warm. Heat is the most important ingredient in this treatment.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Dewey Would Be Secretary Of State In Ike's Cabinet, Harriman In Stevenson's; Adlai Would Choose Some Truman Appointees

WASHINGTON—Here is a rough idea as to how the cabinets of the two Presidential candidates will stack up if elected:

The Eisenhower Cabinet

Secretary of State—Thomas E. Dewey. The governor of New York went around the world to get up to date on foreign affairs, has been conferring with Acheson on foreign policy and has his heart set on this post. Since he was the best brain in putting across the general's nomination, he will probably get his reward.

Secretary of the Treasury—Winthrop Aldrich of the Chase National Bank. Brother-in-law of John D. Rockefeller and a power in GOP politics, Aldrich has been one of the key men behind Ike.

Secretary of Defense—Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge. The original Eisenhower campaign manager, Lodge faces likely defeat in his Massachusetts race for re-election. He served in the Army and on the Senate Armed Services Committee.

Attorney General — Gov. Earl Warren of California.

Secretary of Agriculture — Sen. Frank Carlson of Kansas, now one of Eisenhower's closest advisers.

Secretary of the Interior—Gov. Dan Thornton of Colorado; helped lead the fight at Chicago for Eisenhower's nomination.

Secretary of Commerce — Sen. James Duff of Pennsylvania, one of the earliest Eisenhower supporters.

Secretary of Labor — Ex-Gov. Harold Stassen of Minnesota; wrote Eisenhower's Labor Day speech.

Postmaster General — Arthur Summerfield, now chairman of the Republican National Committee.

The Stevenson Cabinet

Secretary of State—Averell Harriman, former ambassador to Great Britain and Mutual Security administrator. Harriman's withdrawal from the race at Chicago insured Stevenson's nomination, and he could probably have the important State Department post if he wanted it. If not, William Fulbright of Arkansas, one of the Senate's best brains on foreign affairs, would have second call.

Secretary of the Treasury — Dwight Palmer, head of the General Cable Co., one of the big businessmen vigorously behind Stevenson.

Secretary of Defense—Tom Finletter, a Wall Street attorney now secretary for Air.

Attorney General—Senator Kefauver of Tennessee.

Secretary of Agriculture — Some Stevenson advisers have suggested Milton Eisenhower, brother of the general, who served with Stevenson in the Agriculture Department under Henry Wallace. Milton also served under Secretary of Agriculture Clinton Anderson. A more likely possibility is Roy Turner, former governor of Oklahoma.

Secretary of the Interior—Oscar Chapman of Colorado or Sen. Joseph O'Mahoney of Wyoming.

Secretary of Commerce — Phil Wrigley, the chewing-gum king of Chicago, a Republican who has been a personal friend of Stevenson's.

Secretary of Labor — Wayne Morse, GOP senator from Oregon.

Postmaster General — Stephen Mitchell, chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

Independent Auto Dealers

The Ford Motor Company campaign to collect from every dealer for the Republican campaign fund is continuing throughout the nation but is having rough sledding with at least a few Democrats.

Most Democratic Ford dealers have kicked in for fear of incurring disfavor with Detroit. But in Cedar Falls and Hudson, Iowa, Henry Stoko and David Keith were exceptions.

Several days ago Emil Wheeler of the Wheeler Motor Company in Waterloo, one of the top Ford dealers in Iowa telephoned David Keith of Hudson, together with other dealers, to inform them that a meeting had been held at Des Moines where it was decided the larger Ford dealers should pony up $1,000 each to the Republican National Committee and the smaller dealers $200.

Wheeler made it clear that this campaign contribution was related to the future allotments of Ford cars. In brief, a dealer who did not contribute might not get sufficient allotments in the future.

In Cedar Falls, however, the firm of Weisbord and Stoko split. Frank Weisbord is a Republican and paid $200, but Henry Stoko, a Democrat, refused. He said that Ford could go jump in the Mississippi River as far as he was concerned. Also, David Keith of Hudson replied: "You're not getting any money from me."

Note—In 1948, 18 Ford and General Motors dealers were convicted in Michigan for violation of the Corrupt Practices Act when Arthur Summerfield, now chairman of the Republican National Committee, put across political assessments with auto dealers.

Buckshot Contributions

It's against the law to contribute over $5,000 to a political campaign, but the big-money boys have a neat way of getting around the legal limit. They scatter their contributions like buckshot.

For example, here is how the Rockefeller family has recently donated to Republican campaign funds.

John D. himself contributed $3,000 each to the Republican National Committee, GOP Senate Campaign Committee, GOP House Campaign Committee and United Republican Committee of New York—making a total of $12,000.

Each member of the family followed suit with duplicate contributions to the same committees — $12,000 apiece from his wife Martha and his sons, John D. III, Laurence, David, Winthrop and Nelson. Laurence's wife, Mary, also threw in an additional $1,000 check to the New York fund.

In other words, each of the Rockefellers has already contributed over the $5,000 limit to the 1952 campaign.

The Federal Corrupt Practices Act declares that "whoever, directly or indirectly, makes contributions in an aggregate amount in excess of $5,000 during any calendar year, or in connection with any campaign for nomination or election, to or on behalf of any candidate for an elective federal office, including the offices of President of the United States and Presidential and vice presidential electors, or to or on behalf of any committee or other organization engaged in furthering, advancing or advocating the nomination or election of any candidate for any such office or the success of any national political party, shall be fined not more than $5,000 or imprisoned not more than five years, or both."

Some lawyers argue that the term "any committee or other organization" entitles a contributor to make a maximum contribution of $5,000 each to as many different political committees as he wishes.

In any case, neither political party is likely to challenge the loophole, since contributors on both sides of the political fence have been using the same dodge.

Note—Other big names showing up on several different GOP contributors' lists include Harold S. Vanderbilt, Richard K. Mellon and Paul Mellon.

New Inventions

By ROGER W. BABSON

NEW YORK CITY — Electronic developments may largely counteract the evils of inflation. In fact, they may cause the value of the dollar to increase for awhile. I feel so strongly about the importance of new inventions that I keep, at my own expense, two full-time experts at the Patent Office in Washington to watch for revolutionary discoveries.

What Electronics Are Doing

Newer forms of electronic equipment are helping business and industry to operate faster, more accurately, and at lower cost. Electrical computers, recording oscillographs, mass spectrometers, electron diffraction cameras, electron microscopes, strain measuring equipment, and the complex analytical instruments used in the oil and chemical industries are accomplished feats. Electronic perceiving, memorizing, calculating, and concluding mechanisms will be widely used to see and act far beyond man's physical powers.

Engineers have developed automatic electronic equipment which reduces by at least 50 per cent the time required to make color plates for printing. This reduces costs, saves time, and assures high-quality color reproduction. The telephone and telegraph companies and the railroads have already made very important savings in time, labor, and equipment through the use of electronic mechanisms and devices. The air lines and the military forces have found them invaluable. Only the bus companies lag in the procession of progress.

Now Saving Time And Labor

An electronic inventory control system will accomplish, in a matter of days, what ordinarily takes scores of people a period of several weeks. In the field of medicine the electron microscope, which magnifies more than 350,000 diameters, is bringing to light much new information regarding viruses, bacteria, cells and tissues. There is also electronic equipment for the inspection of medicines, as well as of food and beverages, which will prove big labor and time savers.

I am told a large insurance company will displace 1,000 women with new electronic equipment. All the above will be greatly hastened by the new "transistor," a tiny device using a germanium crystal which will replace present tubes. This should greatly reduce the cost and size of electronic machines.

Great Changes Possible

Biologists believe that a primary purpose of food is to develop electronic waves in the body which directly stimulate our nerves, brains, and blood; while indirectly stimulating our hearts, stomachs, and other organs. Hence, these questions arise: (1) Instead of heating the air in our homes and offices in winter, why not, electronically, merely heat our bodies? This might eliminate present heating systems and the use of fuel. (2) Could not the necessary food consumption be radically cut by treating, electronically, the food we eat either before or while eating?

Homes may have something about the size of a small radio with push buttons. Push No. 1, and all those in the room will laugh; push No. 2, and they will all cry; push No. 3, and they will all enjoy beautiful music, but without a sound in the room; push No. 4, and their thinking powers and memories will quickly be stimulated so that they can answer questions like the "Quiz Kids."

Physical Check Ups

Having watched the progress of the Electronic Medical Foundation, located at 2452 Van Ness Avenue, San Francisco, Calif., I recently sent them a small sample of my blood to be electronically studied. It seems fantastic, but their diagnosis corresponds very closely with the "check up" which my physician gave me after the use of various machines and the consuming of considerable time. I surly would not recommend such electronic tests as a substitute for present medical diagnoses; but they may become of valuable assistance and have definite curative powers.

Surely tremendous material advances are ahead. It is most important that our grandchildren develop spiritually at the same rate.

Matter Of Fact

By JOSEPH AND STEWART ALSOP

Money

WASHINGTON

Despite their very grave national significance, there are two facts which are rarely mentioned by any candidate, simply because it is in no candidate's interests to mention them. The first is that the Hatch Act, with its unrealistic limitation on campaign expenditures, makes legal liars out of all major candidates. The second is that both major parties are now most dangerously dependent on large contributions from a tiny, wealthy minority of the total American electorate.

These facts suggest why a little noticed experiment by Beardsley Ruml, Democratic finance chairman and a brilliant idea man, may have a lasting effect on the future of American politics, whatever happens on November 4. Ruml's idea, like most good ideas, was simple enough.

He caused to be printed some 2,000,000 booklets, each containing five "certificates." These certificates, each with a polite handwritten thank you note from Adlai Stevenson printed on it, cost $5 apiece. The country, according to Ruml's idea, was to be blanketed with 10-man teams, each team member with a book of five certificates to sell. Ruml's notion was that many people would be willing to contribute to the Stevenson campaign, if this was made easy and convenient, and if the sum was small.

Sure It Can Be Done

The results, Ruml says, have been spotty in places, but on the whole better than he dared hope. In retrospect, Ruml thinks he should have started earlier, and that he should have set aside more money for promotion. Even so, he still hopes for a ".400 batting average." This would mean about $2.4 million for the Democratic war chest. It would also mean some 800,000 voters with a personal stake in the campaign. And under any circumstances, Ruml believes that he has already proved that "the thing can be done." If Ruml is right—if very large sums can indeed be collected from very small contributors—there is one way to indicate the importance of this development. This is to cast the mind back to the campaign of 1948, when the Democratic coffers were wholly empty, until Louis Johnson was called in to labor in the financial vineyards.

Johnson himself, who was disastrously rewarded with the secretaryship of Defense for these labors, was one of Truman's worst ensuing troubles. But there have been others, less conspicuous, including some rather nauseating diplomatic appointments, and certain concessions to special interest groups which need not otherwise have been made.

If it were not for the Ruml five dollar scheme, Adlai Stevenson would face the same dilemma as Truman faced in 1948. Collections from big contributors to the Democratic party have, to be sure, been higher than in that year but at the same time, campaign expenses have almost doubled, thanks in part to the hideous cost of national television hookups. Even the Eisenhower campaign managers have had their anxious moment. One of the things that worried them most, in the early days before Gen. Eisenhower's peace pact with Sen. Robert A. Taft, was that the former Taft supporters at first showed a tendency to keep their check books firmly closed.

Should Be Rewritten

The Presidential candidacies are only part of the story, moreover. A closely contested campaign for a seat even in the lower house may run as high as half a million dollars. It is safe to say that not a single senator in either party, in any fairly close state, has obeyed the spirit of the laws governing campaign expenditures.

Obviously these laws, including the Hatch Act, should be rewritten to conform with the political realities. But this will not overcome the fact that the generosity of rich men is not always disinterested. Ruml himself divides contributors into three categories: "White"—those who really expect nothing in return; "Gray"—those who have a hankering for an ambassadorship or other post of honor, but expect no flat commitment; and "Black"—those who expect a flat (and profitable) commitment from the future administration.

Ruml shows all would-be "black" contributors to the door, and he lets "gray" contributors know in no uncertain terms that they should expect no quid pro quo. Presumably the Eisenhower managers do the same thing. Yet the whole system is deeply unhealthy all the same, as is suggested by the way many officers of large companies now make a practice of contributing to both parties. These contributions are regarded essentially as simple business investments, from which a reasonable return in the form of a sympathetic ear in the new administration is expected.

The Ruml scheme is no cure for this unhealthy situation, simply because five dollar contributions cannot possibly cover the whole tremendous cost of a modern campaign. But, until a real cure is found—perhaps the limited underwriting of campaign expenditures by the federal government—Ruml's method of tapping the small contributors may at least prove to be a long step in the right direction.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Confused Minds

Clifford Odets is one of the most famous of American playwrights and has been accepted as an intelligent, imaginative person. Therefore it is expected that when he becomes active in a public movement, he has read the literature on the subject, has reached a conclusion based upon study, judgment and soul-searching. Certainly a man of Mr. Odets intellectual attainments had heard of Marx, Engels, Lenin, Stalin, Trotzky. Yet, this is what Clifford Odets said before the House Committee on Un-American Activities:

"...I had no sense of the Soviet Union as a country opposed to our interests; it never occurred to me to think of the Soviet Union that way. I thought of the Soviet Union, then as a country of extra-ordinary theater, of extraordinary literary figures, and any greeting or relationship that I might in those days have made with that large country would be in relation to my particular field of theater, the theater, and theater literature. But I must point out that in those days not only my self but no one had a sense, or very few people had a sense of the Soviet Union as a country opposed to our interests anyway. I think it was during that time that we began to recognize the Soviet Union, began to move into a kind of amnesty with that country, in terms of trade, for instance."

The period he is referring to is 1937, four years after the United States had recognized Soviet Russia; three years after the Harold Ware Communist cell was organized among intellectuals.

Further, Odets said:

"Well, my opinion is that the Communist party is interested in preserving itself as a minority political party. I believe, sir, that that is their right under the United States Constitution. I do not think that their essential purpose is the preservation of the Constitution. I think they want to bring about some sort of social disorder. I find some of their practices reprehensible. I am against secrecy in any political party. I would not advocate the Communist party for anyone to join because of their secrecy. One of the elements that made me leave the Communist party was secrecy.."

The sequence of this statement is, of course, not logical. What makes the Communist party reprehensible is not that it is a secret organization, which it is not, but that it advocates a wicked doctrine, Marxism, that can do infinite damage to our civilization. For instance, Lenin wrote:

"The dictatorship of the proletariat is the fiercest, most acute and most merciless war of the ..new class against the more powerful enemy, against the bourgeoisie, whose resistance is increased tenfold by its overthrow" that "the dictatorship of the proletariat as a persistent struggle—sanguinary and bloodless, violent and peaceful, military and economic, educational and administrative, against the forces and traditions of the old society."

I quote from Odets and Lenin for the purpose of showing the former's confusion.

There was no doubt in the mind of the Russian as to what he wished to do to and with our American society. He wished to destroy it. He wished to replace it by a system of his own choosing. Stalin emphasized Lenin's views in these words:

"The victory of the dictatorship of the proletariat signifies the suppression of the bourgeoiisie, the break-up of the state machinery and the displacement of bourgeois democracy by proletarian democracy. That is clear...

Now all this was written before May 1952 when Odets testified. Stalin wrote in 1924 quoting Lenin. One would imagine that an intellectual like Odets, once a party member, would know the Communist program, would have read the fundamental literature of this revolutionary force.

There are those who doubt that the Communists seek to destroy the Government of the United States and the civilization which our people have developed on this continent. Yet, the program of the Communists is publicly blueprinted in the writings of Lenin and Stalin and in the decisions of the party in Russia, at such a congress as has recently taken place in Moscow.

The blueprints are clear and have always been available to those who want to read and study them. Those who criticize Senator Joe McCarthy or the work of the McCarran Committee fail to recognize the peril to this country in this international conspiracy to destroy it.

A New Fall Hat

In summertime a man may do with or without a hat—which can keep the sun off the pate or out of the eyes but cannot hold out the heat for long. But when the weather turns cool it is a different matter. On a brisk October morning the owner of a thinning thatch feels the need of a head covering. So he gets out the hat he put away last spring.

This is indubitably a hat, or at least what once passed as such. But it's dusty—and, to be frank about it, dirty. The crown recalls a battered accordion, while the brim goes down too far forward, up too far aft, and is wavy amidships. Fact is, it looks like all its predecessors. To a man who has been hatless all summer it's too distinctive.

So a new hat is in order. It is necessary now to stop in at the haberdasher's and see his stock. Once he knows the size and the color wanted, he can bring out the various styles and weights and grades. All the buyer had to do is look at himself in all these headpieces, make sure that he has the best he can afford, and walk out with the new covering on his head.

Only it's not as simple as it sounds. The hat that is just the right shape is not to be had in the favorite shade. Another meets all the specifications but is a little too hard on the pocketbook. Still another is slightly extreme for a man of years—and that one's too old, dosen't the salesman think?

But eventually the quest ends in success and proudly he wears the new hat home, to be greeted with with acclaim. But it is a sad thought that this glory must soon pass—that before the winter is over the new hat will look exactly like the old one leering at him from the shelf.

Mechanical Heart

Three months after the mechanical heart pinch-hit for a living man's heart, the Journal of the American Medical Association felt justified in printing the story. The 41-year-old is "alive and well" today.

It was back in early July that for nearly an hour the motor-driven device perfected by General Motors engineers took over the work of one side of the natural heart, detouring blood from lungs to arteries. For 14 minutes the surgeons of Harpers Hospital, Detroit, had the patient's heart open, while they repaired a valve left enlarged and leaky after rheumatic fever.

They sewed up the heart, disconnected the machine, sewed up the chest. Change-overs were gradual, not sudden. The man's heart kept beating through it all, whether pumping or not.

Dramatic heart surgery is, of course, nothing new. Heart surgery has been making big strides recently. Mechanical hearts have kept dogs alive with the dogs' own hearts completely removed. But the Detroit achievement with a human being is called a "milestone in medicine."

The possibilities for the extension of human life by use of the invention seem great. For one thing, henceforth it will often be practical to give the heart a rest when it needs a rest.

Conservative in their predictions, the surgeons say it is not yet fully known how much the patient benefited by the operation. It's certain that the science of heart surgery has leaped ahead. At hand is a new tool for the battle against that leading killer — heart disease. Years of research, of teamwork between doctors and engineers, have paid a big dividend.

Draining The Marshes

None of the news from the 19th congress of the Russian Communist party is good. But at least there is nothing to strike fear in free hearts in the disclosure that the Pripet marshes are to be drained and converted into productive farmland.

In fact, it's reassuring to know that some of Russia's energies will go into long-range undertakings to increase the nation's productive resources. Those energies will not be applied to immediate military projects, in any event. And this is a big job.

The plan is to drain an area equal to the combined area of Massachusetts, Connecticut and Delaware. About 8,600 acres of fertile land will be put into cultivation as a result.

The fact that the Russian government has started this project should be of some value to U. S. propagandists in the war of words. The Pripet marshes have been a defense barrier—a vast moat—down the years of Russia history. If the Russians are filling them up and draining them now, they can hardly expect an invasion from that direction.

Is it too much to expect that Russia may discover this is as good a way as there is for a country to satisfy its ambition for better things?

Tank For Tank

While the fighting in Korea recalls all too vividly at times the static trench warfare of World War I, U. S. military strategy is predicated on a "war of movement." Developments which have made practically every piece of military equipment self-propelling, plus the use of the plane as "flying artillery," have made this inevitable.

Terrain, of course, still calls the tune, as it is doing in Korea. But to meet the constant threat of enemy tanks and planes new types of guns have been developed, which have great mobility and range, and new types of ammunition to go along with them. For that reason the United States is not going to be lured into a race to see who can produce the most tanks.

Speaking at Pittsburgh, Gen. "Lightning Joe" Collins, Army chief of staff, said that while the Russians have an enormous pool of 40,000 tanks, the U. S. does not necessarily have to match them. The U. S. has counter-weapons—the 3.5 inch bazooka and recoilless rifle, plus anti-tank ammunition such as shaped charges. The last named is probably the most lethal anti-tank weapon to date.

Don't Shoot A Hunter

Hunting is a hazardous sport and during the oncoming season we can anticipate a terrific slaughter, not only of animals and birds but of man. In this respect the sport is not as one-sided as our animal lovers believe.

Most of the adverse publicity on the perils of hunting is concerned with those shot accidentally or hit by stray bullets. Mention rarely is made of the number who die in the field from heart attacks. The physical condition of the majority does not warrant overexertion; many are middle aged men who lead a sedentary life for 51 weeks of the year and then overtax their body with one week of sudden strain. They would not walk a block in the city but think nothing of going 10 miles while stalking thru thick underbrush or climbing steep hills. These chaps have a porter carry their baggage to and from the train but in the wilderness will drag a 200 pound deer a half mile or more to the road. It is little wonder that deaths from heart disease outnumber accidental killings.

Statistics do not include those who develop trouble on the way home or two days after the hunting expedition is over. The old ticker suffers because hunting is exciting and most men are not aware that under this type of strain and suspense the rate increases. The organ pumps as hard as it does while going thru a business crisis and continues at this pace periodically thruout the day when hunting becomes intense.

This does not mean that the sport is taboo or fit only for those who are accustomed to vigorous living. By using good judgment, it is possible for the business or professional to have his cake and eat it too. There is no sense in disregarding breathlessness, dizziness, chest pain, or irregular heart beat. The same can be said if vague digestive disturbances appear or the ankles swell. This is no time to be heedless, brave, or martyr-like about such symptoms. These warning signals should be interpreted as signs to slow down or quit entirely. Furthermore, it is not advisable to add insult to injury by proceeding when utterly exhausted. The average hunter is in no physical condition to stand such strain.

In deer or antelope hunting, the life of the most seasoned hunter is endangered because he never knows what the other fellow is likely to do. Much of the trouble stems from the fact that the average person is careless when handling a gun. He may be familiar with all the rules and regulations but a slight slip may prove fatal to someone. The importance of removing shells from a gun when riding in a car, walking along the road, or crawling under a fence has been stressed so often it should become a reflex movement of every hunter. Yet we read every year of mishaps resulting from this misdemeanor. Wearing a red hat and coat affords some protection but all too many hunters still shoot at anything that moves regardless of color. We no longer need to hunt to live so let us relax and enjoy the sport to live longer.

WEIGHT AND THE ARTERIES

P. L. writes: Can a thin person develop hardening of the arteries?

REPLY

Yes. But overweight is thought to encourage the process. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on arteriosclerosis.

HEAD SHAKING

M. W. writes: Ever since I had the grippe my head shakes and I can't sleep at night. What could be the cause?

REPLY

There are a number of possibilities, including Parkinsonism. A disturbance of this nature should be taken to your family physician.

PRESSURE AND WEIGHT

G. T. writes: Does low blood pressure cause overweight?

REPLY

No, there is no relationship between the two conditions. In contrast, high blood pressure often is associated with obesity; one is thought to aggravate the other.

MIDDLE EAR

B. W. writes: What is meant by inner ear trouble?

REPLY

The inner ear lies just beyond the drum and is connected to the back of the throat via the Eustachian tube. It is through this passageway that bacteria enter, to produce abscesses and other inflammatory conditions. Unless such disorders are treated promptly, ruptured ear drum or mastoiditis may result.

FLABBY FLESH

Mrs. T. writes: What can be done about flabby flesh after reducing?

REPLY

Shrinkage usually occurs unless the condition is extreme. In these circumstances, monstrous folds hanging from the upper arms, stomach, back, and legs must be removed surgically.

FOOT BATH

W. N. writes: Is soaking the feet in Epsom salts good for a day old sprain?

REPLY

Yes, if the water is warm. Heat is the most important ingredient in this treatment.

Dewey Would Be Secretary Of State In Ike's Cabinet, Harriman In Stevenson's; Adlai Would Choose Some Truman Appointees

WASHINGTON—Here is a rough idea as to how the cabinets of the two Presidential candidates will stack up if elected:

The Eisenhower Cabinet

Secretary of State—Thomas E. Dewey. The governor of New York went around the world to get up to date on foreign affairs, has been conferring with Acheson on foreign policy and has his heart set on this post. Since he was the best brain in putting across the general's nomination, he will probably get his reward.

Secretary of the Treasury—Winthrop Aldrich of the Chase National Bank. Brother-in-law of John D. Rockefeller and a power in GOP politics, Aldrich has been one of the key men behind Ike.

Secretary of Defense—Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge. The original Eisenhower campaign manager, Lodge faces likely defeat in his Massachusetts race for re-election. He served in the Army and on the Senate Armed Services Committee.

Attorney General — Gov. Earl Warren of California.

Secretary of Agriculture — Sen. Frank Carlson of Kansas, now one of Eisenhower's closest advisers.

Secretary of the Interior—Gov. Dan Thornton of Colorado; helped lead the fight at Chicago for Eisenhower's nomination.

Secretary of Commerce — Sen. James Duff of Pennsylvania, one of the earliest Eisenhower supporters.

Secretary of Labor — Ex-Gov. Harold Stassen of Minnesota; wrote Eisenhower's Labor Day speech.

The Stevenson Cabinet

Secretary of State—Averell Harriman, former ambassador to Great Britain and Mutual Security administrator. Harriman's withdrawal from the race at Chicago insured Stevenson's nomination, and he could probably have the important State Department post if he wanted it. If not, William Fulbright of Arkansas, one of the Senate's best brains on foreign affairs, would have second call.

Secretary of the Treasury — Dwight Palmer, head of the General Cable Co., one of the big businessmen vigorously behind Stevenson.

Secretary of Defense—Tom Finletter, a Wall Street attorney now secretary for Air.

Attorney General—Senator Kefauver of Tennessee.

Secretary of Agriculture — Some Stevenson advisers have suggested Milton Eisenhower, brother of the general, who served with Stevenson in the Agriculture Department under Henry Wallace. Milton also served under Secretary of Agriculture Clinton Anderson. A more likely possibility is Roy Turner, former governor of Oklahoma.

Secretary of the Interior—Oscar Chapman of Colorado or Sen. Joseph O'Mahoney of Wyoming.

Secretary of Commerce — Phil Wrigley, the chewing-gum king of Chicago, a Republican who has been a personal friend of Stevenson's.

Secretary of Labor — Wayne Morse, GOP senator from Oregon.

Postmaster General — Stephen Mitchell, chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

Independent Auto Dealers

The Ford Motor Company campaign to collect from every dealer for the Republican campaign fund is continuing throughout the nation but is having rough sledding with at least a few Democrats.

Most Democratic Ford dealers have kicked in for fear of incurring disfavor with Detroit. But in Cedar Falls and Hudson, Iowa, Henry Stoko and David Keith were exceptions.

Several days ago Emil Wheeler of the Wheeler Motor Company in Waterloo, one of the top Ford dealers in Iowa telephoned David Keith of Hudson, together with other dealers, to inform them that a meeting had been held at Des Moines where it was decided the larger Ford dealers should pony up $1,000 each to the Republican National Committee and the smaller dealers $200.

Wheeler made it clear that this campaign contribution was related to the future allotments of Ford cars. In brief, a dealer who did not contribute might not get sufficient allotments in the future.

In Cedar Falls, however, the firm of Weisbord and Stoko split. Frank Weisbord is a Republican and paid $200, but Henry Stoko, a Democrat, refused. He said that Ford could go jump in the Mississippi River as far as he was concerned. Also, David Keith of Hudson replied: "You're not getting any money from me."

Note—In 1948, 18 Ford and General Motors dealers were convicted in Michigan for violation of the Corrupt Practices Act when Arthur Summerfield, now chairman of the Republican National Committee, put across political assessments with auto dealers.

Buckshot Contributions

It's against the law to contribute over $5,000 to a political campaign, but the big-money boys have a neat way of getting around the legal limit. They scatter their contributions like buckshot.

For example, here is how the Rockefeller family has recently donated to Republican campaign funds.

John D. himself contributed $3,000 each to the Republican National Committee, GOP Senate Campaign Committee, GOP House Campaign Committee and United Republican Committee of New York —making a total of $12,000.

Each member of the family followed suit with duplicate contributions to the same committees — $12,000 apiece from his wife Martha and his sons, John D. III, Laurence, David, Winthrop and Nelson. Laurence's wife, Mary, also threw in an additional $1,000 check to the New York fund.

In other words, each of the Rockefellers has already contributed over the $5,000 limit to the 1952 campaign.

The Federal Corrupt Practices Act declares that "whoever, directly or indirectly, makes contributions in an aggregate amount in excess of $5,000 during any calendar year, or in connection with any campaign for nomination or election, to or on behalf of any candidate for an elective federal office, including the offices of President of the United States and Presidential and vice presidential electors, or to or on behalf of any committee or other organization engaged in furthering, advancing or advocating the nomination or election of any candidate for any such office or the success of any national political party, shall be fined not more than $5,000 or imprisoned not more than five years, or both."

Some lawyers argue that the term "any committee or other organization" entitles a contributor to make a maximum contribution of $5,000 each to as many different political committees as he wishes.

In any case, neither political party is likely to challenge the loophole, since contributors on both sides of the political fence have been using the same dodge.

Note—Other big names showing up on several different GOP contributors' lists include Harold S. Vanderbilt, Richard K. Mellon and Paul Mellon.

New Inventions

By ROGER W. BABSON

NEW YORK CITY — Electronic developments may largely counteract the evils of inflation. In fact, they may cause the value of the dollar to increase for awhile. I feel so strongly about the importance of new inventions that I keep, at my own expense, two full-time experts at the Patent Office in Washington to watch for revolutionary discoveries.

What Electronics Are Doing

Newer forms of electronic equipment are helping business and industry to operate faster, more accurately, and at lower cost. Electrical computers, recording oscillographs, mass spectrometers, electron diffraction cameras, electron microscopes, strain measuring equipment, and the complex analytical instruments used in the oil and chemical industries are accomplished feats. Electronic perceiving, memorizing, calculating, and concluding mechanisms will be widely used to see and act far beyond man's physical powers.

Engineers have developed automatic electronic equipment which reduces by at least 50 per cent the time required to make color plates for printing. This reduces costs, saves time, and assures high-quality color reproduction. The telephone and telegraph companies and the railroads have already made very important savings in time, labor, and equipment through the use of electronic mechanisms and devices. The air lines and the military forces have found them invaluable. Only the bus companies lag in the procession of progress.

Now Saving Time And Labor

An electronic inventory control system will accomplish, in a matter of days, what ordinarily takes scores of people a period of several weeks. In the field of medicine the electron microscope, which magnifies more than 350,000 diameters, is bringing to light much new information regarding viruses, bacteria, cells and tissues. There is also electronic equipment for the inspection of medicines, as well as of food and beverages, which will prove big labor and time savers.

I am told a large insurance company will displace 1,000 women with new electronic equipment. All the above will be greatly hastened by the new "transistor," a tiny device using a germanium crystal which will replace present tubes. This should greatly reduce the cost and size of electronic machines.

Great Changes Possible

Biologists believe that a primary purpose of food is to develop electronic waves in the body which directly stimulate our nerves, brains, and blood; while indirectly stimulating our hearts, stomachs, and other organs. Hence, these questions arise: (1) Instead of heating the air in our homes and offices in winter, why not, electronically, merely heat our bodies? This might eliminate present heating systems and the use of fuel. (2) Could not the necessary food consumption be radically cut by treating, electronically, the food we eat either before or while eating?

Homes may have something about the size of a small radio with push buttons. Push No. 1, and all those in the room will laugh; push No. 2, and they will all cry; push No. 3, and they will all enjoy beautiful music, but without a sound in the room; push No. 4, and their thinking powers and memories will quickly be stimulated so that they can answer questions like the "Quiz Kids."

Physical Check Ups

Having watched the progress of the Electronic Medical Foundation, located at 2452 Van Ness Avenue, San Francisco, Calif., I recently sent them a small sample of my blood to be electronically studied. It seems fantastic, but their diagnosis corresponds very closely with the "check up" which my physician gave me after the use of various machines and the consuming of considerable time. I surly would not recommend such electronic tests as a substitute for present medical diagnoses; but they may become of valuable assistance and have definite curative powers.

Surely tremendous material advances are ahead. It is most important that our grandchildren develop spiritually at the same rate.

Matter Of Fact

By JOSEPH AND STEWART ALSOP

Money

WASHINGTON

Despite their very grave national significance, there are two facts which are rarely mentioned by any candidate, simply because it is in no candidate's interests to mention them. The first is that the Hatch Act, with its unrealistic limitation on campaign expenditures, makes legal liars out of all major candidates. The second is that both major parties are now most dangerously dependent on large contributions from a tiny, wealthy minority of the total American electorate.

These facts suggest why a little noticed experiment by Beardsley Ruml, Democratic finance chairman and a brilliant idea man, may have a lasting effect on the future of American politics, whatever happens on November 4. Ruml's idea, like most good ideas, was simple enough.

He caused to be printed some 2,000,000 booklets, each containing five "certificates." These certificates, each with a polite handwritten thank you note from Adlai Stevenson printed on it, cost $5 apiece. The country, according to Ruml's idea, was to be blanketed with 10-man teams, each team member with a book of five certificates to sell. Ruml's notion was that many people would be willing to contribute to the Stevenson campaign, if this was made easy and convenient, and if the sum was small.

Sure It Can Be Done

The results, Ruml says, have been spotty in places, but on the whole better than he dared hope. In retrospect, Ruml thinks he should have started earlier, and that he should have set aside more money for promotion. Even so, he still hopes for a ".400 batting average." This would mean about $2.4 million for the Democratic war chest. It would also mean some 800,000 voters with a personal stake in the campaign. And under any circumstances, Ruml believes that he has already proved that "the thing can be done." If Ruml is right—if very large sums can indeed be collected from very small contributors—there is one way to indicate the importance of this development. This is to cast the mind back to the campaign of 1948, when the Democratic coffers were wholly empty, until Louis Johnson was called in to labor in the financial vineyards.

Johnson himself, who was disastrously rewarded with the secretaryship of Defense for these labors, was one of Truman's worst ensuing troubles. But there have been others, less conspicuous, including some rather nauseating diplomatic appointments, and certain concessions to special interest groups which need not otherwise have been made.

If it were not for the Ruml five dollar scheme, Adlai Stevenson would face the same dilemma as Truman faced in 1948. Collections from big contributors to the Democratic party have, to be sure, been higher than in that year but at the same time, campaign expenses have almost doubled, thanks in part to the hideous cost of national television hookups. Even the Eisenhower campaign managers have had their anxious moment. One of the things that worried them most, in the early days before Gen. Eisenhower's peace pact with Sen. Robert A. Taft, was that the former Taft supporters at first showed a tendency to keep their check books firmly closed.

Should Be Rewritten

The Presidential candidacies are only part of the story, moreover. A closely contested campaign for a seat even in the lower house may run as high as half a million dollars. It is safe to say that not a single senator in either party, in any fairly close state, has obeyed the spirit of the laws governing campaign expenditures.

Obviously these laws, including the Hatch Act, should be rewritten to conform with the political realities. But this will not overcome the fact that the generosity of rich men is not always disinterested. Ruml himself divides contributors into three categories: "White"—those who really expect nothing in return; "Gray"—those who have a hankering for an ambassadorship or other post of honor, but expect no flat commitment; and "Black"—those who expect a flat (and profitable) commitment from the future administration.

Ruml shows all would-be "black" contributors to the door, and he lets "gray" contributors know in no uncertain terms that they should expect no quid pro quo. Presumably the Eisenhower managers do the same thing. Yet the whole system is deeply unhealthy all the same, as is suggested by the way many officers of large companies now make a practice of contributing to both parties. These contributions are regarded essentially as simple business investments, from which a reasonable return in the form of a sympathetic ear in the new administration is expected.

The Ruml scheme is no cure for this unhealthy situation, simply because five dollar contributions cannot possibly cover the whole tremendous cost of a modern campaign. But, until a real cure is found—perhaps the limited underwriting of campaign expenditures by the federal government—Ruml's method of tapping the small contributors may at least prove to be a long step in the right direction.

These Days

Confused Minds

Clifford Odets is one of the most famous of American playwrights and has been accepted as an intelligent, imaginative person. Therefore it is expected that when he becomes active in a public movement, he has read the literature on the subject, has reached a conclusion based upon study, judgment and soul-searching. Certainly a man of Mr. Odets intellectual attainments had heard of Marx, Engels, Lenin, Stalin, Trotzky. Yet, this is what Clifford Odets said before the House Committee on Un-American Activities:

"...I had no sense of the Soviet Union as a country opposed to our interests; it never occurred to me to think of the Soviet Union that way. I thought of the Soviet Union, then as a country of extra-ordinary theater, of extraordinary literary figures, and any greeting or relationship that I might in those days have made with that large country would be in relation to my particular field of theater, the theater, and theater literature. But I must point out that in those days not only my self but no one had a sense, or very few people had a sense of the Soviet Union as a country opposed to our interests anyway. I think it was during that time that we began to recognize the Soviet Union, began to move into a kind of amnesty with that country, in terms of trade, for instance."

The period he is referring to is 1937, four years after the United States had recognized Soviet Russia; three years after the Harold Ware Communist cell was organized among intellectuals.

Further, Odets said:

"Well, my opinion is that the Communist party is interested in preserving itself as a minority political party. I believe, sir, that that is their right under the United States Constitution. I do not think that their essential purpose is the preservation of the Constitution. I think they want to bring about some sort of social disorder. I find some of their practices reprehensible. I am against secrecy in any political party. I would not advocate the Communist party for anyone to join because of their secrecy. One of the elements that made me leave the Communist party was secrecy.."

The sequence of this statement is, of course, not logical. What makes the Communist party reprehensible is not that it is a secret organization, which it is not, but that it advocates a wicked doctrine, Marxism, that can do infinite damage to our civilization. For instance, Lenin wrote:

> "The dictatorship of the proletariat is the fiercest, most acute and most merciless war of the ..new class against the more powerful enemy, against the bourgeoisie, whose resistance is increased tenfold by its overthrow" that "the dictatorship of the proletariat as a persistent struggle—sanguinary and bloodless, violent and peaceful, military and economic, educational and administrative, against the forces and traditions of the old society."

I quote from Odets and Lenin for the purpose of showing the former's confusion.

There was no doubt in the mind of the Russian as to what he wished to do to and with our American society. He wished to destroy it. He wished to replace it by a system of his own choosing. Stalin emphasized Lenin's views in these words:

"The victory of the dictatorship of the proletariat signifies the suppression of the bourgeoiisie, the break-up of the state machinery and the displacement of bourgeois democracy by proletarian democracy. That is clear...

Now all this was written before May 1952 when Odets testified. Stalin wrote in 1924 quoting Lenin. One would imagine that an intellectual like Odets, once a party member, would know the Communist program, would have read the fundamental literature of this revolutionary force.

There are those who doubt that the Communists seek to destroy the Government of the United States and the civilization which our people have developed on this continent. Yet, the program of the Communists is publicly blueprinted in the writings of Lenin and Stalin and in the decisions of the party in Russia, at such a congress as has recently taken place in Moscow.

The blueprints are clear and have always been available to those who want to read and study them. Those who criticize Senator Joe McCarthy or the work of the McCarran Committee fail to recognize the peril to this country in this international conspiracy to destroy it.

Industry Wastes Forum Planned At Winchester

Potomac River Group To Meet November 19

An industrial wastes forum, sponsored by the industrial committee of the Interstate Commission on the Potomac River Basin, will be held November 19 at the George Washington Hotel in Winchester, Va.

The forum has been planned to provide an opportunity to learn about the pollution abatement programs being carried on within the Potomac River Basin, about methods for preventing and treating industrial wastes, and operating problems which are encountered at such treatment plants.

Julian P. Patrick, chief chemist at the Luke plant of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper company and chairman of the industrial committee, will preside at the meeting.

According to Edwin R. Cotton, director of the Commission, the conference will provide a means for furthering the exchange of ideas between persons interested in waste treatment operations. It is expected that the meeting will provide for future forums of the same type.

The conference will begin at 10 a. m. with a discussion of objectives. Subjects to be studied will be "The Industrial Waste Problems in the Potomac River Basin," Water Quality and the Effect of Industrial Wastes," "Reducing Pollution by Preventive Measures," and "Industrial Waste Treatment Processes."

Following a recess for luncheon the conference will continue at 2 p. m. with a panel discussion on "Industrial Waste Treatment Operating Problems."

The group will discuss wastes from food processing and canning, pulp and paper, tanning, dairy, synthetic fiber, organic chemical wastes, textile wastes and coal mining wastes.

The forum will conclude at 5 p. m.

McKeldin To Receive State Safety Award

A luncheon meeting sponsored by the Advertising Club of Baltimore in honor of the Maryland Traffic Safety Commission, will be held Wednesday at 12 noon at the Emerson Hotel, Baltimore.

Approximately 600 guests are expected to hear Ned H. Dearborn, re-elected for the ninth time as president of the National Safety Council, speak at the event.

Dearborn will also present Gov. Theodore R. McKeldin with Maryland's safety award for outstanding achievement in the field of public information.

In addition to representatives from newspapers, radio and television in the state, city and state officials who helped make the winning of the award possible, will be present.

Maryland's death toll so far this year is 28 less than the corresponding period of 1952.

Area Servicemen Are Processed

Two area servicemen have completed processing at the 2053d Reception Center at Fort George G. Meade.

They are Pvt. Donald L. Crabtree, 23, son of Mr. and Mrs. Mahlon Burgess, 503 Williams Street and Pvt. Russell L. Crabtree, 23, son of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Crabtree, Oldtown.

IT IS OPPOSITE YOU

IF the declarer—in any position except fourth-hand—had made a pre-emptive suit bid of three or four, you can almost positively count on your partner to hold any ace which you don't see in the dummy. The logic of that is so clear-cut and simple that it is hard to realize any fair player would overlook it as a guide to his defensive play. But there are plenty who do not seem to think, at such times, that the declarer would not have made such a bid if he held an ace on the side.

West opened his club 3, which East won with the Q. Wasting no time, that defender then returned his club K, and then shortly rued his haste. South ruffed that, ran all of his trumps and topped them off with three diamond tricks to have a total of 11, giving him an extra trick.

"You must know that South's main purpose in making that shutout bid was to keep us from getting together on spades," protested West to his partner.

"So what?" shot back East. "Why didn't you then lead the ace of spades?"

"For the very simple reason that South might possibly have the king or queen, more likely the latter," West explained. "If he had either of those, my lead could have given him his contract. But you could have led through such a card, being certain I would be able to top it with the ace."

West was exactly right, as his partner then realized. After scoring with the club Q, he should haid laid down the spade K with utmost confidence, and then could have returned any spade at all to assure defeat of the contract, the J being the soundest return.

If you are in doubt about what kind of pre-emptive bids some new opponent may make, you may nearly always nowadays count on his hand being weak generally, as with any worthwhile side strength he would not like to crowd his own side.

New Typhoon Hits Central Philippines

MANILA, Monday, Oct. 27 (AP) — A new typhoon slammed into the Central Philippines Sunday night. It appeared even heavier than the big storm that battered the islands only five days ago.

Winds of 155 miles an hour near the center lashed Northern Samar Island and whipped huge Pacific Ocean waves angrily along the east coast.

The government weather bureau predicted the blow would strike already-devastated Southeast Luzon and Northern Masbate Island later today and roar over nearby Romblon and Mindoro Islands before nightfall.

Supervisors from the Philadelphia office and the chief's office in Washington are on the scene aiding with the fire fighting. Also two supervisors from the George Washington National Forest near Harrisonburg, Va. and two from the Jefferson National Forest near Roanoke are leading men against the flames.

Officials last night said the fire fighters would probably patrol the area for the next week or so and said the blaze is under control unless a high wind or unforeseeable accident occurs.

Small Local Fires

In the Cumberland area, farmland fires which burned about three acres near Pinto and Little Orleans were still smoldering last night according to District Forester William H. Johnson.

He said only one new fire broke out yesterday in this area which was a small fire northeast of Harpers Ferry. The new blaze which burned only about one-quarter of an acre was easily brought under control.

As fires raged uncontrolled in other areas Saturday, Cumberland sent three fire companies to Shriver's Hill where brush burned close to homes on the upper side of Independence Street.

Over five acres of brush land was burned in the fire which started at the top of the hill and moved down the side to the Independence Street homes. East Side firemen were called back to the area an hour after getting it under control, when another section burst into flames.

Very Little Rain

There has been only 1.52 inches of rainfall in Cumberland thus far this month with none for over two weeks. In the Tri-State section most areas have had a total precipitation of less than one-half inch this month, more than two inches below normal.

Other fires in the Cumberland area were also reported under control last night. At Falls Cut Tunnel of the B&O Railroad, west of Hyndman, a fire which had burned over 25 acres on Savage Mountain, was still burning but checked.

Smoke was still pouring from a fire in the New Creek Valley in Mineral County, W. Va. yesterday but crews had it checked last night. The fire that began near New Creek and traveled two and one-half miles along the foot of Allegheny Front, was battled by students of Potomac State School in Keyser. They were called to the aid of other fighters who cut a fire break to halt the blaze.

The condition has been so bad in West Virginia forests that the hunting season was suspended Thursday night.

Ex-SS Troopers Cheer Charges Against Allies

VERDEN, Germany, Oct. 26 (AP) — Four thousand former members of Hitler's dreaded SS (elite guard) cheered ex-Gen. Hermann Ramcke here today as he accused Allied soldiers of war crimes and demanded the release of all "so-called German war criminals."

The SS troopers assembled in this 1,200-year-old city for their first big postwar reunion. They included stout six-footers of Adolf Hitler's own regiment "Leibstandarte," and members of the elite regiments "Deutscsland" and "Germania."

Ramcke, a paratroop general and one of the most popular German wartime leaders, told the SS men they had been fighting for their fatherland as well as any other German soldiers and that therefore, "all defamation of their honor must stop."

"All those Allied officers and soldiers who bombed German cities are also war criminals," Ramcke said.

"If our soldiers are convicted as war criminals then it was also war crime when the Allies bombed unprotected German cities and when the Allies now invent atom bombs," Ramcke said.

These remarks were almost drowned in cheering.

Hurricane Curving Into Open Atlantic

MIAMI, Fla., Oct. 26 (AP) — The Small but still dangerous Caribbean hurricane whirled over Cat Island in the Bahamas today and continued curving northeastward in the open Atlantic.

A 5 p. m. (EST) advisory from the Miami Weather Bureau placed the storm's center about 175 miles east southeast of Nassau, Bahamas, and 50 miles north of San Salvador Island.

Winds during squalls were estimated at over 100 miles per hour when the center passed Cat Island about noon.

Fires Sweep Woodland Areas In 15 States

[By The Associated Press]

Spreading fires swept hundreds of square miles of drought-shriveled woodlands in 15states Sunday. Worried wardens in eight states called the situation either critical or dangerous.

In some areas the smoke pall combined with October's blue haze to reduce visibility to zero and further hampered weary fire fighters who in some states have been fighting the blazes since mid-week.

There was no estimate of the damage. And only one fatality has been reported.

Hardest hit by the blazes were West Virginia, Virginia, Ohio, Kentucky, Arkansas, Maine, New Hampshire and Massachusetts. Harassed were Michigan, Indiana, Illinois, Oklahoma, Louisiana, Missouri and Connecticut.

Support For Stevenson

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Oct. 26 (AP)—Frank O'Malley, professor of English, said today he and 55 other University of Notre Dame faculty members have signed a statement endorsing Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson for president.

"How do Life Insurance companies figure premiums?"

There are three basic elements that go to make up the premium

1. Mortality experience. That is, the number of people who may be expected to die in various age groups. The life insurance company can estimate with reasonable accuracy how many people will die each year in a given age group—but of course not who the individuals will be.

2. Interest assumed. In computing the premiums the companies assume a rate of interest they expect to earn on their investments over a period of years. This interest substantially reduces the premium that otherwise would have to be charged to the policyholder.

3. Operating expenses. All businesses must carry operating expenses and the life insurance business is no exception. For the business as a whole, these expenses come to about 17% of income but the amount charged to any particular policy depends upon many things, including the kind of a policy it is.

Thus the premium your life insurance company charges for the policy you buy is determined by these three basic elements, taking into consideration your age, the period over which premiums will be paid, and the benefits provided.

"For the very simple reason that South might possibly have the king or queen, more likely the latter," West explained. "If he had either of those, my lead could have given him his contract. But you could have led through such a card, being certain I would be able to top it with the ace."

West was exactly right, as his partner then realized. After scoring with the club Q, he should haid laid down the spade K with utmost confidence, and then could have returned any spade at all to assure defeat of the contract, the J being the soundest return.

If you are in doubt about what kind of pre-emptive bids some new opponent may make, you may nearly always nowadays count on his hand being weak generally, as with any worthwhile side strength he would not like to crowd his own side.

Two Baltimore Stores Damaged By Blaze

BALTIMORE, Oct. 26 (AP) — A three-alarm fire raged for more than two and a half hours in the heart of the downtown shopping district today, causing an estimated $50,000 in damage to two stores.

Eighteen fire companies prevented the flames from spreading beyond a drug store and shoe shop, where they originated about 3 a.m. The stores are at Lexington and Eutaw Streets.

Ex-SS Troopers Cheer Charges Against Allies

VERDEN, Germany, Oct. 26 (AP) — Four thousand former members of Hitler's dreaded SS (elite guard) cheered ex-Gen. Hermann Ramcke here today as he accused Allied soldiers of war crimes and demanded the release of all "so-called German war criminals."

The SS troopers assembled in this 1,200-year-old city for their first big postwar reunion. They included stout six-footers of Adolf Hitler's own regiment "Leibstandarte," and members of the elite regiments "Deutscsland" and "Germania."

Ramcke, a paratroop general and one of the most popular German wartime leaders, told the SS men they had been fighting for their fatherland as well as any other German soldiers and that therefore, "all defamation of their honor must stop."

"All those Allied officers and soldiers who bombed German cities are also war criminals," Ramcke said.

"If our soldiers are convicted as war criminals then it was also war crime when the Allies bombed unprotected German cities and when the Allies now invent atom bombs," Ramcke said.

These remarks were almost drowned in cheering.

Hurricane Curving Into Open Atlantic

MIAMI, Fla., Oct. 26 (AP) — The Small but still dangerous Caribbean hurricane whirled over Cat Island in the Bahamas today and continued curving northeastward in the open Atlantic.

A 5 p. m. (EST) advisory from the Miami Weather Bureau placed the storm's center about 175 miles east southeast of Nassau, Bahamas, and 50 miles north of San Salvador Island.

Winds during squalls were estimated at over 100 miles per hour when the center passed Cat Island about noon.

Plastic Halloween Masks Reported "Very Inflammable"

BALTIMORE, Oct. 26 (AP) — The Baltimore Fire Department says a shiny, plastic Halloween mask which has been on sale in the Baltimore store of a national dime store chain is "very inflammable."

The city's Bureau of Tests plans some detailed tests with the masks Monday, and if the tests bear out the fire department's contention, the stores will be advised it would be a violation of Maryland law to sell the masks, according to the secretary of the City Fire Board, Pinkney Williams.

Fires Sweep Woodland Areas In 15 States

[By The Associated Press]

Spreading fires swept hundreds of square miles of drought-shriveled woodlands in 15states Sunday. Worried wardens in eight states called the situation either critical or dangerous.

In some areas the smoke pall combined with October's blue haze to reduce visibility to zero and further hampered weary fire fighters who in some states have been fighting the blazes since mid-week.

There was no estimate of the damage. And only one fatality has been reported.

Hardest hit by the blazes were West Virginia, Virginia, Ohio, Kentucky, Arkansas, Maine, New Hampshire and Massachusetts. Harassed were Michigan, Indiana, Illinois, Oklahoma, Louisiana, Missouri and Connecticut.

"How do Life Insurance companies figure premiums?"

There are three basic elements that go to make up the premium

1. Mortality experience. That is, the number of people who may be expected to die in various age groups. The life insurance company can estimate with reasonable accuracy how many people will die each year in a given age group—but of course not who the individuals will be.

2. Interest assumed. In computing the premiums the companies assume a rate of interest they expect to earn on their investments over a period of years. This interest substantially reduces the premium that otherwise would have to be charged to the policyholder.

3. Operating expenses. All businesses must carry operating expenses and the life insurance business is no exception. For the business as a whole, these expenses come to about 17% of income but the amount charged to any particular policy depends upon many things, including the kind of a policy it is.

Thus the premium your life insurance company charges for the policy you buy is determined by these three basic elements, taking into consideration your age, the period over which premiums will be paid, and the benefits provided.

On The Line

by Bob Considine

NEW YORK, Oct. 26—(INS)—I have just cost the U. S. government and the Bell Telephone Company a total which must run into the multiple millions — all because of eight cents. Honestly I tried not to do so, thinking of the taxpayers and the stockholders of the two vast organizations. But they wouldn't let me do anything else.

First there came one of those malaria-colored postcards from the United States Post Office, Saint Louis 3, Mo., informing me that the postmaster (turned out to be a fellow named Bernard F. Dickman, later correspondence revealed) was holding a letter there for me because of insufficient postage.

Now in order to send that 3-cent dun the post office had to build a nine zillion dollar post office building incorporating the best features of the Parthenon and Alcatraz, hire hosts of employees, buy trucks, subsidize railroads, and build everything even bigger and more expensive on this end of the dramatic exchange.

The trouble with those post office duns, whoever phrased them must have been a descendant of Machiavelli. They say so much and no more, and what they infer is enough to stay all but the bravest hand that tries to drown them in a wastebasket. Weaker hands, including this one, keep the card for a few days, temporarily throwing it away and then exhuming it from the trash, certain that the letter that is being held is a notification that I have been named principal heir of Uncle Jake, who waxed rich hawking pin-ups of Lillian Russell in the Yukon.

So I whipped back a quick letter, enclosing the demanded 3-cent stamp, and now in receipt of not only a reply but also the stamp I sent and a paper clip. Mr. Dickman's prose is bleak this time:

"Returning the three cents postage which accompanied card notice issued by our postage due section for mail addressed to you. This mail after being held the required time was turned over to our dead letter branch for treatment.

"We have no record of the letter in our dead letter branch. This indicates that the letter contained no valuable inclosures, as all letters containing such are recorded."

Hmm . . . they're steaming our mail in St. Louis, eh? Has Nixon heard of this? Anyway, this exchange of white papers between the U. S. post office and me must have cost a tremendous amount of cash money. The least I can do is return the paper clip to Mr. Dickman, but I'm afraid that this would stimulate a further exchange involving other millions in new equipment, franchises, and present still another challenge to postmen to complete appointed rounds daunted neither by snow, nor rain, nor heat, nor night.

As for the phone company, well, sir, the TWA Martin dropped down on Pittsburgh's magnificent new airport the other day and dipped its thirsty bill into a tub of gas. The passengers were given ten minutes off the ship and I beat it to a phone to call a nice lady relative of mine name of Mrs. Herbert Wilson in nearby Cannonsburg, Pa.

It's a toll charge—15 cents. I put two dimes in the slot, for want of a nickel in change. Their sound must have rang through the telephone company like burglar alarms. There were gasps from the girl on the line, whispered conferences, muttered imprecations from the chairman of the board, then a vexed voice demanding my name and address.

I begged the nice lady to please get me the number, but she refused to be a party to this apparent demolition of the company's audit books. She insisted that the phone company wanted to send me a nickel change.

In the end I cracked and wept unashamedly that my name was John W. Considine Jr., and my address was 137 Rue Caumartin, Paris. The lady then put through the call just as the great voice of the terminal began announcing that the plane was ready to depart. Finally, the final call was announced—and Bell's belle came back on the line, to announce cheerfully that the number was busy.

That'll learn the United States government and the American Telephone and Telegraph Company!

Fort Hill Play Tournament Begins Tuesday

The annual play tournament at Fort Hill High School will be presented tomorrow at 8 p. m. in the auditorium of the school by the Fort Hill Players.

Scheduled to open the tournament is the Junior Class presentation, "Ah, Sweet Mystery," under the direction of Dolores Fahey. The cast will include Donald Huff, Jackie Pennel, Jackie Weber, Shirley Frazier, Charles Welch, Helen McKee, Annabell Leatherman and Jeff Garvin. Assisting with the direction are Mary Porter and Carol Knisely.

The second entry will be presented by the sophomores, under the direction of Ann Webster. "Elmer and the Lovebug" is the name of the play and the characters are Stanley Wilson, Barbara Thuss, Mary Wheeler, Margaret Hafer, Rita Marker, Mary Daily, Robert Jones and George Eskin.

"Ile" is the drama which the Senior Class will present under the direction of Mary Hafer. Members of the cast include Barbara Campbell, Jack Parker, George Tagliaferre, James Kaiser, Norman Jackson, Thomas Rowan, William Bird and Melvin Boone.

Donna Rowan will be the mistress of ceremonies. Entertainment between and after the plays will be provided by Shirley Brinkman, Charlene Hout and the high school orchestra.

Judges of the competition will be J. William Hunt, editor of the Cumberland Sunday Times; Ralph Lewis, of Central YMCA, and Mrs. Lois Crabtree, a Fort Hill alumna.

The best play, actor and actress will receive the Fort Hill "Oscars." Last year, the Junior Class won with the play, "The Heritage of Wimpole Street." Barbara Campbell won the best actress award for her part in that play, and Don Stine the award for his part in the Senior Class drama, "Night Must Fall."

The Old Second Guesser

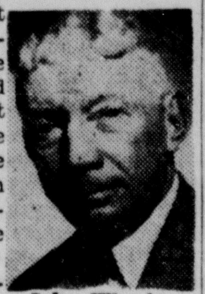
A Martini Mixer And The Jungle

One of the most controversial subjects in the world is the Martini cocktail. Every expert has a different way of mixing one, and each is sure his product is the most potable. It's like mixing salad dressing that way, only more so. This anecdote shows how it can be used as a protection in the jungle.



John Wheeler

Our hero is going on his first scientific expedition into darkest Africa, and he was collecting his equipment for the hazardous safari and getting advice from veterans who had been there before. Finally one finished off his recommendations as follows:

"By all means before you start buy a small bottle of gin and another of vermouth and put them in your pith helmet where they won't be broken. Keep them there carefully. Never be without them."

The explorer was puzzled and surprised. He replied,

"But I don't drink, and I don't see why I should carry any alcoholic beverages with me."

"You had better take my advice, anyway," went on the other man. "I have had a great deal of experience. When you go on a trip like this, you may run into a lot of trouble in the jungle. If things get too tough, your gun bearers will desert you, your guides will run out on you, and you will be left on your own. When that happens, reach for the gin and vermouth and start to make a Martini cocktail. Just as soon as you do, there will be 50 people show up to tell you how to mix it, each with a different idea about the ingredients. Then you will be all right."

John Golden called up to ask me to go to the Dutch Treat Club lunch with him.

"And be careful of your language, too," he cautioned, "I'm taking a minister along with me."

He introduced me to Rev. Stitt, a fine, upstanding, modest man and the pastor of a church in 13th Street, New York. Mr. Golden, always with an eye on the box office, as he is a theatrical producer, explained proudly.

"You know his church couldn't make both ends meet, so he rents it out now Saturday nights as a Jewish synagogue where that congregation holds services, and the plan has worked fine."

After lunch, I asked Mr. Stitt if he would like a cigar, and he said yes. I handed him a very good one, and he stuck it in his pocket.

"See that," said John. "It reminds me of Steve Brodie, the guy who ran a saloon on the Bowery and was supposed to have jumped off the Brooklyn Bridge."

"He did," I corrected. "They found him floundering in the East River and pulled him out."

"Yes, but how do you know he arrived there by way of the bridge? It was a foggy morning. Anyway he got credit for it and a reputation. I wrote a song about his wife, called 'Gert,' and I went up to his house in 106th Street to see if I could make a deal with him. I had a friend with me. Although it was only about noon, he wanted to be hospitable and asked,

" 'How about a little snifter?'

"We agreed, and he disappeared, coming back shortly with two small glasses with whisky in them on a tray and water on the side. In another glass was a cigar which he took out and waved towards us and said,

"Well, here's a go.'

"He then stuck it in his pocket. He had gotten it in his own house, and I suppose he put it back in the box later until the next visitor came along."

Rev. Sitt pulled my cigar out and lit it. Mr. Herbert Hoover made an amusing, sardonic, off-the-record speech. The lunch was over, and we all went about our business.

Fort Hill Play Tournament Begins Tuesday

The annual play tournament at Fort Hill High School will be presented tomorrow at 8 p. m. in the auditorium of the school by the Fort Hill Players.

Scheduled to open the tournament is the Junior Class presentation, "Ah, Sweet Mystery," under the direction of Dolores Fahey. The cast will include Donald Huff, Jackie Pennel, Jackie Weber, Shirley Frazier, Charles Welch, Helen McKee, Annabell Leatherman and Jeff Garvin. Assisting with the direction are Mary Porter and Carol Knisely.

The second entry will be presented by the sophomores, under the direction of Ann Webster. "Elmer and the Lovebug" is the name of the play and the characters are Stanley Wilson, Barbara Thuss, Mary Wheeler, Margaret Hafer, Rita Marker, Mary Daily, Robert Jones and George Eskin.

"Ile" is the drama which the Senior Class will present under the direction of Mary Hafer. Members of the cast include Barbara Campbell, Jack Parker, George Tagliaferre, James Kaiser, Norman Jackson, Thomas Rowan, William Bird and Melvin Boone.

Donna Rowan will be the mistress of ceremonies. Entertainment between and after the plays will be provided by Shirley Brinkman, Charlene Hout and the high school orchestra.

Judges of the competition will be J. William Hunt, editor of the Cumberland Sunday Times; Ralph Lewis, of Central YMCA, and Mrs. Lois Crabtree, a Fort Hill alumna.

The best play, actor and actress will receive the Fort Hill "Oscars." Last year, the Junior Class won with the play, "The Heritage of Wimpole Street." Barbara Campbell won the best actress award for her part in that play, and Don Stine the award for his part in the Senior Class drama, "Night Must Fall."

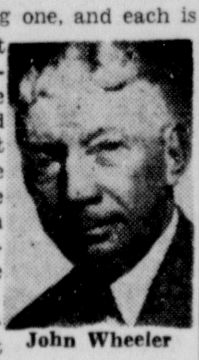
The Old Second Guesser

by John Wheeler

A Martini Mixer And The Jungle



John Wheeler

One of the most controversial subjects in the world is the Martini cocktail. Every expert has a different way of mixing one, and each is sure his product is the most potable. It's like mixing salad dressing that way, only more so. This anecdote shows how it can be used as a protection in the jungle.

Our hero is going on his first scientific expedition into darkest Africa, and he was collecting his equipment for the hazardous safari and getting advice from veterans who had been there before. Finally one finished off his recommendations as follows:

"By all means before you start buy a small bottle of gin and another of vermouth and put them in your pith helmet where they won't be broken. Keep them there carefully. Never be without them."

The explorer was puzzled and surprised. He replied,

"But I don't drink, and I don't see why I should carry any alcoholic beverages with me."

"You had better take my advice, anyway," went on the other man. "I have had a great deal of experience. When you go on a trip like this, you may run into a lot of trouble in the jungle. If things get too tough, your gun bearers will desert you, your guides will run out on you, and you will be left on your own. When that happens, reach for the gin and vermouth and start to make a Martini cocktail. Just as soon as you do, there will be 50 people show up to tell you how to mix it, each with a different idea about the ingredients. Then you will be all right."

John Golden called up to ask me to go to the Dutch Treat Club lunch with him.

"And be careful of your language, too," he cautioned, "I'm taking a minister along with me."

He introduced me to Rev. Stitt, a fine, upstanding, modest man and the pastor of a church in 13th Street, New York. Mr. Golden, always with an eye on the box office, as he is a theatrical producer, explained proudly.

"You know his church couldn't make both ends meet, so he rents it out now Saturday nights as a Jewish synagogue where that congregation holds services, and the plan has worked fine."

After lunch, I asked Mr. Stitt if he would like a cigar, and he said yes. I handed him a very good one, and he stuck it in his pocket.

"See that," said John. "It reminds me of Steve Brodie, the guy who ran a saloon on the Bowery and was supposed to have jumped off the Brooklyn Bridge."

"He did," I corrected. "They found him floundering in the East River and pulled him out."

"Yes, but how do you know he arrived there by way of the bridge? It was a foggy morning. Anyway he got credit for it and a reputation. I wrote a song about his wife, called 'Gert,' and I went up to his house in 106th Street to see if I could make a deal with him. I had a friend with me. Although it was only about noon, he wanted to be hospitable and asked,

" 'How about a little snifter?'

"We agreed, and he disappeared, coming back shortly with two small glasses with whisky in them on a tray and water on the side. In another glass was a cigar which he took out and waved towards us and said,

"Well, here's a go.'

"He then stuck it in his pocket. He had gotten it in his own house, and I suppose he put it back in the box later until the next visitor came along."

Rev. Sitt pulled my cigar out and lit it. Mr. Herbert Hoover made an amusing, sardonic, off-the-record speech. The lunch was over, and we all went about our business.

Service Reduced At Rent Office

Beginning this week, the branch rent office of the Office of Rent Stabilization in the Cumberland Post Office Building will be open only one day a week.

John A. Dewicki, area rent director of the ORS, Baltimore, said the office in Room 201 will be open on Friday of each week from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., effective this week.

This reduction in service at Cumberland and other Maryland cities outside of Baltimore has been caused by the necessity of curtailment in personnel, Dewicki stated.

Anyone desiring information about rents during the week on days other than Friday may contact the Baltimore office of Rent Stabilization at 400 East Lombard Street, the director pointed out.

Keyser's Plant Fund Reaches $60,000 Total

Drive Oversubscribed By About $15,000

KEYSER — The campaign to raise $45,000 by the Keyser-Mineral County Chamber of Commerce has been oversubscribed, more than $60,000 being reported.

The Chamber of Commerce started the campaign Monday and at the close of business Thursday, there had been $35,000 subscribed. The Chamber officers turned the balance of the soliciting wtih $10,000 remaining to be subscribed to reach the goal, over to the four service clubs of Keyser, Kiwanis, Rotary, Lions and Yeoman and these organizations hit the $60,000 mark in less than 24 hours, with the Lions Club carrying off the honors in the final hours, with the largest sum subscribed.

Each of the clubs had members who subscribed for the notes prior to the opening of the drive by the clubs exclusively.

Chester J. Compton, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, said at the close of the campaign, that the workers could have obtained $80,000 or even $100,000, had they contacted all persons in Keyser as there has been many disappointed because the salesmen did not call on many individuals. The citizens of Keyser wanted an opportunity to help a company that wanted to locate here and one that was not asking for gifts or anything to have them come. Pryne & Company, a corporation capitalized at over a half million dollars want to come here.

The company made an initial payment of $6,000 on the original $51,000 fund to pay for the property, and the company will pay for their own improvements to the buildings and start work soon so they can move in by December 1. The company has mapped changes in the buildings to be made at once. About 50 will be employed.

Compton, in his statement, said that the Chamber of Commerce expects to be calling on Keyser citizens soon to aid in another industry that is considering Keyser for a location. He said the Chamber of Commerce thanks all who answered so quickly in this call for Pryne & Company and regrets that all citizens could not be contacted.

Nurses To Check Pupils' Teeth

KEYSER—A new project will be started in Keyser High School starting Tuesday, when Mineral County Public Health nurses will conduct examination of the teeth and eyes of students in the seventh, eighth, ninth and 10th grades, to learn the condition of the teeth at the present time and to learn more of the students' vision.

Instructors have noticed apparent poor vision and have also noted condition of teeth of a number of the students.

Following the examinations, parents will be notified by the school and asked to have the condition corrected. If no reply is made to the request at the end of the month, another card will be mailed to the parents calling attention to the omission and reminding them to comply with the findings of the County Health Department.

High School instructors report that poor vision of students as well as teeth trouble has been very noticeable in many instances. It has been noted by the instructors and others that the Keyser Lions Club has been assisting needy persons in securing glasses for poor vision in many cases and it is hoped that parents will comply with requests from the health nurses and school officials.

Keyser's Plant Fund Reaches $60,000 Total

Drive Overscribed By About $15,000

KEYSER — The campaign to raise $45,000 by the Keyser-Mineral County Chamber of Commerce has been oversubscribed, more than $60,000 being reported.

The Chamber of Commerce started the campaign Monday and at the close of business Thursday, there had been $35,000 subscribed. The Chamber officers turned the balance of the soliciting wtih $10,000 remaining to be subscribed to reach the goal, over to the four service clubs of Keyser, Kiwanis, Rotary, Lions and Yeoman and these organizations hit the $60,000 mark in less than 24 hours, with the Lions Club carrying off the honors in the final hours, with the largest sum subscribed.

Each of the clubs had members who subscribed for the notes prior to the opening of the drive by the clubs exclusively.

Chester J. Compton, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, said at the close of the campaign, that the workers could have obtained $80,000 or even $100,000, had they contacted all persons in Keyser as there has been many disappointed because the salesmen did not call on many individuals. The citizens of Keyser wanted an opportunity to help a company that wanted to locate here and one that was not asking for gifts or anything to have them come. Pryne & Company, a corporation capitalized at over a half million dollars want to come here.

The company made an initial payment of $6,000 on the original $51,000 fund to pay for the property, and the company will pay for their own improvements to the buildings and start work soon so they can move in by December 1. The company has mapped changes in the buildings to be made at once. About 50 will be employed.

Compton, in his statement, said that the Chamber of Commerce expects to be calling on Keyser citizens soon to aid in another industry that is considering Keyser for a location. He said the Chamber of Commerce thanks all who answered so quickly in this call for Pryne & Company and regrets that all citizens could not be contacted.

Nurses To Check Pupils' Teeth

KEYSER—A new project will be started in Keyser High School starting Tuesday, when Mineral County Public Health nurses will conduct examination of the teeth and eyes of students in the seventh, eighth, ninth and 10th grades, to learn the condition of the teeth at the present time and to learn more of the students' vision.

Instructors have noticed apparent poor vision and have also noted condition of teeth of a number of the students.

Following the examinations, parents will be notified by the school and asked to have the condition corrected. If no reply is made to the request at the end of the month, another card will be mailed to the parents calling attention to the omission and reminding them to comply with the findings of the County Health Department.

High School instructors report that poor vision of students as well as teeth trouble has been very noticeable in many instances. It has been noted by the instructors and others that the Keyser Lions Club has been assisting needy persons in securing glasses for poor vision in many cases and it is hoped that parents will comply with requests from the health nurses and school officials.

Browns' Late Rally Defeats Skins, 19-15

Graham's Score Puts Cleveland In Front, Groza Kicks 4 Goals

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 26 (INS)—Lou Groza booted four field goals today as the Cleveland Browns came from behind in the fourth quarter to turn back the upset-minded Washington Redskins 19 to 15 before 32,496 fans at Cleveland Stadium.

Otto Graham went over from the two yard line on a quarterback sneak midway in the fourth quarter to put the Browns out in front 19-13, after they had trailed since the second period. Groza booted the extra point, giving the Clevelanders a margin of victory.

Groza kicked a field goal in each period as the Browns garnered their fourth National Football victory in five starts and remained on top of the league's American Conference.

The Redskins threatened to pull the game out of the fire in the waning minutes of the fourth period but Jules Rykovich fumbled on the Cleveland 18-yard line with two minutes remaining in the contest and Halfback Ray Renfro recovered.

Chuck Drazenovich went over for two touchdowns and Eddie Lebaron booted an extra point to give the Redskins a 13-6 lead in the second period.

The Browns intentionally gave the Redskins two points on a safety in the fourth quarter when the Clevelanders had their backs to the goal line with one minute and seven seconds remaining in the game.

Cleveland kicked off and the Redskins were unable to score on three desperation passes.

The Redskins outplayed the Browns in the statistical department, gaining 100 more yards on total offense than the winners. Washington had 23 first downs while the Browns piled up 16. Score:

WASHINGTON	0	13	0	2—15
CLEVELAND	3	3	3	10—19

Washington scoring: Touchdowns, Drazenovich 2; Conversions, Le Baron.

Cleveland scoring: Touchdowns, Graham; Field Goals, Groza 4; Conversion, Groza; Safety, Graham tackled by Berrang in end zone.

It now appears, however, that either Michigan or Purdue will smell those Pasadena roses.

Michigan worked over Minnesota, 21-0, but Purdue pulled out all stops in whaling Illinois, last year's kingpin, 40-12.

Yesterday's doings trimmed the list of unbeaten and untied teams to seven — Michigan State, Maryland, Georgia Tech, Duke, Southern California, UCLA and Villanova, which had to struggle for a 34-20 win over Xavier of Ohio today. Knocked from the select list were Virginia, California and Holy Cross, which dropped a 20-19 decision to Syracuse.

Penn, which has built up a reputation of failing to score when close to the other side's goal line, outdid itself in that respect while gaining a 7-7 tie with Navy. The Red and Blue penetrated the 10-yard line six times and got only one touchdown, with the one score coming after they recovered a Navy fumble on the 4. Still, Penn is undefeated and headed for the Ivy League title if it can beat Cornell in the season finale.

Cornell, incidentally, seems to have a malady far worse than that of the "upset" bug. Yesterday's 27-0 trouncng from Princeton was the fifth loss in a row, and Cornell must meet Michigan as well as Penn before forgetting this season.

Statler, Catherman Lead In Tournament

Ed Statler and Charles S. "Bill" Catherman, Jr., tied for first place in the straight handicap golf tournament held over the weekend at the Cumberland Country Club by turning in net 65s.

Catherman had a scratch handicap while Statler had a gross of 73 and a handicap of eight.

Those winning special prizes for par three holes were: No. 1—William Somerville. No. 6 — George Garlitz. No. 10—Keith Sisk. No. 12—Max Bastian. No. 13—William Somerville. No. 15—Robert Lacy.

Detroit Wallops Green Bay, 52-17

GREEN BAY, Wis., Oct. 26 (AP) — Scoring when and how they pleased, the Detroit Lions rolled up more points than they had tallied in four previous games today to thoroughly demoralize the Green Bay Packers, 52-17, in a National Football League game.

The Lions, with Bobby Layne tossing three touchdown passes and the defensive platoon adding a pair of its own, threw the Packers into a complete panic in the league's highest scoring game of the year. In splitting four earlier games, the Lions managed to total only 44 points.

A capacity crowd of 24,656 fans sat in on the debacle in perfect weather as the Packers dropped their third game in five starts. Score:

DETROIT	14	14	14	10—52
GREEN BAY	7	3	7	0—17

Mountaineers Play Homecoming Game

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Oct. 26—George Washington — undefeated in Southern Conference play as of this week—opposes the West Virginia Mountaineers next Saturday in the traditional Homecoming game.

The Colonials, who tied VMI Friday night at Washington, defeated North Carolina State 39-0, Washington and Lee 33-28 and Virginia Tech 6-0 in their first three Conference games. Only a trouncing from undefeated Virginia mars the record.

G. W. leads in the all-time series, six victories to three, although the Mountaineers attained one of the largest scores in history by winning the series opener, 81-0, in 1920. In between, the teams met every year from 1934 to 1940.

Ted Kluszewski, Cincinnati first baseman, led the Reds this season in hitting with a .321 mark. He also led the team in homers with 16, triples with 11 and runs-batted-in with 86.

Badminton Association Election Set Tonight

The annual meeting for the election of officers of the Cumberland Badminton Association will be held tonight at 7:30 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Bowie, 706 Washing street.

Former club members and local persons interested in joining the club this year are invited to attend the meeting.

The present officers are Bert A. Mason, president; Paul Castelle vice-president; Mrs. Gordon Bowie, secretary; and Mrs. W. H. Ryan, treasurer.

35 Horses Perish

LOUIVILLE, Ky., Oct. 26 (AP) — About 35 thoroughbred horses burned tonight in a fire that destroyed a barn at Douglas Park, one-time race track now used as a training track and stable area.

Tom Young, track superintendent at Churchill Downs, said 50 horses, mostly yearlings, were quartered in the 45-year-old structure.

Little Sentinels, Terps And Hot Shots Winners

The Little Sentinels defeated Penn Avenue, 30-12, the Hot Shots trimmed the Plumbers, 24-0, and the Terps triumphed over the Clowns, 12-6, in City Recreation Touch Football League games played yesterday. The scores:

LITTLE SENTINELS	12	6	0	12—30

Two Resolutions Tabled

Resolutions calling for the establishment of a "family" non-resident fishing license was tabled until the next meeting of the league February 13, 14 and 15. Also tabled until February was the resolution providing that the Pennsylvania Fish Commission issue special licenses to residents of Cumberland and other municipalities or towns or villages receiving their water supply from Lakes Koon and Gordon.

The Cumberland Outdoor Club, host at the three-day session, sponsored three of the resolutions, namely, shooting wild waterfowl from sneak boats on the Potomac, "family" non-resident fishing licenses and special fishing licenses for Lakes Koon and Gordon. Delegates of the local club were Simeon T. Wilson, William Wagner, E. Lee Bailey and Robert Dougherty.

The Marco Rod and Gun Club invited the league to hold its February meeting there.

100 Attend Dinner

Approximately 100 attended the league dinner Saturday at the Ali Ghan Shrine City Club. David Kauffman, Cumberland attorney, was toastmaster, and Simeon T. Wilson, chairman of Region No. 8, welcomed the guests. The principal speaker was "Bud" Jackson, field director of the National Wildlife Federation, whose subject was "Youth's Place in Conservation."

Other speakers included President Glenn L. Martin, Ernest A. Vaughn, director of the Maryland Game and Inland Fish Commission; Dr. R. V. Truitt, of the Department of Research and Education; Dr. Joseph H. McLain, director of Pollution Control and George Shields, law enforcement head, State Game Commission. The invocation and benediction was pronounced by Father Marius Elsener, OFM., Cap., of SS. Peter and Paul Church, pronounced the invocation and benediction.

Speakers at the Saturday afternoon session included Paul W. McKee, who spoke on "Water Pollution in Western Maryland;" Dale Arner, "Turkey Management in Western Maryland;" Joseph Kaylor, director of the Department of State Forests and Parks; Dr. Tillor and R. D. Van Duesen, of the Department of Research and Education.

Badminton Association Election Set Tonight

The annual meeting for the election of officers of the Cumberland Badminton Association will be held tonight at 7:30 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Bowie, 706 Washing street.

Former club members and local persons interested in joining the club this year are invited to attend the meeting.

The present officers are Bert A. Mason, president; Paul Castelle vice-president; Mrs. Gordon Bowie, secretary; and Mrs. W. H. Ryan, treasurer.

35 Horses Perish

LOUIVILLE, Ky., Oct. 26 (AP) — About 35 thoroughbred horses burned tonight in a fire that destroyed a barn at Douglas Park, one-time race track now used as a training track and stable area.

Tom Young, track superintendent at Churchill Downs, said 50 horses, mostly yearlings, were quartered in the 45-year-old structure.

Many horses in Louisville for tomorrow's opening of the fall race meeting at Churchill Downs, about a mile away, claimed stable space at Douglas Park.

Two Resolutions Tabled

Resolutions calling for the establishment of a "family" non-resident fishing license was tabled until the next meeting of the league February 13, 14 and 15. Also tabled until February was the resolution providing that the Pennsylvania Fish Commission issue special licenses to residents of Cumberland and other municipalities or towns or villages receiving their water supply from Lakes Koon and Gordon.

The Cumberland Outdoor Club, host at the three-day session, sponsored three of the resolutions, namely, shooting wild waterfowl from sneak boats on the Potomac, "family" non-resident fishing licenses and special fishing licenses for Lakes Koon and Gordon. Delegates of the local club were Simeon T. Wilson, William Wagner, E. Lee Bailey and Robert Dougherty.

The Marco Rod and Gun Club invited the league to hold its February meeting there.

100 Attend Dinner

Approximately 100 attended the league dinner Saturday at the Ali Ghan Shrine City Club. David Kauffman, Cumberland attorney, was toastmaster, and Simeon T. Wilson, chairman of Region No. 8, welcomed the guests. The principal speaker was "Bud" Jackson, field director of the National Wildlife Federation, whose subject was "Youth's Place in Conservation."

Other speakers included President Glenn L. Martin, Ernest A. Vaughn, director of the Maryland Game and Inland Fish Commission; Dr. R. V. Truitt, of the Department of Research and Education; Dr. Joseph H. McLain, director of Pollution Control and George Shields, law enforcement head, State Game Commission. The invocation and benediction was pronounced by Father Marius Elsener, OFM., Cap., of SS. Peter and Paul Church, pronounced the invocation and benediction.

Speakers at the Saturday afternoon session included Paul W. McKee, who spoke on "Water Pollution in Western Maryland;" Dale Arner, "Turkey Management in Western Maryland;" Joseph Kaylor, director of the Department of State Forests and Parks; Dr. Tillor and R. D. Van Duesen, of the Department of Research and Education.

Maryland Sportsmen's League Approves Seven Resolutions

Group Opposes Parkway Plan, Wants Hunting Fees Boosted

OK Waterfowl Hunting Here; Lakes Koon, Gordon Proposal Tabled

Resolutions opposing the Chesapeake and Ohio Parkway Plan, making it legal to hunt wild waterfowl from sneak boats on the Potomac River in Allegany county, publishing the names of convicted violators of fish and game laws, retention of the Natural Resources Commission and keeping the Water Pollution Control Commission separate from the Maryland State Board of Health were approved here yesterday at the final sessions of the tenth fall meeting of the League of Maryland Sportsmen, Inc.

Another resolution passed by the sportsmen's organization called for an increase of 50 cents in the state and county hunting licenses, making it illegal to hunt while under the influence of liquor, making it compulsory for persons carrying guns in the woods or fields to purchase hunting licenses except at recognized trap and skeet shoots and to investigate persons giving assumed names and addresses in order to obtain a resident hunting or fishing permit. These items were embodied in a single resolution.

The organization which comprises about 9,000 members of 56 clubs in Maryland, also went on record as favoring a uniform bass season, that is, making the dates the same for angling in the tidal and non-tidal waters. Under the present set-up, one season opens June 1 and the other July 1, with the closing dates the same, November 30.

Oppose Parkway Plan

Most of the opposition to the plan calling for the construction of a parkway and road over the old C. & O. Canal property came from Frederick and Washington county delegations.

This project, an important one for the future of Cumberland, was fully outlined pro and con at Saturday's session. J. William Hunt, editor of the Cumberland Sunday Times, and Harry T. Thompson, associate director, National Park Service, Department of the Interior, Washington, D. C., spoke in favor of the parkway, while Frank Wachter, Hagerstown, spoke against the plan, declaring that his city's future industrial progress would be blocked by construction of the proposed highway. Questions were invited and answered by Thompson.

Hunt pointed out that area supporters of the parkway asked the Department of Interior dozens of questions before they embraced the parkway proposition, and is convinced the parkway will provide more benefits to a greater number of people than any other use to which the 163-mile stretch can be put. Thompson told Glenn L. Martin, president of the league, that the parkway would make fishing more accessible to more people while Wachter declared that the parkway would benefit only Cumberland and Washington.

In voting to retain the Water Pollution Control Commission under a separate head, the league felt that this agency is in a better position to handle the program since it works directly with the Game and Inland Fish Commission, State Parks and Forests and the Research Education Bureau.

The proposal to make it legal to hunt wild waterfowl from boats on the Potomac in Allegany county comes in the form of an amendment to the present laws and the bill will be presented by the Allegany County delegation for the next session of the General Assembly at Annapolis.

A resolution urging the control or elimination of pollution of Herring Run and Gwynn Falls, Baltimore county and Baltimore city streams, was passed by unanimous vote.

Los Angeles Trims Chicagoans, 31-7

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 26 (INS) — Los Angeles' long-dormant Rams exploded with fearsome ferocity in the fourth period today for four touchdowns and a bruising 31 to 7 victory over Chicago's burly Bears.

A crowd of 43,574 fans watched the defending champion Rams go into the final stanza at Los Angeles' Memorial Coliseum trailing 7 to 3. Then unexpectedly the Rams erupted with a tremendous running, passing and defensive exhibition which left the Bears a dazed and beaten team.

It was a tough but typical Bear-Ram tussle, which threatened to break into open warfare throughout the final period.

The Rams went into a first quarter lead on the strength of Quarterback Bob Waterfield's 45-yard field goal, but then fell back to a 7 to 3 deficit in the second quarter when Bear Fullback John Dottley went five yards for a touchdown.

Neither team scored in the third quarter, and then with minutes gone in the final period the Rams were off.

They scored four touchdowns, three of them in five minutes. Skeet Quinlan went 36 yards for one score, Fullback Moose Myers plunged one yard into the end zone, Norm Van Brocklin tossed 25 yards to End Tom Fears and Tackle Ken Casner scored on a fumble by Bear Whizzer White, who had been chased back 51 yards to his own two-yard line. Casner just picked up the ball and ambled into pay dirt. Waterfield converted after each touchdown.

The Rams, although beaten in six out of seven contests—three times in league games—went into a three-way tie for third place on the basis of today's victory. Score:

Bears	0	7	0	0—7
Rams	3	0	0	28—31

CINCINNATI, O., Oct. 26 (INS)—Villanova easily defeated Xavier of Cincinnati, 34 to 20, today before 11,000 fans in 77 degree weather to run its consecutive victory string to six.

Gene Filipski, Villanova's leading ground gainer, although held to 45 yards in 17 attempts, scored two touchdowns. He now has a season record of 592 yards gained in 81 tries.

Capt. Bob Hayner accounted for two other Villanova touchdowns and Joe McNicholas racked up the fifth by intercepting an Xavier pass and running 43 yards for the score.

Xavier's Bob Judd and Lenny Frey paced the losers.

Franklin High Wins Over Elkins "B" 7-0

Franklin High School of Pendleton county, W. Va., scored its third football victory of the season over the weekend, defeated Elkins High's "B" squad at Elkins by the score of 7-0.

Lambert, Franklin back, snared a pass and scored the only touchdown with two minutes left to play in the final period. Franklin made good the try for extra point.

Charles S. "Bill" Catherman, Jr., set up a new course record for amateur golfers at the Cumberland Country Club Saturday when he posted a 65 while playing in a foursome with Clifton Van Roby, Henry Dempsey and James W. Beacham.

Catherman knocked one stroke off the previous course mark of 66 which was shared by himself and Woody Harner of the Fountain Head Country Club, Hagerstown.

Bill's card included eight birdies, two bogies, eight pars and he had 24 putts for the 18 holes.

Par for the CCC layout is 71.

Steelers Upset Favored Cards

Jim Finks Standout In 34-28 Triumph

CHICAGO, Oct. 26 (AP) — The flashing arm of fiery Jim Finks carried the Pittsburgh Steelers to their first victory of the National Football League season today — a 34-28 decision over the heavily-favored Chicago Cardinals whose Dan Panciera-Ollie Matson rookie pass combination almost turned the tables in a furious second half outburst.

The Cards offense was completely stifled in the first half and it was only after the intermission, when Coach Joe Kuharich despaired of his starting backfield, that Panciera came into the game.

He threw three scoring strikes to Matson, his former University of San Francisco teammate, and sparked another scoring drive. Score:

PITTSBURGH	0	20	7	7—34
CARDINALS	0	0	7	21—28

Steeler scoring: Touchdowns—Chadnois, Nickel, Mathews, Sulima, Ferry. Conversions—Kerkorian 4.

Cardinal scoring: Touchdowns—Matson 3, Cross. Conversion—Geri 4.

Forty Niners Crush Dallas

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 26 (AP) — San Francisco's 49ers, roaring toward their first National League football championship, blasted the stubborn but outclassed Dallas Texans out of their path today, 48-21.

It was the fifth consecutive league victory for the undefeated pace-setters of the circuit.

Brilliant individual performances were a dime a dozen. The 49ers great rookie halfback, Hugh McElhenny from the University of Washington, raced 82 yards from scrimmage to score a fourth quarter touchdown and caught a short pass at the goal line in the opening period for another score.

Veteran Quarterback Frank Albert threw three touchdown passes. Score:

DALLAS	0	7	0	14—21
SAN FRANCISCO	14	13	7	14—48

Dallas scoring: Touchdowns — Young, Celeri, Baggett. Conversions—Grigg 3 placements.

Vic Confident U. S. Can Regain Trophy

AUCKLAND, Oct. 26 (AP)—America's chances of regaining the Davis Cup from Australia at Adelaide in December are "better than most people seem to think," says Vic Seixas, captain of the American tennis team.

Seixas, who arrived at Auckland today by air from San Francisco, was accompanied by Mrs. Seixas and by a second member of the team, Straight Clark, of Pasadena, California.

THIS ONE GOT AWAY, GLENN SAYS — Glenn L. Martin, internationally known airplane manufacturer and one of the country's foremost conservationists, shows a group of friends the size of the fish "that got away" as the group assembled Saturday night at the Ali Ghan Shrine City Club for the tenth fall dinner of the League of Maryland Sportsmen, Inc. Mr. Martin is president of the league. Those in the picture, left to right, are: Dale Arner, wildlife field superintendent for Western Maryland; Ernest A. Vaughn, director, Maryland Game and Inland Fish Commission; Dr. R. V. Truitt, director, Department of Research and Education; Glenn L. Martin, Simeon T. Wilson, Cumberland, general chairman of the meeting, and Dr. William B. Holton, vice chairman of the state game and fish commission. The league concluded its three-day session yesterday. The delegates approved seven resolutions and tabled two others.

Syckes Is Victor Over Bernstein, Keeps Net Title

Teams Up With LaNeve To Capture Doubles

Lua Syckes retained his title as Alegany county tennis champion by defeating Maurice Bernstein in the men's singles finals of the annual tournament yesterday afternoon on the Country club courts.

The match was interesting and close from start to finish, but Syckes with exceptional playing at the critical times was able to win at 6-4 and 7-5.

This is the second leg Syckes has on the S. T. Little Jewelry Company three-year trophy for the county tournament.

The men's doubles of the county tournament were also completed yesterday afternoon at the Country club.

In a semi-final match Gordon Bowie and Walter Eyler defeated Norman Sell and L. E. Van Sant, 6-2, 6-2, but lost in the finals to Syckes and Leo LaNeve, 3-6, 6-3, 6-3.

Jones Leaves Hospital

ATLANTA, Oct. 26 (AP) — Bobby Jones, retired king of golf, has been dismissed from an Atlanta hospital after a heart attack. He was stricken Oct. 7 and detained at the hospital until Saturday.

Detroit Lion quarterback Bobby Layne completed 152 forward passes during each of the 1950 and '51 seasons in the National Football League.

Tatums Have Girl

COLLEGE PARK, Md., Oct. 26 (AP) — Jim Tatum, whose University of Maryland football team rallied in the closing minutes for victories over Missouri and Auburn early this fall, had his third close shave of the season today.

The Terrapin coach got his wife to nearby Prince Georges Hospital just in time for the arrival of their third child, a seven-pound, two-ounce girl.

Seven Major Grid Schools Keep Records Unblemished

Iowa, West Virginia, USC Surprise; Terps And Spartans Score

By RIP WATSON

NEW YORK, Oct. 26 (AP)—Pass the smelling salts, please—some of the nation's college football coaches are a little "upset" today.

It happens at least one Saturday every football season and yesterday that old "upset" feeling reached almost epidemic proportions. Previous records and statistics went for naught as four-times beaten Iowa jolted Ohio State, 8-0, and Southern California shocked California, 10-0, in the most surprising cases of "upset" fever.

Iowa used a rock-ribbed defense in halting the in-and-out Buckeyes, while USC halfback Jimmy Sears reminded coast fans of the great Cotton Warburton when he grabbed a punt and returned it 69 yards for a first-period touchdown. California's Golden Bears, rated fourth in the country in the Associated Press Poll, were tarnished by the Trojans, who were ranked seventh. California, the nation's top rushing team with an average of 342.8 yards per game, made 119 yards and 0 points.

Mountaineers Upend Pitt

But there were other cases of the "upset" feeling peculiar to coaches in October and November. Washington fooled Stanford by running first and then passing for a 27-14 victory; Rick Casares of Florida ran, passed and kicked in Florida's 30-0 shellacking of Georgia and West Virginia made Pitt forget those Notre Dame and Army triumphs as they plastered the Panthers, 16-0.

That old feeling even troubled mighty Michigan State, No. 1 team in the land, as Penn State moved out to a 7-0 first-quarter lead. But quarterback Tom Yewcic uncorked a passing offense good for touchdowns on plays covering 61, 56 and 45 yards and Michigan State went on to a 34-7 triumph.

Second-rated Maryland, like Michigan State, was stopped on the ground by Louisiana State for awhile, but they found the same remedy Jack Scarbath started throwing the ball. After eight minutes of the second half, Scarbath had completed 11 of 18 passes for 181 yards, three touchdowns and a 34-0 lead. Final score: 34-6.

Top quarterbacking also was the difference as Duke upended Virginia in the South's top game of the day, 21-7. Worth Lutz proved that he is worth lots to Duke in passing for one touchdown, running for another and directing the Blue Devils

McDonald, Frech Beagles Score In AKC Events

Take 15 Inch Trials, Tests Continue Today

Hounds owned by Paul O. McDonald Sproul, Pa., and Edward J. Frech, Washington, D. C., were adjudged winners in the 15 inch classes for bitches and dogs of the AKC licensed field trial staged Saturday and Sunday under the auspices of the Allegany Beagle Club at the club grounds on McMullen Highway.

McDonald's Black Nellie was judged the best of nine entries in the female class and Frech's Buddyline Venture copped first place in the male class in which there were 12 entries.

Judges were S. J. Bumgarner, Peebles, Ohio, and Robert Shockey, Meyersdale, Pa.

The entry list is expected to be much larger today when 13 inch dogs will be judged. The four-day event concludes on Tuesday when 13 inch bitches will compete.

Cash prizes and ribbons are awarded the owners of the winning hounds. The results:

15 INCH BITCHES

1. McDonald's Black Nellie, owner Paul O. McDonald, Sproul, Pa.
2. Nifty's Miss Gill, Rev. Clair Gartland, Conemaugh, Pa.

2. Gal's Frosty, Joe Gallagher, Baltimore, Md.
3. Fairview Lad, Howard J. Crissinger, Sand Patch, Pa.
4. Chippewa Joe, George D. Kirby, Frostburg, Md.

Reserve: Gunner's Mate Jingo, Russell Bennett, Butler, Pa.

Potomac State Tops Shepherd

Loughmen Chalk Up 4th Victory, 21-0

Potomac State celebrated homecoming day at Stayman Field, by defeating the Shepherd College's Rams Saturday by the score of 21-0.

The triumph was the fourth in five starts for Coach Dana "Horse" Lough's eleven and gave Potomac a 2-1 record in the West Virginia Intercollegiate Conference.

A 56-yard pass play, George Baird to Bill Long, produced the first State score in the second period. Danny Rose climaxed a 56-yard drive in the third stanza by going over from the seven. In the final period Richard Zack, Pittsburgh, plunged over from the five to culminate a 35-yard march. Joe Talbott booted all of State's extra points.

Potomac plays Concord College's Mountain Lions in a conference game Saturday night at Hinton, W. Va. Lineups:

Eagles Spill Giants, 14-10, In NFL Upset

Sensational Leaping Catch By Bob Walston Scores Winning TD

NEW YORK, Oct. 26 (AP)—Philadelphia's Eagles shattered New York's forward wall and riddled the famous umbrella defense to inflict a stunning 14-10 setback upon the Giants to the astonishment of 21,458 Polo Grounds spectators.

The ferocious and hard-charging Eagles, playing like anything but 15-point underdogs, belted the New Yorkers so hard and often they sent a half dozen Giants hobbling to the sidelines, including Halfback Stars Eddie Price and Frank Gifford. So vicious was their defense that Price, the league's leading ground gainer up to today, was limited to a net total of seven yards in 11 tries and Kyle Rote was held to 12 in seven attempts. In all, the Giants made only 54 yards on the ground and 55 in the air.

The loss knocked the Giants out of a three-way tie for first place in the American Conference with Cleveland's Browns taking over undisputed possession of first as a result of their 19-15 triumph over Washington. The Eagles, Giants and Chicago Cardinals are tied for second with 3-2 records. The Browns have won four and lost one.

The Eagles squeezed all their scoring into a five-minute period in the second quarter to overcome an early 3-0 deficit.

Bob Walston, the six-foot end from Georgia, grabbed what proved to be the winning touchdown on a sensational leaping catch of Quarterback Bobby Thomason's 19-yard heave in the deepest corner of the end zone seven seconds before the end of the first half. He plucked the pigskin right out of the hands of defenders Harmon Rowe and Frank Gifford. The 23-year-old sophomore also kicked both extra points. Score:

PHILADELPHIA	0	14	0	0—14
NEW YORK	3	0	7	0—10

Philadelphia scoring: Touchdowns — Bawel, Walston. Point After Touchdowns—Walston 2.

New York scoring: Touchdown—Sherrod. Point After Touchdown — Poole. Field Goal—Poole.

Welters To Share Boxing Spotlight

Heavy Bob Baker Essays Comeback

NEW YORK, Oct. 26 (AP) — Three welterweight bouts featuring high-ranking 147-pounders and a bantam weight clash for the American title, highlight the week's boxing program.

Two of the top welters, former NBA Champion Johnny Bratton of Chicago, and Soldier Joe Miceli of New York, tangle in a ten at Madison Square Garden Friday. The bout will be telecast nationally.

The Monday night TV show out of Brooklyn's Eastern Parkway Arena, matches Lightweight Contender Paddy De Marco of Brooklyn, and Cuba's Orlando Zulueta, in a ten.

There will be no Wednesday night television fight.

In an effort to stimulate boxing in the lighter classes, the NBA has decided to recognize the winner of a Monday night 12-rounder in Quebec as the American bantamweight champion. Pappy Gault of Spartanburg, S. C., and Fernand Gagnon will battle for the honor.

Welterweight Johnny Saxton, undefeated Brooklyn Negro, will mix with Mexico's Mario Trigo, in Milwaukee Tuesday, while Lanky Bobby Dykes will face Lester Felton in Louisville Monday in another welterweight struggle.

Heavyweight Bob Baker of Pittsburgh, idle nearly a year with bad hands, starts a comeback in his hometown on Tuesday against Bill Gilliam of Orange, N. J.

In a sixth flight semi-final match, William Carscaden defeated Lester Deneen, 1 up on the 18th hole.

Maryland Sportsmen's League Approves Seven Resolutions

Group Opposes Parkway Plan, Wants Hunting Fees Boosted

OK Waterfowl Hunting Here; Lakes Koon, Gordon Proposal Tabled

Resolutions opposing the Chesapeake and Ohio Parkway Plan, making it legal to hunt wild waterfowl from sneak boats on the Potomac River in Allegany county, publishing the names of convicted violators of fish and game laws, retention of the Natural Resources Commission and keeping the Water Pollution Control Commission separate from the Maryland State Board of Health were approved here yesterday at the final sessions of the tenth fall meeting of the League of Maryland Sportsmen, Inc.

Another resolution passed by the sportsmen's organization called for an increase of 50 cents in the state and county hunting licenses, making it illegal to hunt while under the influence of liquor, making it compulsory for persons carrying guns in the woods or fields to purchase hunting licenses except at recognized trap and skeet shoots and to investigate persons giving assumed names and addresses in order to obtain a resident hunting or fishing permit. These items were embodied in a single resolution.

The organization which comprises about 9,000 members of 56 clubs in Maryland, also went on record as favoring a uniform bass season, that is, making the dates the same for angling in the tidal and non-tidal waters. Under the present set-up, one season opens June 1 and the other July 1, with the closing dates the same, November 30.

Oppose Parkway Plan

Most of the opposition to the plan calling for the construction of a parkway and road over the old C. & O. Canal property came from Frederick and Washington county delegations.

This project, an important one for the future of Cumberland, was fully outlined pro and con at Saturday's session. J. William Hunt, editor of the Cumberland Sunday Times, and Harry T. Thompson, associate director, National Park Service, Department of the Interior, Washington, D. C., spoke in favor of the parkway, while Frank Wachter, Hagerstown, spoke against the plan, declaring that his city's future industrial progress would be blocked by construction of the proposed highway. Questions were invited and answered by Thompson.

Hunt pointed out that area supporters of the parkway asked the Department of Interior dozens of questions before they embraced the parkway proposition, and is convinced the parkway will provide more benefits to a greater number of people than any other use to which the 163-mile stretch can be put. Thompson told Glenn L. Martin, president of the league, that the parkway would make fishing more accessible to more people while Wachter declared that the parkway would benefit only Cumberland and Washington.

In voting to retain the Water Pollution Control Commission under a separate head, the league felt that this agency is in a better position to handle the program since it works directly with the Game and Inland Fish Commission, State Parks and Forests and the Research Education Bureau.

The proposal to make it legal to hunt wild waterfowl from boats on the Potomac in Allegany county comes in the form of an amendment to the present laws and the bill will be presented by the Allegany County delegation for the next session of the General Assembly at Annapolis.

A resolution urging the control or elimination of pollution of Herring Run and Gwynn Falls, Baltimore county and Baltimore city streams, was passed by unanimous vote.

Los Angeles Trims Chicagoans, 31-7

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 26 (INS) — Los Angeles' long-dormant Rams exploded with fearsome ferocity in the fourth period today for four touchdowns and a bruising 31 to 7 victory over Chicago's burly Bears.

A crowd of 43,574 fans watched the defending champion Rams go into the final stanza at Los Angeles' Memorial Coliseum trailing 7 to 3. Then unexpectedly the Rams erupted with a tremendous running, passing and defensive exhibition which left the Bears a dazed and beaten team.

It was a tough but typical Bear-Ram tussle, which threatened to break into open warfare throughout the final period.

The Rams went into a first quarter lead on the strength of Quarterback Bob Waterfield's 45-yard field goal, but then fell back to a 7 to 3 deficit in the second quarter when Bear Fullback John Dottley went five yards for a touchdown.

Neither team scored in the third quarter, and then with minutes gone in the final period the Rams were off.

They scored four touchdowns, three of them in five minutes. Skeet Quinlan went 36 yards for one score, Fullback Moose Myers plunged one yard into the end zone, Norm Van Brocklin tossed 25 yards to End Tom Fears and Tackle Ken Casner scored on a fumble by Bear Whizzer White, who had been chased back 51 yards to his own two-yard line. Casner just picked up the ball and ambled into pay dirt. Waterfield converted after each touchdown.

The Rams, although beaten in six out of seven contests—three times in league games—went into a three-way tie for third place on the basis of today's victory. Score:

Bears	0	7	0	0—7
Rams	3	0	0	28—31

CINCINNATI, O., Oct. 26 (INS)—Villanova easily defeated Xavier of Cincinnati, 34 to 20, today before 11,000 fans in 77 degree weather to run its consecutive victory string to six.

Gene Filipski, Villanova's leading ground gainer, although held to 45 yards in 17 attempts, scored two touchdowns. He now has a season record of 592 yards gained in 81 tries.

Capt. Bob Hayner accounted for two other Villanova touchdowns and Joe McNicholas racked up the fifth by intercepting an Xavier pass and running 43 yards for the score.

Xavier's Bob Judd and Lenny Frey paced the losers.

Catherman's 65 Is New Amateur Record At CCC

Charles S. "Bill" Catherman, Jr., set up a new course record for amateur golfers at the Cumberland Country Club Saturday when he posted a 65 while playing in a foursome with Clifton Van Roby, Henry Dempsey and James W. Beacham.

Catherman knocked one stroke off the previous course mark of 66 which was shared by himself and Woody Harner of the Fountain Head Country Club, Hagerstown.

Bill's card included eight birdies, two bogies, eight pars and he had 24 putts for the 18 holes.

Par for the CCC layout is 71.

Steelers Upset Favored Cards

Jim Finks Standout In 34-28 Triumph

CHICAGO, Oct. 26 (AP) — The flashing arm of fiery Jim Finks carried the Pittsburgh Steelers to their first victory of the National Football League season today — a 34-28 decision over the heavily-favored Chicago Cardinals whose Dan Panciera-Ollie Matson rookie pass combination almost turned the tables in a furious second half outburst.

The Cards offense was completely stifled in the first half and it was only after the intermission, when Coach Joe Kuharich despaired of his starting backfield, that Panciera came into the game.

He threw three scoring strikes to Matson, his former University of San Francisco teammate, and sparked another scoring drive. Score:

PITTSBURGH	0	20	7	7—34

Steeler scoring: Touchdowns—Chadnois, Nickel, Mathews, Sulima, Perry. Conversions—Kerkorian 4.

Cardinal scoring: Touchdowns—Matson 3, Cross. Conversion—Geri 4.

Forty Niners Crush Dallas

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 26 (AP) — San Francisco's 49ers, roaring toward their first National League football championship, blasted the stubborn but outclassed Dallas Texans out of their path today, 48-21.

It was the fifth consecutive league victory for the undefeated pace-setters of the circuit.

Brilliant individual performances were a dime a dozen. The 49ers great rookie halfback, Hugh McElhenny from the University of Washington, raced 82 yards from scrimmage to score a fourth quarter touchdown and caught a short pass at the goal line in the opening period for another score.

Veteran Quarterback Frank Albert threw three touchdown passes. Score:

DALLAS	0	7	0	14—21
SAN FRANCISCO	14	13	7	14—48

Dallas scoring: Touchdowns — Young, Celeri, Baggett. Conversions—Grigg 3 placements.

San Francisco scoring: Touchdowns — Soltau, McElhenny 2, Perry, White, Aldridge, O'Donohue. Conversions—Soltau 6 placements.

Vic Confident U. S. Can Regain Trophy

AUCKLAND, Oct. 26 (AP)—America's chances of regaining the Davis Cup from Australia at Adelaide in December are "better than most people seem to think," says Vic Seixas, captain of the American tennis team.

Seixas, who arrived at Auckland today by air from San Francisco, was accompanied by Mrs. Seixas and by a second member of the team, Straight Clark, of Pasadena, California.

The delegates approved seven resolutions and tabled two others.

Syckes Is Victor Over Bernstein, Keeps Net Title

Teams Up With LaNeve To Capture Doubles

Lua Syckes retained his title as Alegany county tennis champion by defeating Maurice Bernstein in the men's singles finals of the annual tournament yesterday afternoon on the Country club courts.

The match was interesting and close from start to finish, but Syckes with exceptional playing at the critical times was able to win at 6-4 and 7-5.

This is the second leg Syckes has on the S. T. Little Jewelry Company three-year trophy for the county tournament.

The men's doubles of the county tournament were also completed yesterday afternoon at the Country club.

In a semi-final match Gordon Bowie and Walter Eyler defeated Norman Sell and L. E. Van Sant, 6-2, 6-2, but lost in the finals to Syckes and Leo LaNeve, 3-6, 6-3, 6-3.

Jones Leaves Hospital

ATLANTA, Oct. 26 (AP) — Bobby Jones, retired king of golf, has been dismissed from an Atlanta hospital after a heart attack. He was stricken Oct. 7 and detained at the hospital until Saturday.

Detroit Lion quarterback Bobby Layne completed 152 forward passes during each of the 1950 and '51 seasons in the National Football League.

Tatums Have Girl

COLLEGE PARK, Md., Oct. 26 (AP) — Jim Tatum, whose University of Maryland football team rallied in the closing minutes for victories over Missouri and Auburn early this fall, had his third close shave of the season today.

The Terrapin coach got his wife to nearby Prince Georges Hospital just in time for the arrival of their third child, a seven-pound, two-ounce girl.

Seven Major Grid Schools Keep Records Unblemished

Iowa, West Virginia, USC Surprise; Terps And Spartans Score

By RIP WATSON

NEW YORK, Oct. 26 (AP)—Pass the smelling salts, please—some of the nation's college football coaches are a little "upset" today.

It happens at least one Saturday every football season and yesterday that old "upset" feeling reached almost epidemic proportions. Previous records and statistics went for naught as four-times beaten Iowa jolted Ohio State, 8-0, and Southern California shocked California, 10-0, in the most surprising cases of "upset" fever.

Iowa used a rock-ribbed defense in halting the in-and-out Buckeyes, while USC halfback Jimmy Sears reminded coast fans of the great Cotton Warburton when he grabbed a punt and returned it 69 yards for a first-period touchdown. California's Golden Bears, rated fourth in the country in the Associated Press Poll, were tarnished by the Trojans, who were ranked seventh. California, the nation's top rushing team with an average of 342.8 yards per game, made 119 yards and 0 points.

Mountaineers Upend Pitt

But there were other cases of the "upset" feeling peculiar to coaches in October and November. Washington fooled Stanford by running first and then passing for a 27-14 victory; Rick Casares of Florida ran, passed and kicked in Florida's 30-0 shellacking of Georgia and West Virginia made Pitt forget those Notre Dame and Army triumphs as they plastered the Panthers, 16-0.

That old feeling even troubled mighty Michigan State, No. 1 team in the land, as Penn State moved out to a 7-0 first-quarter lead. But quarterback Tom Yewcic uncorked a passing offense good for touchdowns on plays covering 61, 56 and 45 yards and Michigan State went on to a 34-7 triumph.

Second-rated Maryland, like Michigan State, was stopped on the ground by Louisiana State for awhile, but they found the same remedy Jack Scarbath started throwing the ball. After eight minutes of the second half, Scarbath had completed 11 of 18 passes for 181 yards, three touchdowns and a 34-0 lead. Final score: 34-6.

Top quarterbacking also was the difference as Duke upended Virginia in the South's top game of the day, 21-7. Worth Lutz proved that he is worth lots to Duke in passing for one touchdown, running for another and directing the Blue Devils

Take 15 Inch Trials, Tests Continue Today

Hounds owned by Paul O. McDonald Sproul, Pa., and Edward J. Frech, Washington, D. C., were adjudged winners in the 15 inch classes for bitches and dogs of the AKC licensed field trial staged Saturday and Sunday under the auspices of the Allegany Beagle Club at the club grounds on McMullen Highway.

McDonald's Black Nellie was judged the best of nine entries in the female class and Frech's Buddyline Venture copped first place in the male class in which there were 12 entries.

Judges were S. J. Bumgarner, Peebles, Ohio, and Robert Shockey, Meyersdale, Pa.

The entry list is expected to be much larger today when 13 inch dogs will be judged. The four-day event concludes on Tuesday when 13 inch bitches will compete.

Cash prizes and ribbons are awarded the owners of the winning hounds. The results:

15 INCH BITCHES

1. McDonald's Black Nellie, owner Paul O. McDonald, Sproul, Pa.
2. Nifty's Miss Gill, Rev. Clair Gartland, Conemaugh, Pa.

1. Buddyline Venture, Edward J. Frech, Washington, D. C.
2. Gal's Frosty, Joe Gallagher, Baltimore, Md.
3. Fairview Lad, Howard J. Crissinger, Sand Patch, Pa.
4. Chippewa Joe, George D. Kirby, Frostburg, Md.

Reserve: Gunner's Mate Jingo, Russell Bennett, Butler, Pa.

Potomac State Tops Shepherd

Loughmen Chalk Up 4th Victory, 21-0

Potomac State celebrated homecoming day at Stayman Field, by defeating the Shepherd College's Rams Saturday by the score of 21-0.

The triumph was the fourth in five starts for Coach Dana "Horse" Lough's eleven and gave Potomac a 2-1 record in the West Virginia Intercollegiate Conference.

A 56-yard pass play, George Baird to Bill Long, produced the first State score in the second period. Danny Rose climaxed a 56-yard drive in the third stanza by going over from the seven. In the final period Richard Zack, Pittsburgh, plunged over from the five to culminate a 35-yard march. Joe Talbott booted all of State's extra points.

Potomac plays Concord College's Mountain Lions in a conference game Saturday night at Hinton, W. Va. Lineups:

Eagles Spill Giants, 14-10, In NFL Upset

Sensational Leaping Catch By Bob Walston Scores Winning TD

NEW YORK, Oct. 26 (AP)—Philadelphia's Eagles shattered New York's forward wall and riddled the famous umbrella defense to inflict a stunning 14-10 setback upon the Giants to the astonishment of 21,458 Polo Grounds spectators.

The ferocious and hard-charging Eagles, playing like anything but 15-point underdogs, belted the New Yorkers so hard and often they sent a half dozen Giants hobbling to the sidelines, including Halfback Stars Eddie Price and Frank Gifford. So vicious was their defense that Price, the league's leading ground gainer up to today, was limited to a net total of seven yards in 11 tries and Kyle Rote was held to 12 in seven attempts. In all, the Giants made only 54 yards on the ground and 55 in the air.

The loss knocked the Giants out of a three-way tie for first place in the American Conference with Cleveland's Browns taking over undisputed possession of first as a result of their 19-15 triumph over Washington. The Eagles, Giants and Chicago Cardinals are tied for second with 3-2 records. The Browns have won four and lost one.

The Eagles squeezed all their scoring into a five-minute period in the second quarter to overcome an early 3-0 deficit.

Bob Walston, the six-foot end from Georgia, grabbed what proved to be the winning touchdown on a sensational leaping catch of Quarterback Bobby Thomason's 19-yard heave in the deepest corner of the end zone seven seconds before the end of the first half. He plucked the pigskin right out of the hands of defenders Harmon Rowe and Frank Gifford. The 23-year-old sophomore also kicked both extra points. Score:

PHILADELPHIA	0	14	0	0—14

Philadelphia scoring: Touchdowns — Bawel, Walston. Point After Touchdowns—Walston 2.

New York scoring: Touchdown—Sherrod. Point After Touchdown — Poole. Field Goal—Poole.

Welters To Share Boxing Spotlight

Heavy Bob Baker Essays Comeback

NEW YORK, Oct. 26 (AP) — Three welterweight bouts featuring high-ranking 147-pounders and a bantam weight clash for the American title, highlight the week's boxing program.

Two of the top welters, former NBA Champion Johnny Bratton of Chicago, and Soldier Joe Miceli of New York, tangle in a ten at Madison Square Garden Friday. The bout will be telecast nationally.

The Monday night TV show out of Brooklyn's Eastern Parkway Arena, matches Lightweight Contender Paddy De Marco of Brooklyn, and Cuba's Orlando Zulueta, in a ten.

There will be no Wednesday night television fight.

In an effort to stimulate boxing in the lighter classes, the NBA has decided to recognize the winner of a Monday night 12-rounder in Quebec as the American bantamweight champion. Pappy Gault of Spartanburg, S. C., and Fernand Gagnon will battle for the honor.

Welterweight Johnny Saxton, undefeated Brooklyn Negro, will mix with Mexico's Mario Trigo, in Milwaukee Tuesday, while Lanky Bobby Dykes will face Lester Felton in Louisville Monday in another welterweight struggle.

Heavyweight Bob Baker of Pittsburgh, idle nearly a year with bad hands, starts a comeback in his hometown on Tuesday against Bill Gilliam of Orange, N. J.

McClure Is Winner In 3rd Flight Final

Jack McClure won the third flight championship in the Cumberland Country Club's fall golf tournament by defeating John Mosner, 6 and 5, yesterday in the finals.

In a sixth flight semi-final match, William Carscaden defeated Lester Deneen, 1 up on the 18th hole.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 26 (INS) — Let me tell you without a moment's delay who gets the lead in the film version of Cole Porter's musical, "Kiss Me Kate"—Kathryn Grayson, no less. She goes right back to MGM as soon as she finishes the Grace Moore story at Warner's.

"Kiss Me Kate," which ran so long on Broadway with Patricia Morison, is, of course, taken from Shakespeare's "Taming of the Shrew." It's a great part for Katie.

This will also mean a reunion with Director George Sidney for Kathryn. He directed her in her first test at MGM when she was only 16 years old, and he also directed "Show Boat," one of her best pictures.

I happen to know that the musical that Johnnie Ray tested for at 20th Century-Fox a few days ago is "Heaven Is My Destination." For some reason 20th is very hush-hush about the whole thing and has not given the story out.

When Johnnie tested on stage one, his wife, Marilyn, was sitting right beside him to give him courage. He sang "Walking My Baby Back Home," and secretaries from far and wide made an excuse to walk by the stage just to take a look at the crying singer.

When I was on the Jack Benny radio show yesterday, Mary Livingston (Mrs. Benny) introduced me to a smiling young man. "Louella," Mary said, "this is Charles Hand—and a story for you!"

It was a story, and no wonder the young man was smiling. Seems Charles is an usher at CBS. For some time both Mary and Jack had noticed his fine speaking voice and how attractive he is. So Mary spoke to William Goetz, head of Universal-International Pictures, who came to the radio station and took a look at the boy.

Result: Charles now has a contract at U-I and a chance to prove himself an actor. He's a lucky boy, and I wish him well.

The very brave fight Susan Peters put up to live is more dramatic and touching than any fiction. She was a big success in Philadelphia in "Barrets of Wimpole Street," and at that time had a romance which was widely publicized.

But Susan wasn't well, and knew it. She had never been able to walk since the unfortunate hunting accident which paralyzed her. She long distanced me from Philadelphia to say she decided to come home until she felt better. So she returned from the acting she loved and went to her brother's ranch, where she lived until her death on Thursday.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Jack Benny went right from his show to the Cedars of Lebanon Hospital for a three day rest and his once a year checkup. "The time to go to the hospital," says Jack, "is before you get sick."

Jose Ferrer came into town Saturday and had dinner with Rosemary Clooney. She may decide that her career is the most important thing in her life.

John Wildberg is back in town to plead his case with Babe Blum.

Clark Gable and Joan Harrison have apparently taken up where they left off when he married Lady Sylvia Ashley. Joan met Clark in Geneva and the "King" turned on all that old familiar charm.

The first to open up the duck season were John Wayne and Paul Mantz, who flew to Fresno over the weekend.

Mrs. Hoagy Carmichael is recuperating at Good Samaritan Hospital after an operation.

The new boy friend on whose arm Vera Ellen appeared at the Mocambo was named Russ Severin, a tall, handsome stranger. No one seemed to know him.

Jack O'Connell, editor of Cosmopolitan magazine, is in town for a few days of business.

Wonder why veteran Actor Tom Moore hasn't more jobs in the movies. He's wonderful as Elwood Dowd in "Harvey," with the Community Players in the Pacific Palisades.

That's all today. See you tomorrow.

Manges Fined $794 In Overload Case

A Grantsville trucker, John A. Manges, was fined $794.90 during the week September 27-October 4 on an overweight charge, according to the State Roads Commission.

Fines meted out to other area truckers were $61.45 for Samuel D. Hartman, Lonaconing, and $27.45 for Kenneth W. Shipway, Cumberland.

The Big Savage Company of Frostburg paid $40.75 for overloading.

FACTS YOU WILL WANT TO KNOW ABOUT "IVANHOE"

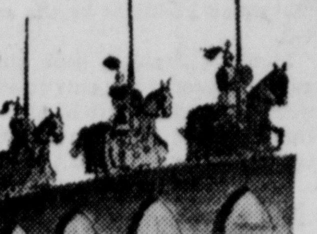
M-G-M's production of Sir Walter Scott's famous novel of romantic adventure is the first time this story has ever been brought to the screen as a full-length feature.

"Ivanhoe" was two years in production. Many months of research at the British Museum preceded actual filming. Every detail of costumes and settings was painstakingly checked for authenticity.

M-G-M transported stars and technicians thousands of miles to the actual locales of the story in England. "Ivanhoe" was filmed in its entirety amid ancient castles, famous battlefields and other historic sites.

Among the scenes recreated was the storming of Torquilstone Castle with thousands of archers hurling themselves over the moats and against the battlements.

The fabulous Ashby Tourney which tested the courage and skill of knights in battle is shown in all its fury and splendor. The armor worn by the knights was hand-wrought as in the medieval days.



The gallant crusaders of Richard the Lion-Hearted and the Norman legions of Prince John were trained in the use of their lances and broadswords by military experts for many months prior to the big battle scenes.

"Ivanhoe" comes to the screen enriched by Technicolor and with thousands in the cast, including such great stars as Robert Taylor, Elizabeth Taylor, Joan Fontaine, George Sanders and Emlyn Williams.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 26 (INS) — Let me tell you without a moment's delay who gets the lead in the film version of Cole Porter's musical, "Kiss Me Kate"—Kathryn Grayson, no less. She goes right back to MGM as soon as she finishes the Grace Moore story at Warner's.

"Kiss Me Kate," which ran so long on Broadway with Patricia Morison, is, of course, taken from Shakespeare's "Taming of the Shrew." It's a great part for Katie.

This will also mean a reunion with Director George Sidney for Kathryn. He directed her in her first test at MGM when she was only 16 years old, and he also directed "Show Boat," one of her best pictures.

I happen to know that the musical that Johnnie Ray tested for at 20th Century-Fox a few days ago is "Heaven Is My Destination." For some reason 20th is very hush-hush about the whole thing and has not given the story out.

When Johnnie tested on stage one, his wife, Marilyn, was sitting right beside him to give him courage. He sang "Walking My Baby Back Home," and secretaries from far and wide made an excuse to walk by the stage just to take a look at the crying singer.

When I was on the Jack Benny radio show yesterday, Mary Livingston (Mrs. Benny) introduced me to a smiling young man. "Louella," Mary said, "this is Charles Hand—and a story for you!"

It was a story, and no wonder the young man was smiling. Seems Charles is an usher at CBS. For some time both Mary and Jack had noticed his fine speaking voice and how attractive he is. So Mary spoke to William Goetz, head of Universal-International Pictures, who came to the radio station and took a look at the boy.

Result: Charles now has a contract at U-I and a chance to prove himself an actor. He's a lucky boy, and I wish him well.

The very brave fight Susan Peters put up to live is more dramatic and touching than any fiction. She was a big success in Philadelphia in "Barrets of Wimpole Street," and at that time had a romance which was widely publicized.

But Susan wasn't well, and knew it. She had never been able to walk since the unfortunate hunting accident which paralyzed her. She long distanced me from Philadelphia to say she decided to come home until she felt better. So she returned from the acting she loved and went to her brother's ranch, where she lived until her death on Thursday.

Jack Benny went right from his show to the Cedars of Lebanon Hospital for a three day rest and his once a year checkup. "The time to go to the hospital," says Jack, "is before you get sick."

Jose Ferrer came into town Saturday and had dinner with Rosemary Clooney. She may decide that her career is the most important thing in her life.

Clark Gable and Joan Harrison have apparently taken up where they left off when he married Lady Sylvia Ashley. Joan met Clark in Geneva and the "King" turned on all that old familiar charm.

The first to open up the duck season were John Wayne and Paul Mantz, who flew to Fresno over the weekend.

Mrs. Hoagy Carmichael is recuperating at Good Samaritan Hospital after an operation.

The new boy friend on whose arm Vera Ellen appeared at the Mocambo was named Russ Severin, a tall, handsome stranger. No one seemed to know him.

Jack O'Connell, editor of Cosmopolitan magazine, is in town for a few days of business.

Wonder why veteran Actor Tom Moore hasn't more jobs in the movies. He's wonderful as Elwood Dowd in "Harvey," with the Community Players in the Pacific Palisades.

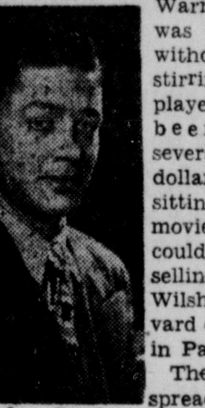
Radio And Television

by John Crosby

Television City

HOLLYWOOD

I haven't been here in three years, which gives a man perspective. Three years ago, there was something pretty close to a panic here.



John Crosby

Warner Brothers was closed tight without a camera stirring. Contract players who had been extracting several hundred dollars a week for sitting around movie studios could be found selling cars on Wilshire Boulevard or real estate in Palm Springs.

There was widespread unemployment, especially among technicians—the cameramen, lighting experts, stagehands and the like. The picture folk were publicly talking tough and privately scared blue about television. Well, things have certainly changed.

Today the movie folk have learned to live with television to the extent where they don't talk about it or even think about it very much. Three years ago, if you asked a movie star about television, you'd get a half-hour talk about how people would always go out nights because married folk couldn't stand the sight of each other every night. They can't hurt us, he'd tell you, because we have the stars, the know-how and the money. Then you'd get a lecture on economics, proving TV couldn't conceivably fill all that time and that the home folks would eventually be driven out of their homes in despair and probably take up residence in movie theaters. It was all very entertaining.

Today, you ask a movie executive about TV and he says, well, I don't look at it much any more, and passes on to more fruitful discourse like sex and politics. The mood has changed. The physical structure here has changed mightily, too. The networks are both building huge, menacing structures to house their live shows. NBC's is a lime green, thoroughly ugly structure which, its architect boasts, was never meant to be luxurious and isn't. It's a TV factory, stuffed with whirring wheels, paint shops and cables. CBS's, which I haven't yet seen, is twice as big and expensive. Neither is yet finished and the word around Hollywood is that both are already obsolete.

Meanwhile, every available lot is bustling with television activity. Pathe, RKO, Roach are swarming with actors and writers and technicians, all shooting film for television—heaven knows how much. The General Service Studio, an old structure, probably boasts more television stars than any place in town. Three years ago, the owner was considering renting the space as an automobile parking lot. It was built for independent movie production and when the bottom fell out it became a ghost town. Today, you can't get space on it.

On its antiquated sound stages are shot such TV shows as "I Love Lucy," "The Burns and Allen Show," the interior shots of "The Lone Ranger," "Ozzie and Harriet," "I Married Joan," and "Our Miss Brooks." Here "I Love Lucy" pioneered a technique which is spreading all over the place—the filmed show in front of an audience, a sort of mixture of movies, radio and television which has been enormously successful.

On the domestic shows, the settings are remarkably alike. Lined up, so the actors can pass from one to another, are permanent sets—a kitchen, living room and bedroom—the basic framework of domestic comedy. (If they need another set, they build it in front of one of the permanent sets and then tear it down.) In front of these—at least, on those shows that shoot in front of an audience—behind the cameras and the sound booms, are rows of bleachers, just plain boards, which resemble the stands at a backwoods football stadium. It's all wonderfully primitive and it works fine.

The few seats at, say, "I Love Lucy," are among the most coveted in town. Viewing conditions are far from ideal, but everyone wants to see Lucille Ball and Desi Arnaz do their pratfalls — even though the most they can frequently see is the back of a cameraman's neck. Conversely, it's getting harder and harder to lure people from Dubuque into NBC's famous radio studios at Hollywood and Vine. When I first came to Hollywood six years ago, the lines used to stretch clear around the block. Today you can walk in any time. In fact, the ushers almost tackle you in an effort to dredge up live audiences for the once celebrated radio shows.

I walked down the street at General Service with an actor. Every time he passed anyone, he'd smile, hold his fingers in an "O" sign and say: "Great! Very funny." The others would beam at him and nod back. "What's very funny?" I asked. "You're the first one who's asked," he said. "Everyone here is shooting comedy shows. You can say: 'Great! Very funny!' to anyone here and he thinks you're talking about his show. Actually, we're all so busy shooting for television here none of us has time to look at it very much."

Radio And Television

HOLLYWOOD

I haven't been here in three years, which gives a man perspective. Three years ago, there was something pretty close to a panic here. Warner Brothers was closed tight without a camera stirring. Contract players who had been extracting several hundred dollars a week for sitting around movie studios could be found selling cars on Wilshire Boulevard or real estate in Palm Springs.

John Crosby

There was widespread unemployment, especially among technicians—the cameramen, lighting experts, stagehands and the like. The picture folk were publicly talking tough and privately scared blue about television. Well, things have certainly changed.

Today the movie folk have learned to live with television to the extent where they don't talk about it or even think about it very much. Three years ago, if you asked a movie star about television, you'd get a half-hour talk about how people would always go out nights because married folk couldn't stand the sight of each other every night. They can't hurt us, he'd tell you, because we have the stars, the know-how and the money. Then you'd get a lecture on economics, proving TV couldn't conceivably fill all that time and that the home folks would eventually be driven out of their homes in despair and probably take up residence in movie theaters. It was all very entertaining.

Today, you ask a movie executive about TV and he says, well, I don't look at it much any more, and passes on to more fruitful discourse like sex and politics. The mood has changed. The physical structure here has changed mightily, too. The networks are both building huge, menacing structures to house their live shows. NBC's is a lime green, thoroughly ugly structure which, its architect boasts, was never meant to be luxurious and isn't. It's a TV factory, stuffed with whirring wheels, paint shops and cables. CBS's, which I haven't yet seen, is twice as big and expensive. Neither is yet finished and the word around Hollywood is that both are already obsolete.

Meanwhile, every available lot is bustling with television activity. Pathe, RKO, Roach are swarming with actors and writers and technicians, all shooting film for television—heaven knows how much. The General Service Studio, an old structure, probably boasts more television stars than any place in town. Three years ago, the owner was considering renting the space as an automobile parking lot. It was built for independent movie production and when the bottom fell out it became a ghost town. Today, you can't get space on it.

On its antiquated sound stages are shot such TV shows as "I Love Lucy," "The Burns and Allen Show," the interior shots of "The Lone Ranger," "Ozzie and Harriet," "I Married Joan," and "Our Miss Brooks." Here "I Love Lucy" pioneered a technique which is spreading all over the place—the filmed show in front of an audience, a sort of mixture of movies, radio and television which has been enormously successful.

On the domestic shows, the settings are remarkably alike. Lined up, so the actors can pass from one to another, are permanent sets—a kitchen, living room and bedroom—the basic framework of domestic comedy. (If they need another set, they build it in front of one of the permanent sets and then tear it down.) In front of these—at least, on those shows that shoot in front of an audience—behind the cameras and the sound booms, are rows of bleachers, just plain boards, which resemble the stands at a backwoods football stadium. It's all wonderfully primitive and it works fine.

The few seats at, say, "I Love Lucy," are among the most coveted in town. Viewing conditions are far from ideal, but everyone wants to see Lucille Ball and Desi Arnaz do their pratfalls — even though the most they can frequently see is the back of a cameraman's neck. Conversely, it's getting harder and harder to lure people from Dubuque into NBC's famous radio studios at Hollywood and Vine. When I first came to Hollywood six years ago, the lines used to stretch clear around the block. Today you can walk in any time. In fact, the ushers almost tackle you in an effort to dredge up live audiences for the once celebrated radio shows.

I walked down the street at General Service with an actor. Every time he passed anyone, he'd smile, hold his fingers in an "O" sign and say: "Great! Very funny." The others would beam at him and nod back. "What's very funny?" I asked. "You're the first one who's asked," he said. "Everyone here is shooting comedy shows. You can say: 'Great! Very funny!' to anyone here and he thinks you're talking about his show. Actually, we're all so busy shooting for television here none of us has time to look at it very much."

I'M EXHAUSTED TONIGHT--I'VE BEEN WORKING SINCE EARLY MORNING
IT'S SO NICE TO REST FOR A MINUTE
DO YOU KNOW YOU'RE LYING ON ME, DEAR?
IT DOESN'T MATTER
I'M SO TIRED I COULD GO TO SLEEP ON A PILE OF BRICKS

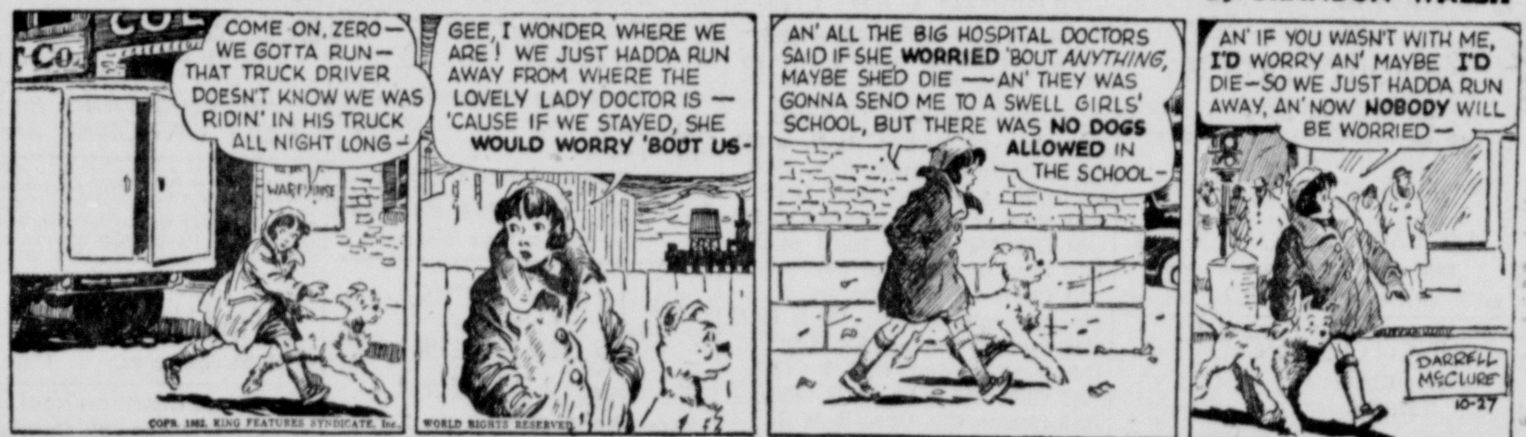
By BRANDON WALSH



COME ON, ZERO—WE GOTTA RUN—THAT TRUCK DRIVER DOESN'T KNOW WE WAS RIDIN' IN HIS TRUCK ALL NIGHT LONG—
GEE, I WONDER WHERE WE ARE! WE JUST HADDA RUN AWAY FROM WHERE THE LOVELY LADY DOCTOR IS—'CAUSE IF WE STAYED, SHE WOULD WORRY 'BOUT US—
AN' ALL THE BIG HOSPITAL DOCTORS SAID IF SHE WORRIED 'BOUT ANYTHING, MAYBE SHE'D DIE—AN' THEY WAS GONNA SEND ME TO A SWELL GIRLS' SCHOOL, BUT THERE WAS NO DOGS ALLOWED IN THE SCHOOL—
AN' IF YOU WASN'T WITH ME, I'D WORRY AN' MAYBE I'D DIE—SO WE JUST HADDA RUN AWAY, AN' NOW NOBODY WILL BE WORRIED—

IT'S A GOOD THING YOU'RE BACKTRACKING, MISTER. I DID PASS A TRUCK COMING THIS WAY. HAD TWO BOYS ABOARD PEEPING OUT FROM THE BACK CURTAIN. IT MIGHT BE THEM.
IT WOULDN'T BE ANYBODY ELSE. WHAT A FOOL I WAS NOT TO STOP THAT TRUCK WHEN I PASSED IT. THE RAIN IS STOPPING, THANK GOODNESS.
I'M GOING TO SWING OFF ON THIS SIDE ROAD FOR A BIT. GOT TO MAKE A PICKUP. IT WON'T TAKE US VERY LONG. YOU DON'T MIND, DO YOU?

STEELE BURIAL

Services for James C. Steele, 76, of Mt. Savage Road, who died Thursday at the Allegany County Infirmary, were conducted Saturday in the George Funeral Home.

Major Elmer Wall of the Salvation Army officiated and interment was in Rose Hill Cemetery.

Pallbearers were John Beier, Carl Zais, Troy Marks, Thomas White, Arlie Paine and Jack Vernall.

REGER RITES

Last rites for Robert E. Reger, 55, who died Thursday at his home, rear of 942 Gay Street, were conducted Saturday in the Stein Funeral Home.

Rev. Kenneth M. Hayes, pastor of Second Baptist Church, officiated and interment was in Greenmount Cemetery.

Pallbearers were Edgar S. Leasure, William L. Dean, Louis Heirer, N. M. Abe, Thomas E. Bucy and James C. Martin.

MRS. EMMA F. HUGHES

Mrs. Emma Frances Hughes, 81, former resident of this city, died Saturday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Hanna Seeker, Tallmadge, Ohio.

A native of Winchester, Va., Mrs. Hughes was the daughter of the late John and Elizabeth (Powell) Miles. Her husband, Walter E. Hughes, died about 36 years ago.

Besides Mrs. Seeker, she is survived by three other daughters, Mrs. May Burkett, Akron; Mrs. Ruth Chancey, Canal Fulton, Ohio, and Mrs. Sarah Minnicks, Bowman's Addition, and four sons, Frederick and Walter of Akron; Charles and Howard of Clinton, Ohio.

The body will be brought to the George Funeral Home this morning for services at 2 p. m. with Rev. J. F. Zimmerman, pastor of the First Congregational Church, Frostburg, officiating. Burial will be in the Greenmount Cemetery.

LAWRENCE TYREE

PARSONS—Lawrence Tyree, 33, a native of Parsons, died Thursday in Canton, Ohio.

He was a son of Mrs. Ethel (Baker) Tyree, Parsons, and the late Fred Tyree. His wife, Mrs. Barbee (Jarvis) Tyree, died of infantile paralysis last year.

A graduate of Parsons High School in 1940, Mr. Tyree served in the Navy during World War II. He had been employed in Canton by Republic Steel Company for the past three years.

Surviving, besides his mother, are a son, Stephen Tyree; a daughter, Karen Tyree, both of Parsons, and a brother, Ralph Tyree, Associated, Calif.

The body is at the Greenlief Funeral Home here. Services will be held there at 2 p. m. tomorrow. Rev. W. A. O'Dell, pastor of First Methodist Church, will officiate and interment will be in Parsons Cemetery.

Funeral Is Planned Today For Railroad Mishap Victim

JESSE L. EASTON

Services for Jesse Lee Easton, 54-year-old veteran B&O car inspector, who was decapitated early Saturday in a railroad accident below the Williams Street crossing, will be conducted today at 2 p. m. from the Hafer Funeral Home by Rev. Howard M. Amoss, pastor of Centre Street Methodist Church.

The body of Easton, husband of Mrs. Marguerite (Houck) Easton, 611 Lynn Street, was found sprawled along Track 12 near the rear of the Cumberland Welding and Supply Company, 102 Wineow Street, about 5 a. m. Authorities said he apparently fell beneath the wheels of a boxcar.

Dr. H. V. Deming, deputy county medical examiner, said the body was found by B. L. Kessler, another car inspector who had been sent to check on Easton when he failed to report at the west end yards.

Investigation disclosed Easton, who had been a car inspector for 38 years, reported for work at 3 a. m. to help make up a train. Time of death was set at 4:10.

Dr. Deming said Easton apparently was climbing between two boxcars on Track 12 when he slipped and fell or was jolted to the ground by shifting cars. He said Engine 428 operated by D. E. Petoney, engineer, and M. F. Miller, conductor, was involved.

Railroad officials pointed out that employes are warned against climbing under cars. Police Officer E. P. Wilson assisted Dr. Deming with the investigation.

Born in Cumberland, the victim was a son of Mrs. Lula (Eversole) Easton, city, and the late George Samuel Easton. He was a member of Local 665, Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen of America.

In addition to his widow and mother, he leaves two daughters, Mrs. Ralph Edwards, Burlington, N. C., and Mrs. Robert Doak, city; a son, Paul Billard Easton, Washington; four brothers, Harry I., George R., Raymond R. and Carl E. Easton, city; four sisters, Mrs. Oliver Aldridge, Mrs. Samuel Africa and Mrs. William Howe, also of Cumberland, and Mrs. George Willet, Washington, and six grandchildren.

FRANK J. JONES

KEYSER — Frank J. Jones, 68, farmer of Headsville, died Saturday evening in Potomac Valley Hospital, where he had been a patient for some time. He was born January 5, 1884, in Culpepper County, Va., a son of Isaac Buerl and Martha L. (Halterman) Jones. He moved to Mineral County in 1918 and has resided here since. He had been in ill health for several years.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. June (Guy) Jones; one daughter, Mrs. Rachel Hott, Keyser, and two sons, William F. Jones, Headsville, and Arthur Jones, Baltimore; 17 grandchildren and two great grandchildren. He was a member of the Methodist Church in Piedmont.

A service will be conducted tomorrow at 2 p. m. in the Headsville Methodist Church, with Rev. William Suite, pastor, officiating. The body will remain at Rogers' Funeral Home, here, until a short time before the service in the church. Burial will be in Headsville Cemetery.

Funeral Is Planned Today For Railroad Mishap Victim

Services for Jesse Lee Easton, 54-year-old veteran B&O car inspector, who was decapitated early Saturday in a railroad accident below the Williams Street crossing, will be conducted today at 2 p. m. from the Hafer Funeral Home by Rev. Howard M. Amoss, pastor of Centre Street Methodist Church.

The body of Easton, husband of Mrs. Marguerite (Houck) Easton, 611 Lynn Street, was found sprawled along Track 12 near the rear of the Cumberland Welding and Supply Company, 102 Wineow Street, about 5 a. m. Authorities said he apparently fell beneath the wheels of a boxcar.

Dr. H. V. Deming, deputy county medical examiner, said the body was found by B. L. Kessler, another car inspector who had been sent to check on Easton when he failed to report at the west end yards.

Investigation disclosed Easton, who had been a car inspector for 38 years, reported for work at 3 a. m. to help make up a train. Time of death was set at 4:10.

Dr. Deming said Easton apparently was climbing between two boxcars on Track 12 when he slipped and fell or was jolted to the ground by shifting cars. He said Engine 428 operated by D. E. Petoney, engineer, and M. F. Miller, conductor, was involved.

Railroad officials pointed out that employes are warned against climbing under cars. Police Officer E. P. Wilson assisted Dr. Deming with the investigation.

Born in Cumberland, the victim was a son of Mrs. Lula (Eversole) Easton, city, and the late George Samuel Easton. He was a member of Local 665, Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen of America.

In addition to his widow and mother, he leaves two daughters, Mrs. Ralph Edwards, Burlington, N. C., and Mrs. Robert Doak, city; a son, Paul Billard Easton, Washington; four brothers, Harry I., George R., Raymond R. and Carl E. Easton, city; four sisters, Mrs. Oliver Aldridge, Mrs. Samuel Africa and Mrs. William Howe, also of Cumberland, and Mrs. George Willet, Washington, and six grandchildren.

Weatherman Aids Area Firefighters As Woods Blazes Are Controlled

Flames Still Sweep Timberlands; Some Blazes Believed Deliberately Set; W. Va. Hard Hit

Forest fires in the tinder dry Tri-State District, which already have claimed one life, yesterday were brought under control as a heavy morning frost dampened area timberlands and lack of wind all day kept flames at a minimum.

In the Tucker County, W. Va., area officials suspected vandalism in the 13 fires which occurred there since Thursday. E. B. Olson, assistant district ranger, said last night 12 of the fires are under investigation by West Virginia State Police and are believed to have been started intentionally.

Olson reported last night all fires in that area are under control with five blazes still being patroled by crewmen. Only one new fire, which began from a spark from another, was reported yesterday.

The small fire which burned only several acres about two miles east of Hendricks was easily brought under control. Biggest fire in that area was in Blackwater Canyon where 90 acres of timberland were destroyed since Thursday. The hard-to-fight blaze was being patroled late last night, but Olson reported it was well in control.

Worst In 20 Years

Meanwhile in the Elkins, W. Va., close to 200 fire fighters are battling a blaze which is termed by authorities as the worst in that section for over 20 years.

It was finally brought under control after burning about 3,000 acres of virgin forest in the Roaring Plains and Flat Rock section of West Virginia between Onego and Lanesville about 40 miles from Elkins.

The fire is being supervised by the Potomac Rangers District with offices in Petersburg and headquarters in Elkins. Officials reported the fire had finally been checked after it burned a circle 12 miles round in the wild timberlands of that section.

Word was received at the Elkins headquarters that crewmen spotted an unidentified man setting fires ahead of them in the untamed wilderness being used by the West Virginia State Conservation Commission for breeding wild game.

One Man Injured

Authorities said only one person has been injured in fighting the fire since Thursday. He was a near Petersburg youth who was struck by a burning falling snag. Officials, however said, the injury was minor.

The wild area, still burning but checked, is in an isolated forest with no residents living there but at the same time having little water and few streams. Crewmen are digging ditches as fire breaks around the thundering blaze.

Officials said many college students from Davis and Elkins College and West Virginia University's School of Forestry are with the crews.

The district office has set up a fire fighting camp on Dollysods an open hill near the fire. Supplies are being taken in by truck from Elkins. Also a water tank truck is making daily trips into the camp. The water truck, privately owned by an Elkins man, is also supplying farmers on the other side of the fire area. Officials said the lack of rain has been taking its toll in farmers livestock.

Bad Crown Fires

The wilderness area being destroyed by the flames is mostly spruce trees, officials said, and many times crewmen have narrowly escaped with their lives as "crown fires" building in the tree tops caused explosions and roared in fury. Expert supervisors everytime

Two Area Women Found Dead Of Asphyxiation

Two young women from this area were found dead in bed early yesterday morning in their basement apartment at 924 Ridgeway Avenue, Morgantown, W. Va. Death was attributed to asphyxiation of fumes from a gas space heater.

The victims were identified as Miss Flora Mae Green, 20 of Mt. Storm, W. Va., and Gwenlyn Elaine Coakley, 21 of Scherr, W. Va.

Miss Green is a daughter of Albert Ervin Green and Ethel Victoria Kitzmiller Green of Mt. Storm who survive, together with her grandmother Mrs. Mary A. Green of Elk Garden, two brothers and a sister, Pfc. Elwood Green, USAF, Middletown, Pa., Jimmie Green and Betty Lou Green both at home.

She had been in Morgantown working as a secretary for Seneca Glass Company. She graduated in June from the Morgantown Business College and was also a graduate of Bayard High School in 1951. She was born April 13, 1932.

The body was taken to Sharpless Funeral Home at Blaine, W. Va., and will be removed to the family residence at Mt. Storm this evening at 5 o'clock. Funeral services will be held at Mt. Storm Methodist Church, of which she was a member Wednesday at 2 p. m. Interment will be in the IOOF Cemetery Elk Garden, W. Va.

Miss Coakley, is a daughter of Joseph A. and Nelcie M. Coakley, Scherr, W. Va. Miss Coakley was an employe of the Mile Ground Medical Center in Morgantown.

Miss Coakley is survived by two brothers, Leroy Coakley, Baltimore and Floyd Coakley, at home. She was a graduate of Petersburg, W. Va. High School class of 1951 and graduated from the Morgantown Business College this year. Her body will be taken to the home of her parents today.

New VA-Hospital Is Dedicated

Several local representatives of the Military Order of Purple Heart were in Baltimore yesterday for the dedication of the new Veterans' Administration Tuberculosis Hospital, at Loch Raven and Alameda Boulevards.

Attending from here were Herbert McFarland, Department of Maryland commander for the Order of Purple Heart; Mrs. McFarland, president of the local Purple Heart auxiliary, and Mrs. Edith M. Reichert, former Department of Maryland auxiliary president.

Principal speakers at the ceremonies were General Carl Gray, administrator of veterans affairs, and Vice-Admiral Joel T. Boone, chief medical director of veterans affairs. The new 300-bed hospital was built at a cost of $5,000,000.

Richard O'Conner, chairman of the Hospital Fund representing all veterans' organizations in Maryland, presented a check for $750 to the hospital for the start of its special services program.

Holy Name Launches Membership Drive

The Western Maryland Section of the Holy Name Society of the Baltimore Archdiocese launched a membership drive yesterday at a meeting in the Midland Fire Hall.

Thomas F. Conlon, Sr., section president, said the campaign will continue to December 14 when the group will meet again in St. Michael's Hall, Frostburg, to hear reports and elect new officers. At the December meeting the society will also close business for the year with Allegany and Garrett County parish representatives reporting.

Approximately 125 delegates and officers of the 12 parishes in the section were present at the Midland meeting.

Following the meeting, a Holy Hour service was held at St. Joseph's Catholic Church. Rev. Father Lawrence J. Landrigan, pastor of St. Mary's Church here and spiritual director of the Western Maryland Section, delivered the sermon. Rev. Father Francis Montgomery, pastor of St. Michael's Church, Frostburg, was celebrant, assisted by Rev. Father John Buckley, of the Midland church.

Wilson Lauds Police For Cooperation In Sparkman Rally

Police and Fire Commissioner John J. Long received a letter from William L. Wilson Jr., chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee, in appreciation of the cooperation from city police during Senator John J. Sparkman's visit here recently.

The following letter was posted in the squad room at police headquarters:

"The committee wishes to express the appreciation to you, the officers and men of the Police Department for the efficient manner in which the Sparkman rally was conducted on Saturday the 18th. Sen. Sparkman also asked me to express his personal thanks.

"We would also like to especially thank Lt. Raymond Johnson and Officer John Snyder for the excellent way in which the party was taken from the airport to the City Hall and also returned to the airport."

Local Couple Escapes As Car Jumps 80 Feet

Treated at Sacred Heart Hospital was Mrs. Geraldine E. Frantz, 1102 Frederick Street, wife of George W. Frantz, operator of the Frantz Home Bakery.

Lt. William E. O'Hara, of the Maryland State Police at LaVale Barracks, said the vehicle travelled about 80 feet from the highway into the front yard of Shertzer's. As the auto went through space it hurled over a rabbit pen in the yard of J. J. Garlick.

Four guard rails were torn out as the auto left the road. Frantz, according to police was returning to Cumberland at the time of the mishap. The front of the 1947 sedan was demolished as the couple miraculously escaped serious injury.

A note of humor entered into the near tragedy. The steel clothes line pole upon which the car "hung up" was a request of Mrs. Shertzer for about 14 years.

Shertzer finally installed it last Saturday and his wife had used it one time prior to the highway accident.

Lt. O'Hara last night said Frantz blamed the accident on headlights which blinded him.

County Delegates To Attend Southern Meet

Two county men will attend the 29th Southern States annual meeting in Richmond, Va., November 6 and 7.

Wilbur Perrin will attend as official delegate from Cumberland and Parker Warnick will be present as delegate from Lonaconing. Also attending will be Robert P. Heavner, manager of the local Southern States Agency, and Charles Clise, manager of the Lonaconing agency.

Today's Sermonette

. . . for a man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things he possesseth. Luke 12:15.

The Christian Steward And Property

By REV. KENNETH W. GROVE

Assuming we are agreed that God as the creator and the conservor of life is the sovereign owner of His creation, we come to believe that we His people as well as the world which has been created to sustain humanity are important in the Divine plan. It is exceedingly difficult for man today to conceive of God as Sovereign and Lord with man as steward, but we do not read very far into the Scripture until we come face to face with a truth which leaves no doubt in the mind of the thoughtful individual as to his role in life.

Rev. Grove

In Genesis 2:15 the narrator of the creation story tells symbolically of the role of man in this world. "And the Lord God took the man and put him into the garden of Eden to dress it and keep it. "In our day we need to extend the word garden quite a bit, for that which is needed to sustain human life today requires a more complex system of activity than the Genesis narrator ever dreamed. But the essential truth can never be disputed, for in all of our works we must collaborate with God.

As we of the present day seek to adjust ourselves to life on this planet we need to reckon with the great problem presented by the physical demands of a physical universe. What shall be the atttitude of a Christian person of the world and its wealth? How shall we approach the various offerings presented by the abundance of the things of the world? We are not long in the Faith until we need to consider the matter of a Christian steward and his relationship to property.

Jesus is rather insistent in His parables and other words of teaching that those who are His followers need to make adjustments to the world so that faith and practice may coincide. His parables teach the same refrain that is expressed resented by property money and other possessions.

Apparently there was nothing wrong with the rich man's means of acquiring wealth. He planted the fields, tended them carefully, and when the heads of grain bent with the weight of ripened fruit he harvested. This is as it should be. Jesus found no fault with this. By implication we come to know that there is a proper means for the acquisition of money.

Jesus found no fault with the fortunate farmer for wanting to take care of the fine harvest which had accrued to him as a result of his labor and care. He tore down barns and built new ones to accomodate the county of His harvest. Jesus was not distressed by this knowledge. We as Christian stewards need to remember that there is a Christian, way of administering the property and goods which come to us as a result of our labor and care.

The point at which Jesus realized that the prosperous farmer and God had come to cross purposes was the moment when the man said, "Now soul, take your ease. You have in abundance. You are secure for as long as you live." We here discover the essence of that which we have felt to be missing in the life and character of this man all the while. For while this man was a careful and wise farmer, using to the fullest his potentialities and possibilities, we now know that he has missed the ultimate as far as God is concerned. As far as man is concerned. What was done was not done to glorify and praise God, to improve the race of men and their lot. This was done to effect the security of one man and possibly the members of his immediate family.

In regard to property, the Christian steward needs to appraise careand wise in the administration of on thought in the prayer which He taught His disciples, "Thy kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven."

This leaves little room for doubt that it is the intent of God and His Son that the kingdoms of this world are to be the trial plots for the development of the kingdom of love and mercy. And by understanding the positive aspects implied in the parable of the wealthy fool, we come to realize that there is a

New State Budget System Adopted By Figure Experts

To Go Before Voters For Approval

ANNAPOLIS, Oct. 23 (AP) — Confident of voter approval, Maryland's expert figure filberts already have adopted a new budget system that has yet to be written into law.

The new fiscal deal is designed to tell the Legislature more about where tax money goes. It was endorsed last winter by the General Assembly.

It still must go on the ballot at referendum next month, because it requires an amendment to the Constitution. The proposed amendment simply eliminates the requirement of an "itemized" budget and authorizes one in form prescribed by the governor or Legislature.

Few Oppose

Few — if any — voices have been raised against it. The Governmental Survey Commission headed by Simon E. Sobeloff, Baltimore attorney, first suggested a "program" budget. After a little bandying in the Legislature, and whole-hearted support from Gov. McKeldin, it received general approval.

The Legislature even provided some funds to get the system rolling. The Budget Department retained a man familiar with the process to help install it. Several aides also have been hired.

Still the voters haven't said it's all right. But everyone expects they will, so the lawmakers may see state finances in what supporters of the budget call a modern light next Winter.

The gist of the program budget is to group appropriations according to each function state departments perform. In this way, a price tag hangs on every governmental job.

For years Maryland, like many other states, has listed its budget filling hundreds of big pages in a paper-bound book laid on each legislator's desk early in a General Assembly session. They've itemized every cent to be spent on employes, transportation, office equipment, fuel—even such things as wearing apparel and livestock.

Too Complicated

Sobeloff and his government probers contended this told the Legislature everything but nothing. Too complicated, they said. No clear picture of what the state was doing with its revenues.

The Legislature agreed, but insisted on hanging on to what they had for at least background information. The budget department will prepare appropriations recommended by the governor in "programs." But it must also have available data on the personnel every department employs and plans for spending on equipment, transportation, communications and so forth.

The leadership of both parties has come out for the new budget. Departments have asked for operating funds on forms devised to put it into effect. John A. Donaho, who administered a similar type budget in Richmond for several years, is working closely with James G. Rennie and James P. Slicher, the state's budget bosses.

The voters, they say, had better come through.

Sister Corona Dies In Convent At Baltimore

Sister Mary Corona, about 78, former supervisor and principal of St. Patrick's Catholic School, died Friday at the Mother House of the School Sisters of Notre Dame in Baltimore.

A requiem high mass will be celebrated today at 8 a. m. at the Mother House, 901 Asquith Street, with interment in Villa Maria Cemetery in Notch Cliff. The very Rev. J. Lawrence Kilkenny, pastor of St. Patrick's Catholic Church, left yesterday to attend the funeral.

Sister Corona is a native of Rochester, N. Y. and was supervisor and principal of St. Patrick's School from 1940-1946. From 1934-1940 she was first assistant of the Eastern Province of the order.

Two of her sisters were nuns in the same organization and became superiors. One died about 18 years ago and the other 20 years ago.

Civic Symphony Will Feature School Singers

Allegany County music students who sang with the All State Chorus in Baltimore earlier this month will be featured in the first concert of the Cumberland Civic Symphony Orchestra for the 1952-53 season.

This concert will be held Tuesday, November 18, in the Allegany High School auditorium.

Thirty-four students from Allegany County participated in the clinic and concert which opened the meeting of the Maryland State Teachers Association in Baltimore October 16. They will perform the same numbers with the symphony that they sang in Baltimore.

John Raymond of Lafayette College coached and directed the chorus of 300 voices. He has done chorus and clinic work with college and high schools in many states. He has been active in the Fred Waring Summer workshop.

The orchestra, with some familiar musicians and a number of new players, still has need of a few more. Rehearsals are held at 8 p. m., each Friday at the Moose Home on Beall Street. S. Lua Syckes is the director and Wilton Syckes is concert master.

The Junior Women's Civic Club again has made plans to sponsor the orchestra and has promised to provide $1,000. Last year the club prepared a souvenir program.

Rubber Workers To Take Course

Dr. A. L. Lewis, public relations officer of the International Rubber Workers (URW-CIO) will be at the headquarters of Local 26, 152-54 North Mechanic Street, for three days this week to conduct a course in public speaking for union members.

William G. Rice, president of Local 26, said that the two-hour sessions, beginning at 7:30 o'clock each night, are primarily for members of Local 26 although other union workers are invited. The sessions will begin tonight and end Wednesday.

Each afternoon, beginning today, Dr. Lewis will meet with Local 26's publicity committee of which Gerald Young is chairman. The local hopes to reactivate its newspaper which suspended publication several years ago. It was known as "The Rubberneck."

Dr. Lewis comes here from Akron, Ohio.

Protestants Attend Rally At St. Luke's

A large congregation representing most of Cumberland's Protestant churches attended the second annual Reformation Rally yesterday afternoon at St. Luke's Lutheran Church.

"We Protestants must stress our positive message," Rev. Edward Clapper, pastor of Grace Lutheran Church, Altoona, Pa., told the congregation. "We must announce our own program and stop denouncing those denominations with which we do not agree."

Rev. Clapper, principal speaker at the rally, cited the contributions of various leaders in the Protestant Reformation. He emphasized that Martin Luther's belief was justification by faith, which is the primary belief of most Protestants today.

The visiting speaker concluded his remarks by explaining why he is a Protestant.

These Reformation rallies are held annually on the last Sunday in October, the Sunday nearest October 31, the date on which Luther broke with the Roman Catholic Church.

Dr. H. Hall Sharp, pastor of St. Luke's Lutheran Church, presided at the service. Eight other clergymen assisted in various phases of the rally.

Weather

Yesterday was rather an ideal fall day. The sun was bright with blue skies overhead suitable for an afternoon stroll through the autumn foliage. The high temperature as recorded at the official weather station in Constitution Park was 63 degrees, with a low of 25 degrees. The mercury at 8:45 p. m. registered 47 degrees and humidity measured at 6 p. m. was 43 per cent. Forecast for today is fair with warm weather in the interior this afternoon.

Hyde To Address Lions

DeWitt S. Hyde, candidate for Congress on the Republican ticket next month, will be guest speaker, Wednesday at 12:15 p. m., at Central YMCA during a luncheon meeting of the Cumberland Lions Club. He will speak on "Problems of Western Maryland."

Arson Suspected In Bad Blaze At Hide Company

Police, Firemen Find Evidence Of Vandalism

Arson coupled with breaking and entering is suspected by city police and firemen following a call received early yesterday morning at Hirsch Brothers hide company located at 109 Cumberland Street.

Central firemen were notified of the fire about 2:07 a. m. Chief Virgil A. Parker, who was on the scene, said both the pumper and aerial truck went to the fire.

The sprinkler system in the building was set off by the intense heat of the fire and tripped an alarm located on the outside of the building. A neighbor heard the alarm, went to the building, discovered the blaze, and notified firemen.

City police also went to the fire and later found that a pane of glass in a rear door of the building had been broken out and entrance gained. A company spokesman said the glass was unbroken Saturday afternoon when the place closed for the weekend.

Considerable damage was caused in two offices. One fire, police noted, was apparently started under a counter in the front office where some old records were burned. A chest of drawers in an office adjoining the other room was also burned. Several drawers were pulled out and a fire apparently started, police added.

Burglary apparently was not the motive for the fires, police said, since a large safe, other machines and cabinets were untouched, although papers were strewn about the offices.

An investigation is being continued by Detective Roy C. Hawse. Also at the scene early yesterday morning was John H. Stitcher of the police department.

Today Deadline For Interest Free City Tax

The City Tax Office is getting ready for a big day.

Today will be the last day on which 1952-53 taxes can be settled without paying interest. Mailed payments postmarked by midnight will be interest free.

George E. Davis, city collector, said payments are expected to reach 85 per cent of the tax levy by the deadline.

Collections have been heavy and about on a par with last year, officials said.

The tax bills were placed in the mails on September 19, and by the end of that month, collections were at the $198,000 mark.

By Friday afternoon, collections totaled $620,692, or about 69¼ per cent of the $892,200 tax levy. Collections must total $761,770 by tonight to reach 85 per cent.

Interest on city taxes begins at the rate of one per cent tomorrow, since interest dates back to August 25, when the levy was set. One half of one per cent is charged on succeeding months.

Three Civil Suits Set For Today

Three civil suits are docketed for trial today in Allegany County Circuit Court.

One of these trials involves cross suits growing out of an accident on Braddock Road January 20. Howard W. Broadwater and Viola V. Broadwater, his wife, Braddock Road, first sued Joseph Ferdinand, 110 Fayette Street, as a result of the two-car collision. Then Ferdinand and his wife, Mary, filed cross suits against Broadwater. John M. Robb is attorney for the Broadwaters and Thomas N. Berry represents the Ferdinands.

Another case docketed for today is an appeal from a State Industrial Accident Commission ruling. Simon F. Reilly, commissioner, had disallowed a claim which Raymond F. McKenzie, of near Lonaconing, made against the Summit Timber Products Company, Inc. McKenzie said his right hand was injured by a falling tree. Edward J. Ryan is McKenzie's attorney and Thomas B. Finan represents the company.

In a third suit docketed today, Lee Imler, through Attorney William H. Geppert, seeks $1,500 damages from Baughman Contracting Company, Inc., represented by Attorney Earl E. Manges. The firm has filed a plea of set-off contending that Imler owes the company at least as much as he is seeking in the suit.

Petit jurors have been summoned to be in court at 9:15 a. m. today.

Magazine To Tell Story Of FOE Award

The November issue of the Eagle magazine, Fraternal Order of Eagles official publication, will carry a full-length report of the Eagles' Grand Aerie International Civic Service Award to the Veterans of Foreign Wars for their "outstanding community service."

According to Herman L. Myers, secretary of local Aerie 245, FOE, the article on the VFW was written by the VFW's national director of its department of Americanism and Community Service, Mark Kinsey.

Flames Still Sweep Timberlands; Some Blazes Believed Deliberately Set; W. Va. Hard Hit

Forest fires in the tinder dry Tri-State District, which already have claimed one life, yesterday were brought under control as a heavy morning frost dampened area timberlands and lack of wind all day kept flames at a minimum.

In the Tucker County, W. Va., area officials suspected vandalism in the 13 fires which occurred there since Thursday. E. B. Olson, assistant district ranger, said last night 12 of the fires are under investigation by West Virginia State Police and are believed to have been started intentionally.

Olson reported last night all fires in that area are under control with five blazes still being patroled by crewmen. Only one new fire, which began from a spark from another, was reported yesterday.

The small fire which burned only several acres about two miles east of Hendricks was easily brought under control. Biggest fire in that area was in Blackwater Canyon where 90 acres of timberland were destroyed since Thursday. The hard-to-fight blaze was being patroled late last night, but Olson reported it was well in control.

Worst In 20 Years

Meanwhile in the Elkins, W. Va., close to 200 fire fighters are battling a blaze which is termed by authorities as the worst in that section for over 20 years.

It was finally brought under control after burning about 3,000 acres of virgin forest in the Roaring Plains and Flat Rock section of West Virginia between Onego and Lanesville about 40 miles from Elkins.

The fire is being supervised by the Potomac Rangers District with offices in Petersburg and headquarters in Elkins. Officials reported the fire had finally been checked after it burned a circle 12 miles round in the wild timberlands of that section.

Word was received at the Elkins headquarters that crewmen spotted an unidentified man setting fires ahead of them in the untamed wilderness being used by the West Virginia State Conservation Commission for breeding wild game.

One Man Injured

Authorities said only one person has been injured in fighting the fire since Thursday. He was a near Petersburg youth who was struck by a burning falling snag. Officials, however said, the injury was minor.

The wild area, still burning but checked, is in an isolated forest with no residents living there but at the same time having little water and few streams. Crewmen are digging ditches as fire breaks around the thundering blaze.

Officials said many college students from Davis and Elkins College and West Virginia University's School of Forestry are with the crews.

The district office has set up a fire fighting camp on Dollysods an open hill near the fire. Supplies are being taken in by truck from Elkins. Also a water tank truck is making daily trips into the camp. The water truck, privately owned by an Elkins man, is also supplying farmers on the other side of the fire area. Officials said the lack of rain has been taking its toll in farmers livestock.

Bad Crown Fires

The wilderness area being destroyed by the flames is mostly spruce trees, officials said, and many times crewmen have narrowly escaped with their lives as "crown fires" building in the tree tops caused explosions and roared in fury. Expert supervisors everytime

Two Area Women Found Dead Of Asphyxiation

Two young women from this area were found dead in bed early yesterday morning in their basement apartment at 924 Ridgeway Avenue, Morgantown, W. Va. Death was attributed to asphyxiation of fumes from a gas space heater.

The victims were identified as Miss Flora Mae Green, 20 of Mt. Storm, W. Va., and Gwenlyn Elaine Coakley, 21 of Scherr, W. Va.

Miss Green is a daughter of Albert Ervin Green and Ethel Victoria Kitzmiller Green of Mt. Storm who survive, together with her grandmother Mrs. Mary A. Green of Elk Garden, two brothers and a sister, Pfc. Elwood Green, USAF, Middletown, Pa., Jimmie Green and Betty Lou Green both at home.

She had been in Morgantown working as a secretary for Seneca Glass Company. She graduated in June from the Morgantown Business College and was also a graduate of Bayard High School in 1951. She was born April 13, 1932.

The body was taken to Sharpless Funeral Home at Blaine, W. Va., and will be removed to the family residence at Mt. Storm this evening at 5 o'clock. Funeral services will be held at Mt. Storm Methodist Church, of which she was a member Wednesday at 2 p. m. Interment will be in the IOOF Cemetery Elk Garden, W. Va.

Miss Coakley, is a daughter of Joseph A. and Nelcie M. Coakley, Scherr, W. Va. Miss Coakley was an employe of the Mile Ground Medical Center in Morgantown.

Miss Coakley is survived by two brothers, Leroy Coakley, Baltimore and Floyd Coakley, at home. She was a graduate of Petersburg, W. Va. High School class of 1951 and graduated from the Morgantown Business College this year. Her body will be taken to the home of her parents today.

New VA-Hospital Is Dedicated

Several local representatives of the Military Order of Purple Heart were in Baltimore yesterday for the dedication of the new Veterans' Administration Tuberculosis Hospital, at Loch Raven and Alameda Boulevards.

Attending from here were Herbert McFarland, Department of Maryland commander for the Order of Purple Heart; Mrs. McFarland, president of the local Purple Heart auxiliary, and Mrs. Edith M. Reichert, former Department of Maryland auxiliary president.

Principal speakers at the ceremonies were General Carl Gray, administrator of veterans affairs, and Vice-Admiral Joel T. Boone, chief medical director of veterans affairs. The new 300-bed hospital was built at a cost of $5,000,000.

Richard O'Conner, chairman of the Hospital Fund representing all veterans' organizations in Maryland, presented a check for $750 to the hospital for the start of its special services program.

Holy Name Launches Membership Drive

The Western Maryland Section of the Holy Name Society of the Baltimore Archdiocese launched a membership drive yesterday at a meeting in the Midland Fire Hall.

Thomas F. Conlon, Sr., section president, said the campaign will continue to December 14 when the group will meet again in St. Michael's Hall, Frostburg, to hear reports and elect new officers. At the December meeting the society will also close business for the year with Allegany and Garrett County parish representatives reporting.

Approximately 125 delegates and officers of the 12 parishes in the section were present at the Midland meeting.

Following the meeting, a Holy Hour service was held at St. Joseph's Catholic Church. Rev. Father Lawrence J. Landrigan, pastor of St. Mary's Church here and spiritual director of the Western Maryland Section, delivered the sermon. Rev. Father Francis Montgomery, pastor of St. Michael's Church, Frostburg, was celebrant, assisted by Rev. Father John Buckley, of the Midland church.

Cupler To Speak

John A. Cupler, of National Jet Company, will be guest speaker at a luncheon meeting of the Cumberland Rotary Club tomorrow at 12:15 p. m. in Central YMCA.

He will speak on "New Opportunities for Novel Industry."

Wilson Lauds Police For Cooperation In Sparkman Rally

Police and Fire Commissioner John J. Long received a letter from William L. Wilson Jr., chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee, in appreciation of the cooperation from city police during Senator John J. Sparkman's visit here recently.

The following letter was posted in the squad room at police headquarters:

"The committee wishes to express the appreciation to you, the officers and men of the Police Department for the efficient manner in which the Sparkman rally was conducted on Saturday the 18th. Sen. Sparkman also asked me to express his personal thanks.

"We would also like to especially thank Lt. Raymond Johnson and Officer John Snyder for the excellent way in which the party was taken from the airport to the City Hall and also returned to the airport."

Local Couple Escapes As Car Jumps 80 Feet

Treated at Sacred Heart Hospital was Mrs. Geraldine E. Frantz, 1102 Frederick Street, wife of George W. Frantz, operator of the Frantz Home Bakery.

Lt. William E. O'Hara, of the Maryland State Police at LaVale Barracks, said the vehicle travelled about 80 feet from the highway into the front yard of Shertzer's. As the auto went through space it hurled over a rabbit pen in the yard of J. J. Garlick.

Four guard rails were torn out as the auto left the road. Frantz, according to police was returning to Cumberland at the time of the mishap. The front of the 1947 sedan was demolished as the couple miraculously escaped serious injury.

A note of humor entered into the near tragedy. The steel clothes line pole upon which the car "hung up" was a request of Mrs. Shertzer for about 14 years.

Shertzer finally installed it last Saturday and his wife had used it one time prior to the highway accident.

Lt. O'Hara last night said Frantz blamed the accident on headlights which blinded him.

County Delegates To Attend Southern Meet

Two county men will attend the 29th Southern States annual meeting in Richmond, Va., November 6 and 7.

Wilbur Perrin will attend as official delegate from Cumberland and Parker Warnick will be present as delegate from Lonaconing. Also attending will be Robert P. Heavner, manager of the local Southern States Agency, and Charles Clise, manager of the Lonaconing agency.

Today's Sermonette

Today's sermonette is a digest of the sermon preached yesterday at Emmanuel Methodist Church by the pastor, Rev. Kenneth W. Grove. The sermon digests are being prepared through the co-operation of the Cumberland Ministerial Association.

The Christian Steward And Property

Rev. Grove

Assuming we are agreed that God as the creator and the conservor of life is the sovereign owner of His creation, we come to believe that we His people as well as the world which has been created to sustain humanity are important in the Divine plan. It is exceedingly difficult for man today to conceive of God as Sovereign and Lord with man as steward, but we do not read very far into the Scripture until we come face to face with a truth which leaves no doubt in the mind of the thoughtful individual as to his role in life.

In Genesis 2:15 the narrator of the creation story tells symbolically of the role of man in this world. "And the Lord God took the man and put him into the garden of Eden to dress it and keep it. "In our day we need to extend the word garden quite a bit, for that which is needed to sustain human life today requires a more complex system of activity than the Genesis narrator ever dreamed. But the essential truth can never be disputed, for in all of our works we must collaborate with God.

As we of the present day seek to adjust ourselves to life on this planet we need to reckon with the great problem presented by the physical demands of a physical universe. What shall be the atttitude of a Christian person of the world and its wealth? How shall we approach the various offerings presented by the abundance of the things of the world? We are not long in the Faith until we need to consider the matter of a Christian steward and his relationship to property.

Jesus is rather insistent in His parables and other words of teaching that those who are His followers need to make adjustments to the world so that faith and practice may coincide. His parables teach the same refrain that is expressed resented by property money and other possessions.

Apparently there was nothing wrong with the rich man's means of acquiring wealth. He planted the fields, tended them carefully, and when the heads of grain bent with the weight of ripened fruit he harvested. This is as it should be. Jesus found no fault with this. By implication we come to know that there is a proper means for the acquisition of money.

Jesus found no fault with the fortunate farmer for wanting to take care of the fine harvest which had accrued to him as a result of his labor and care. He tore down barns and built new ones to accomodate the county of His harvest. Jesus was not distressed by this knowledge. We as Christian stewards need to remember that there is a Christian, way of administering the property and goods which come to us as a result of our labor and care.

The point at which Jesus realized that the prosperous farmer and God had come to cross purposes was the moment when the man said, "Now soul, take your ease. You have in abundance. You are secure for as long as you live." We here discover the essence of that which we have felt to be missing in the life and character of this man all the while. For while this man was a careful and wise farmer, using to the fullest his potentialities and possibilities, we now know that he has missed the ultimate as far as God is concerned. As far as man is concerned. What was done was not done to glorify and praise God, to improve the race of men and their lot. This was done to effect the security of one man and possibly the members of his immediate family.

In regard to property, the Christian steward needs to appraise careand wise in the administration of on thought in the prayer which He taught His disciples, "Thy kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven."

This leaves little room for doubt that it is the intent of God and His Son that the kingdoms of this world are to be the trial plots for the development of the kingdom of love and mercy. And by understanding the positive aspects implied in the parable of the wealthy fool, we come to realize that there is a

To Go Before Voters For Approval

ANNAPOLIS, Oct. 23 (AP) — Confident of voter approval, Maryland's expert figure filberts already have adopted a new budget system that has yet to be written into law.

The new fiscal deal is designed to tell the Legislature more about where tax money goes. It was endorsed last winter by the General Assembly.

It still must go on the ballot at referendum next month, because it requires an amendment to the Constitution. The proposed amendment simply eliminates the requirement of an "itemized" budget and authorizes one in form prescribed by the governor or Legislature.

Few Oppose

Few — if any — voices have been raised against it. The Governmental Survey Commission headed by Simon E. Sobeloff, Baltimore attorney, first suggested a "program" budget. After a little bandying in the Legislature, and whole-hearted support from Gov. McKeldin, it received general approval.

The Legislature even provided some funds to get the system rolling. The Budget Department retained a man familiar with the process to help install it. Several aides also have been hired.

Still the voters haven't said it's all right. But everyone expects they will, so the lawmakers may see state finances in what supporters of the budget call a modern light next Winter.

The gist of the program budget is to group appropriations according to each function state departments perform. In this way, a price tag hangs on every governmental job.

For years Maryland, like many other states, has listed its budget filling hundreds of big pages in a paper-bound book laid on each legislator's desk early in a General Assembly session. They've itemized every cent to be spent on employes, transportation, office equipment, fuel—even such things as wearing apparel and livestock.

Too Complicated

Sobeloff and his government probers contended this told the Legislature everything but nothing. Too complicated, they said. No clear picture of what the state was doing with its revenues.

The Legislature agreed, but insisted on hanging on to what they had for at least background information. The budget department will prepare appropriations recommended by the governor in "programs." But it must also have available data on the personnel every department employs and plans for spending on equipment, transportation, communications and so forth.

The leadership of both parties has come out for the new budget. Departments have asked for operating funds on forms devised to put it into effect. John A. Donaho, who administered a similar type budget in Richmond for several years, is working closely with James G. Rennie and James P. Slicher, the state's budget bosses.

The voters, they say, had better come through.

Sister Corona Dies In Convent At Baltimore

Sister Mary Corona, about 78, former supervisor and principal of St. Patrick's Catholic School, died Friday at the Mother House of the School Sisters of Notre Dame in Baltimore.

A requiem high mass will be celebrated today at 8 a. m. at the Mother House, 901 Asquith Street, with interment in Villa Maria Cemetery in Notch Cliff. The very Rev. J. Lawrence Kilkenny, pastor of St. Patrick's Catholic Church, left yesterday to attend the funeral.

Sister Corona is a native of Rochester, N. Y. and was supervisor and principal of St. Patrick's School from 1940-1946. From 1934-1940 she was first assistant of the Eastern Province of the order.

Two of her sisters were nuns in the same organization and became superiors. One died about 18 years ago and the other 20 years ago.

Civic Symphony Will Feature School Singers

Allegany County music students who sang with the All State Chorus in Baltimore earlier this month will be featured in the first concert of the Cumberland Civic Symphony Orchestra for the 1952-53 season.

This concert will be held Tuesday, November 18, in the Allegany High School auditorium.

Thirty-four students from Allegany County participated in the clinic and concert which opened the meeting of the Maryland State Teachers Association in Baltimore October 16. They will perform the same numbers with the symphony that they sang in Baltimore.

John Raymond of Lafayette College coached and directed the chorus of 300 voices. He has done chorus and clinic work with college and high schools in many states. He has been active in the Fred Waring Summer workshop.

The orchestra, with some familiar musicians and a number of new players, still has need of a few more. Rehearsals are held at 8 p. m., each Friday at the Moose Home on Beall Street. S. Lua Syckes is the director and Wilton Syckes is concert master.

The Junior Women's Civic Club again has made plans to sponsor the orchestra and has promised to provide $1,000. Last year the club prepared a souvenir program.

Rubber Workers To Take Course

Dr. A. L. Lewis, public relations officer of the International Rubber Workers (URW-CIO) will be at the headquarters of Local 26, 152-54 North Mechanic Street, for three days this week to conduct a course in public speaking for union members.

William G. Rice, president of Local 26, said that the two-hour sessions, beginning at 7:30 o'clock each night, are primarily for members of Local 26 although other union workers are invited. The sessions will begin tonight and end Wednesday.

Each afternoon, beginning today, Dr. Lewis will meet with Local 26's publicity committee of which Gerald Young is chairman. The local hopes to reactivate its newspaper which suspended publication several years ago. It was known as "The Rubberneck."

Dr. Lewis comes here from Akron, Ohio.

Protestants Attend Rally At St. Luke's

A large congregation representing most of Cumberland's Protestant churches attended the second annual Reformation Rally yesterday afternoon at St. Luke's Lutheran Church.

"We Protestants must stress our positive message," Rev. Edward Clapper, pastor of Grace Lutheran Church, Altoona, Pa., told the congregation. "We must announce our own program and stop denouncing those denominations with which we do not agree."

Rev. Clapper, principal speaker at the rally, cited the contributions of various leaders in the Protestant Reformation. He emphasized that Martin Luther's belief was justification by faith, which is the primary belief of most Protestants today.

The visiting speaker concluded his remarks by explaining why he is a Protestant.

These Reformation rallies are held annually on the last Sunday in October, the Sunday nearest October 31, the date on which Luther broke with the Roman Catholic Church.

Dr. H. Hall Sharp, pastor of St. Luke's Lutheran Church, presided at the service. Eight other clergymen assisted in various phases of the rally.

Weather

Yesterday was rather an ideal fall day. The sun was bright with blue skies overhead suitable for an afternoon stroll through the autumn foliage. The high temperature as recorded at the official weather station in Constitution Park was 63 degrees, with a low of 25 degrees. The mercury at 8:45 p. m. registered 47 degrees and humidity measured at 6 p. m. was 43 per cent. Forecast for today is fair with warm weather in the interior this afternoon.

Hyde To Address Lions

DeWitt S. Hyde, candidate for Congress on the Republican ticket next month, will be guest speaker, Wednesday at 12:15 p. m., at Central YMCA during a luncheon meeting of the Cumberland Lions Club. He will speak on "Problems of Western Maryland."

Arson Suspected In Bad Blaze At Hide Company

Police, Firemen Find Evidence Of Vandalism

Arson coupled with breaking and entering is suspected by city police and firemen following a call received early yesterday morning at Hirsch Brothers hide company located at 109 Cumberland Street.

Central firemen were notified of the fire about 2:07 a. m. Chief Virgil A. Parker, who was on the scene, said both the pumper and aerial truck went to the fire.

The sprinkler system in the building was set off by the intense heat of the fire and tripped an alarm located on the outside of the building. A neighbor heard the alarm, went to the building, discovered the blaze, and notified firemen.

City police also went to the fire and later found that a pane of glass in a rear door of the building had been broken out and entrance gained. A company spokesman said the glass was unbroken Saturday afternoon when the place closed for the weekend.

Considerable damage was caused in two offices. One fire, police noted, was apparently started under a counter in the front office where some old records were burned. A chest of drawers in an office adjoining the other room was also burned. Several drawers were pulled out and a fire apparently started, police added.

Burglary apparently was not the motive for the fires, police said, since a large safe, other machines and cabinets were untouched, although papers were strewn about the offices.

An investigation is being continued by Detective Roy C. Hawse. Also at the scene early yesterday morning was John H. Stitcher of the police department.

Today Deadline For Interest Free City Tax

The City Tax Office is getting ready for a big day.

Today will be the last day on which 1952-53 taxes can be settled without paying interest. Mailed payments postmarked by midnight will be interest free.

George E. Davis, city collector, said payments are expected to reach 85 per cent of the tax levy by the deadline.

Collections have been heavy and about on a par with last year, officials said.

The tax bills were placed in the mails on September 19, and by the end of that month, collections were at the $198,000 mark.

By Friday afternoon, collections totaled $620,692, or about 69¼ per cent of the $892,200 tax levy. Collections must total $761,770 by tonight to reach 85 per cent.

Interest on city taxes begins at the rate of one per cent tomorrow, since interest dates back to August 25, when the levy was set. One half of one per cent is charged on succeeding months.

Three Civil Suits Set For Today

Three civil suits are docketed for trial today in Allegany County Circuit Court.

One of these trials involves cross suits growing out of an accident on Braddock Road January 20. Howard W. Broadwater and Viola V. Broadwater, his wife, Braddock Road, first sued Joseph Ferdinand, 110 Fayette Street, as a result of the two-car collision. Then Ferdinand and his wife, Mary, filed cross suits against Broadwater. John M. Robb is attorney for the Broadwaters and Thomas N. Berry represents the Ferdinands.

Another case docketed for today is an appeal from a State Industrial Accident Commission ruling. Simon F. Reilly, commissioner, had disallowed a claim which Raymond F. McKenzie, of near Lonaconing, made against the Summit Timber Products Company, Inc. McKenzie said his right hand was injured by a falling tree. Edward J. Ryan is McKenzie's attorney and Thomas B. Finan represents the company.

In a third suit docketed today, Lee Imler, through Attorney William H. Geppert, seeks $1,500 damages from Baughman Contracting Company, Inc., represented by Attorney Earl E. Manges. The firm has filed a plea of set-off contending that Imler owes the company at least as much as he is seeking in the suit.

Petit jurors have been summoned to be in court at 9:15 a. m. today.

Magazine To Tell Story Of FOE Award

The November issue of the Eagle magazine, Fraternal Order of Eagles official publication, will carry a full-length report of the Eagles' Grand Aerie International Civic Service Award to the Veterans of Foreign Wars for their "outstanding community service."

According to Herman L. Myers, secretary of local Aerie 245, FOE, the article on the VFW was written by the VFW's national director of its department of Americanism and Community Service, Mark Kinsey.
